Welcomes Winant

By the Associated Press

London, March 28.—German submarines and German battle cruisers operating on "the American side of the Atlantic" already have sunk unconvoyed British ships within 1,500 miles of New York, Winston Churchill declared publicly today.

The prime minister did not specify just how many merchantmen had gone down, nor the size of the Nazi raiding force, but the term he used for the surface raiders could apply to warships as large as the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst, to which he had referred in the past as a "battle cruiser."

He made his disclosure before the Pilgrims Club in formally welcoming the new United States Ambassador, John G. Winant, in a speech that was at once a symbolic handclasping and a report on the Battle of the Atlantic—"one of the most momentous ever fought in all the annals of war."

Voices Confidence

Only yesterday, he said, he was informed of "the certain destruction" of three Nazi U-boats—the first "delectable tidings" of such a triple German disaster since last October. And he went on:

"The Battle of the Atlantic must be won in decisive manner. It must be won beyond all doubt if the declared policies of the government and people of the United States are not to be forcibly frustrated.

"Not only German U-boats but German battle cruisers have crossed to the American side of the Atlantic and have already sunk some of our independently routed ships not sailing in convoy. They have sunk ships as far west as the forty-second meridian of longitude (some 1,500 miles east of New York).

". . . It is my rule, as you know, not to conceal the gravity of our dangers from our people and therefore I have the right to be believed when I also proclaim our confidence that we shall overcome them.

"You'll Share Our Dangers"

"But anyone can see how bitter is the need of Hitler and his gang to cut the sea roads between Great Britain and the United States and, having divided these mighty powers, to destroy them one by one.

". . . Therefore, Mr. Winant, you come to us at a grand turning point in the world's history.

". . . You, Mr. Ambassador, share our purpose. You'll share our dangers. You'll share our interests. You shall share our secrets.

"And the day will come when the British Empire and the United States will share together the solemn

U. S. Navy Starts Submarine Maneuvers Off East Coast

Four Cruisers and Nine Destroyers On Training Cruises in South Pacific

The Navy yesterday announced that extensive submarine operations were under way this week off the Atlantic coastline.

Merchant ships were warned to "navigate with caution" in three sea areas in Long Island Sound, off the Virginia Capes and in the Florida Straits. Destroyers are participating in the operations in Florida waters, it was stated.

Officials said the maneuvers were routine training activities and had been planned for some time. While more extensive than the normal weekly training operations, which are similarly announced in warnings to shipping, the fact that they occur at the same time as reports of German U-boats operating in American waters is entirely coincidental, it was said.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles at a press conference yesterday confirmed newspaper reports that this Government had been informed a large Nazi submarine had slipped through the British blockade and was en route to the eastern Atlantic. He said that the report had been received from the British government through their Ambassador here, Lord Halifax.

Far-flung activities of the American Navy, meanwhile, were revealed to have placed a total of four cruisers and nine destroyers in Australian and New Zealand waters on what were said to be training cruises.

Sydney, Australia, reported, through the Associated Press, that two United States cruisers and five destroyers would arrive there tomorrow for a two-day visit. Two other cruisers and four destroyers already are in Auckland Harbor, New Zealand.

Acting Prime Minister A. W. Fadden, at Sydney, voiced pleasure over the impending naval visit, and John Curtin, labor leader, was quoted as calling it a practical demonstration of the force of President Roosevelt's speech last Saturday on the lend-lease program.

1,000 Killed In Liverpool, Glasgow Raids

800 Hurt at Scottish Shipbuilding City and 500 at English Port

By the Associated Press

London, March 18.—Nazi bombs killed 1,000 persons and injured another 1,300 in three nights last week in the Liverpool and Glasgow areas, shipping and shipbuilding centers vital to Britain's survival in the Battle of the Atlantic, the government announced tonight.

(The German high command, describing the March 12 raid on Liverpool, said several hundred planes dropped high explosives and incendiaries in waves on the west coast port and surrounding countryside, and D. N. B., official German news agency, said the devastation was worse than at Coventry, the town raided the night of November 14.

(One German observer said 10,000 explosive and fire bombs were dropped, and huge losses inflicted, especially among grain elevators and storehouses.

(The Clydeside at Glasgow similarly was said by German reports to have been given a terrific punishment by a bombing which left large areas a sheet of flames.)

The air and home security ministries divided the casualties as follows: Liverpool, 500 killed, 500 wounded; Glasgow, 500 killed, 800 wounded.

Removal of women and children to safer areas is still going on in the Glasgow district, and thousands of workers are busy repairing damaged homes.

Several London houses were demolished and some persons were trapped in them during a German air raid on the British capital tonight.

German Talks With Belgrade Strike a Snag

Excessive Demands Of Berlin Blamed For Renewed Hitch

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, March 18.—An eleventh-hour hitch developed tonight in the renewed German-Yugoslav conversations.

Despite rumors of a deadline tomorrow for the signature of the Belgrade-Berlin nonaggression pact, sources close to the government said that the signature might be deferred until the end of this week—"or even longer."

Excessive new German demands and an attempted reopening of German power diplomacy in Yugoslavia's Axis press were blamed for the new postponement.

"Berlin is trying the softening-up remedy again, even as some of us predicted," one diplomat said tonight.

Today's Belgrade press devoted its front pages to Yugoslav-German relations, placing below the headlines in bold-face type the statement of the Wilhelmstrasse, that "it is still too early to give any information about discussions being carried on in the framework of the excellent diplomatic relations between Yugoslavia and the Reich."

First German Admission

This was the first official German statement admitting that Yugoslav-German conversations have been under way, although it was known here that Germany had been pressing since February 14 for Yugoslav signature of the Tripartite Pact.

The Belgrade Politika and the semiofficial Vreme carried front-page German statements declaring that "cooperation with Yugoslavia is precious, not only as it is one factor for peace in the present political situtions but also as a guarantee of peaceful developments in the

Hammond Sues to Retain Career in State Department

Ogden H. Hammond, Jr., 29 son of a former Ambassador to Spain, yesterday asked the District Court to block his dismissal from his foreign service career job on charges that he swore were false.

Hammond's complaint said he was asked to resign because of reports that he publicly mimicked President Roosevelt and had "disloyal deadings with a female agent of a foreign government."

The State Department refused comment on the action.

Branding both charges as a "vicious and malicious fabrication," Hammond supported his 33-page petition with about 60 pages of exhibits, including an affidavit of Lilly Stein, of New York, that their relations in Vienna and New York were "purely platonic."

Hammond, a Yale alumnus and former banker, joined the foreign service March 22, 1939, and was vice consul at Vienna from April 3, 1939, to October 31, 1939. He was vice consul at Leipzig from November 1, 1939, to February 21, 1940. His father is Ogden H. Hammond, New Jersey Republican leader and Ambassador to Spain from 1925 to 1929.

Hammond's complaint, drafted by Attorney George W. Dalzell, depicted the young diplomatist as the victim of a malicious conspiracy to defame him and drive him out of his profession. Named as defendants, both personally and officially, were Secretary of State Hull, Assistant Secretaries of State Adolph A. Berle, Breckinridge Long, Dean Acheson and G. Howland Shaw, and John G. Erhardt, chief of the State

U.S. Prepares To Send Food To Friends

France and Spain As Well as Britain Will Receive Help; 5 Million for Finns

The United States, preparing to be the "larder of democracy," acted yesterday to feed Britain and her allies and also nations that have felt the tread of a conqueror's heel.

President Roosevelt announced he had asked Agriculture Secretary Wickard and Surgeon General Parran to compile a list of foodstuffs, including vitamins, needed by Britain and other democracies.

The President indicated that Britain would receive the bulk of food sent abroad, but that other nations fighting aggression, and also Spain, would be included.

The French Ambassador, Gaston Henry-Haye, revealed meanwhile that release of two cargoes of American wheat for shipment to France awaits only formal British consent.

At the same time the Export-Import Bank granted Finland a $5,000,000 credit to relieve its food shortage.

Other sources disclosed that the Government is anticipating Britain's food needs and has already acted to acquire lard for shipment to England.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, it was learned, has bought 11,000,000 pounds of lard during the last few days. The lard was ordered delivered in 66-pound tins, of the type usually used for export. FSCC officials would not admit that the lard was meant for British consumption.

Foods Not Specified

President Roosevelt did not specify what foods might be sent abroad, but he indicated that the program would come within the scope of the $7,000,000,000 program he has mapped to carry out the lend-lease law. Budget Bureau estimates of the program include $1,350,000,000 for farm and industrial products, much of which may go to food. Part of the costs would be paid with other funds, he said.

The British, it is known, are interested in milk products, such as cheese and powdered milk, that do not take much shipping space. They are also interested in eggs in powdered form, fruit, tobacco and a long list of other products.

Ambassador Henry-Haye, obviously pleased at the success of his repeated pleas for food for France, said he was seeking American and British approval for regular food

House Ends Debate Over Aid Fund Bill

Passage Expected To Be Overwhelming, But Opponents Plan To Seek Changes

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The House last night concluded debate on the $7,000,000,000 appropriation for 100 per cent capacity aid to England, then prepared for overwhelming passage of the measure today.

With ever-dwindling opposition, members talked themselves out at 6:22 p. m. Only a handful were present at the close and there never was a full attendance on the floor.

Ranking Democratic and Republican members of the House Appropriations Committee joined pleas for swift passage in the first real bipartisan demonstration of the all-out aid effort.

A scattered bitter-end opposition nonetheless prepared amendments for today's last stand against the bill. A motion to recommit the bill for a $2,000,000,000 slash will be presented by Representative Lambertson (Republican), of Kansas.

Woodrum Joins Taber

Appealing side-by-side for funds to assure a British victory were Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, acting chairman of the Deficiencies Subcommittee, and Representative Taber, of New York, ranking Republican member.

Earlier the full House Appropriations Committee reported the bill with recommendations against "halfway measures" and published statements in support of the bill by Cabinet and military spokesmen.

The United States must stand by its lend-lease pledge, the committee reported, or "become a faltering welcher on the promises we have held out to those brave countries and their people."

"With this all-out American effort there can and there will be only one result, and that is the ultimate downfall of dictators," Woodrum told the House.

Followed, the Republican Taber's pledge of support:

"We have made Great Britain's battle our battle. It is absolutely necessary that we do this job thoroughly and completely, or else the United States of America is in trouble."

Would "Hold Purse Strings"

In sharp dissent, came Lambertson's plea for a $2,000,000,000 cut "to hold the purse strings in Congress."

"My leader made a talk for unity," said Lambertson. "I'll not

Soldiers Combing Woods for Escaped Meade Prisoners

Details of approximately 50 Regular Army troops and military police were combing heavily wooded areas in the vicinity of Fort Meade, Md., last night in search of two military prisoners who overpowered their guard and fled into the woods late yesterday.

Army officers reported that the men had been collecting trash and placing it on a truck at the northern end of the airport when they jumped their guard and took a 12-gauge shotgun from him. They escaped into the wooded area which is used as a training ground by the 176th Field Artillery.

Names of the escaped prisoners were given as Charles R. Mottern, 19, of Battery B, Seventy-first Coast Artillery, Fort Story, Va., awaiting trial for desertion, and Gordon A. Ianson, 20, of Headquarters Company, Ninety-third Antitank Battalion, Fort Meade, awaiting trial on charges of larceny of pocketbooks.

The manhunt was conducted by Lieut. John Doerr, assistant provost marshal of Fort Meade. Lieut. Donald L. Stetson, of the Twenty-ninth, reported later the shotgun had been found in the woods still loaded.

10,000 Visit New Gallery of Art

Approximately 10,000 persons visited the National Gallery of Art yesterday on the first day of its opening to the public.

The public's view of works by the masters followed the dedication of the $15,000,000 gallery by President Roosevelt Monday evening. The building will be open from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. week days and from 2 to 5 p. m. Sundays.

Emmitt Warring Denied Writ, Sent Back to Lorton

Emmitt Warring, slender former head of a $2,000,000-a-year numbers racket here, was sent back to Lorton Reformatory yesterday after Justice F. Dickinson Letts denied him a writ of habeas corpus in the District Court.

Warring has served 25 months of a 26-month sentence for tampering with a jury trying Warring and two of his brothers for plotting to evade income taxes.

Attorney Myron Ehrlich contended that the flat sentence was void, because it failed to state a minimum and a maximum as prescribed by the District's Indeterminate Sentence Act. Justice Letts however, ruled that the act did not apply to criminal contempt of court.

Roosevelt Leaves On Cruise Today

President Roosevelt will head South today for a ten-day or two-week vacation "to get some sunshine," he said yesterday.

Still showing the effects of a recent head cold, the Chief Executive was expected to board his yacht Potomac at a Southern port and try his angler's luck in the Caribbean.

The yacht is expected to be convoyed by two destroyers as is customary.

Bugler Who Sounded End of Civil War Dies

Worcester, N. Y., March 18 (AP).—Seth M. Flint, 93, generally credited with sounding the bugle call that announced the end of the Civil War, died tonight of a heart attack.

A bugler with Gen. U. S. Grant throughout the final year of the war, Flint was with the Union leader at Appomattox when Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered. He claimed to have sounded the call telling both armies the war was over.

Easing Growing Pains

U. S. to Build Big Dormitory For Single Government Girls

Site, Number of Buildings Undecided; Rent May Be From $20 to $30 Monthly

President Roosevelt has approved a 1,000-unit dormitory project to house single women working in Government offices here, it was announced yesterday by Defense Housing Coordinator C. F. Palmer.

The shelters, to be erected to meet Washington's growing housing shortage, will be completed anywhere from three months to a year from now, depending on whether they are of temporary or permanent construction, Palmer said.

Even if they are temporary, Palmer said, they will be a vast improvement over the dormitories in Union Station Plaza which housed 1,800 women Federal workers during World War I.

Also undecided as yet, Palmer stated, are the site, the number of buildings, and whether they will be grouped in one location or decentralized. The rents have been recommended by Palmer to be from $20 to $30 monthly per tenant. It has also been determined to make the units as nearly private as possible, avoiding the "ward" type of dwelling in which several persons sleep in the same room. Instead, even double rooms will be kept at a minimum, with the majority of units being singly-occupied, adjacent to large lavatory rooms.

Palmer also announced approval of an additional 425 units, 350 of which will be built for families of enlisted personnel and civilian employes connected with Fort Belvoir. These are to be financed by funds from the $150,000,000 Lanham appropriation. The remaining 75 units are to be provided by private industry.

With these units and the dormitory, the number of dwellings approved under the Defense Housing program in the Washington area totals 4,134.

Palmer explained that if further study proved the 1,000-unit dormitory could be put on a self-sustaining basis by the $20 and $30 rentals, the project could be financed by

Rising Mercury To Break Grip Of Cold Wave

40-Mile-an-Hour Wind Raises Havoc on Winter's Coldest Day

A warm sun and rising temperatures were forecast for today, the last full day of winter, as Washingtonians yesterday bundled through the coldest March 18 in 41 years under the raking of a 40-mile-an-hour wind.

As a warm air mass moved eastward from the Rockies, bringing relief from Arctic cold, Secretary of Commerce Jones received a telegram from Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota charging that "inadequate weather warnings" were in part responsible for the weekend storm death toll of 66 in Minnesota and North Dakota.

"No comment" was the Secretary's reply to Stassen's charges, and he added that he would have no comment later on either.

But Francis W. Reichelderfer, chief of the Weather Bureau, declared that the forecasts of the blizzard, which took at least 78 lives in seven States, were "unusually good."

"The forecasts," he said, "were excellent ones from the viewpoint of what meteorological science can do today."

Reichelderfer said that forecasts of cold waves and storms in the North Central part of the country were normally 24 to 36 hours ahead. The forecast of Sunday's cold wave, he added, was made at 11 a. m. Saturday in Minneapolis, and livestock owners were warned to take precautions.

"The problem," he said, "is one of communication, of getting the information to the people who don't read the newspapers or listen to the radio."

Washingtonians knew about yesterday's subfreezing weather in ad-

Dr. Price Once Praised, Now Assails G.H.A.

Former Staff Physician Reverses Opinion Held in 1938

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

By a Government strategem, a witness in the doctors' trial yesterday heard a "playback" of his words—uttered in 1938—in praise of Group Health Association, a few minutes after he had testified that G. H. A. was unworthy.

"When you were a member of the association's staff in 1938, what was your experience as to the quality of medical care it gave?" Dr. Richard H. Price was asked by William E. Leahy, counsel for organized medicine in the Government's antitrust case.

"I felt it was not the kind of care I like to give my patients," the witness, now a private practitioner in Alexandria, replied. He added that G. H. A. represented an attempt to practice medicine "wholesale," whereas "personal service is the keynote of adequate medical care."

Pursuing the line of criticism, his testimony highlighting the end of the sixth week of the case on trial in District Court, Dr. Price asserted that:

The "fundamental trouble" with the group practice, prepayment scheme was that it tried to take the place of the family physician.

G. H. A. staff doctors, including himself, had to care for too many patients, as many as 60 a day each.

Many G. H. A. members in need of surgical operations were stalled off because the Federal workers' health cooperative did not have enough money to pay so many hospital bills.

A patient, ill at home, would not have the same staff doctor for all house calls, a disadvantage for

Army to Buy 110,000 Acres In Virginia for Proving Ground

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The Army will acquire a large tract of land in nearby Virginia for use as a proving ground for the Nation's military forces in the Eastern half of the United States.

A War Department announcement yesterday disclosed that money from a lump sum already appropriated by Congress has been set aside for the purchase of the land and that a tract of 110,000 acres in Virginia is under consideration.

Officials said that continuous war games would be conducted there beginning this spring, designed to whip the "new" Army into readiness and keep it fit.

The exact location of the maneuver area has not yet been finally determined, the announcement said. It is understood, however, that it will be in Caroline County, near Fredericksburg.

Few military posts contain enough land for large scale maneuvers, and when the expanding Army becomes proficient in the battalion and regimental drills now under way, bigger training areas will be needed to put divisions and corps into fighting shape.

It is expected that two divisions will be kept constantly at the Virginia training area, living in tents. They will be pitted against each other in battle problems much of the time. Divisions will rotate there, returning to their home stations to make room for other units after completing a series of war games.

Late this summer, larger scale

Walkouts Hold Up Planes, Meigs Says; Roosevelt to Order Mediation Today

The War Department, gravely concerned over the continued strike tie-up at Wright Field, Ohio, is seriously considering taking over construction work there on which A. F. of L. workers have struck, it was learned last night.

While officials made clear that no word of an ultimatum nature has been sent to the striking union, they let it be known that because of the seriousness with which the impasse is regarded, several possible steps are under discussion. It was said that when action is decided on it may be expected to be very definite.

Some officials expressed hope that a settlement might be reached today, but from Dayton there came word last night, through the Associated Press, that the A. F. of L. union was remaining firm. John Breidenbach, business manager of the Dayton Building Trades Council, was quoted as saying, when informed of the War Department attitude, that "our men will be out a long time if those others (C. I. O. members employed on an electrical installation project) don't get off the field."

Protest C. I. O Men

Some 400 A. F. L. craftsmen struck three weeks ago because the Penner Installation Corporation, holder of the electrical project contract, employed five C. I. O. members. The War Department brought a resumption of work by the A. F. L. by suspending work temporarily on the Penner job, but later announced that the installation corporation had a valid contract and there was no reason for discontinuing its operations. Thereupon the A. F. L. men walked out again.

The Wright Field stoppage was only one of several that were causing official misgivings yesterday, as President Roosevelt indicated that he would issue today his expected order creating a defense mediation board intended to curb such hindrances to the defense program.

Holding Up Planes

At the same time, a Congressional committee was told by an OPM official that three strikes are "definitely holding up delivery of planes" needed in the defense program.

Other strike developments, as reported by the Associated Press, included these:

Mayor LaGuardia served an ultimatum on opposing sides in New York City's nine-day-old bus strike that unless they decided separately to submit their dispute to arbitration he would appoint a three-man fact-finding board which would be ready to start work today. He is to confer today with C. I. O. Chief Philip Murray.

Fear of a Nation-wide work stoppage in the soft-coal industry dimmed when the United Mine Workers of America (C. I. O.) agreed to permit 120,000 miners outside the Appalachian area to continue work after the present Appalachian wage contract expires April 1. This permission did not involve the approximately 330,000 miners in the eight-State Appalachian area for which union operator negotiators now are attempting to draw a new contract.

C. I. O. auto workers went on strike at the Fisher body and Chevrolet plants at Oakland, Calif., after conferences failed to settle a week-long dispute over discharge of 26 welders. Fifteen hundred men in the two plants were affected by the walkout, which may force the shutdown of

Greece-Bound Convoys Defy Italian Guns

By Larry Allen
Associated Press Staff Writer

Aboard a British Cruiser Somewhere in the Mediterranean, March 18.—British and Allied forces, daring the silent guns on Italy's Dodecanese Islands and Axis aerial scouts, have safely taken to Greece important war supplies in some of the largest convoys ever assembled.

(The British censorship apparently did not permit more direct confirmation of advices from excellent Balkan sources that the first 100,000 men of a British army of 300,000 already have landed on the Greek mainland with all the implements of war.)

The crews of this and other British cruisers, battleships and destroyers were constantly at the "ready," and several times precautionary raid alarms were sounded, but the gigantic flotilla passed from central and eastern Mediterranean ports into the Aegean without incident.

Moved Under Italian Guns

The vessels, including tankers and freighters of every sort, moved at times within a few miles of the Italian batteries on the Dodecanese.

As the ships zigzagged and fanned out through the island-dotted passages known as the German and Italian "bomb alleys," some Axis planes flew nearby, then rocketed away without dropping a bomb.

No Italian surface ships were sighted.

The British suggested that the cost to Germany in destroyed dive-bombers in the attack on the aircraft carrier Illustrious, January 10, apparently had discouraged mass attempts to attack warships from the air. (Allen witnessed that spectacular battle as a passenger aboard the Illustrious.)

In eight cold days with the convoys, I got a first-hand picture of how the British navy operates in these waters which the Italians call their own.

Italians Stay in Port

Some cruisers and destroyers moved ahead, while this warship stayed behind to keep stragglers in line and round up the small craft unable to maintain the speed of the larger vessels in the icy winds and heavy seas.

The free movement of these convoys served as a new and striking illustration of Britain's expressed determination to keep open her channels of transport and communication in these narrow waters, despite Axis threats.

Italian warcraft apparently still were sticking consistently to port, although the British raised the possibility of eventually meeting them at sea. They said the necessity of efforts to strengthen Italian forces in Tripoli and the Dodecanese might force Premier Mussolini to send his fleet out with convoys in the face of the tightening British blockade.

but splendid duties which are the crown of victory."

For his part Winant declared "the American people have now girded themselves" to give to Britain the greatest weapons of war "with the utmost speed, in the greatest volume and with all the skill at their command"—ships, planes, guns, munitions and food.

The promise was supported, almost coincidentally, by W. Averill Harriman, President Roosevelt's special representative, who reported that he had "already given special attention to the questions of shipping and food" for Britain since his arrival last Saturday.

The newest British figures on shipping losses continued to underline the official viewpoint that much help is needed in that direction. The admiralty reported that British and allied merchant shipping losses for the week ended March 9 were 98,232 tons and that revised figures for the previous week showed losses of 141,314 tons.

These figures were contrasted with weekly losses averaging 75,000 tons in February and 53,000 tons in January.

"We must be prepared to face losses until the battle of the Atlantic is won," an authoritative source remarked. "Figures over a large period will determine the issue."

Chees to Be Rationed

The food ministry, disclosing that cheese will be rationed soon, announced that for the first time some persons would receive bigger allotments than others, especially farm workers and miners who require a heavier than average diet.

Prime Minister Churchill's speech was accompanied by a message from King George speaking of Mr. Roosevelt as a "great statesman."

Churchill did not connect his report of the presence of German war vessels on the far side of the Atlantic with an announcement in Washington yesterday that the United States Government had been informed of a German submarine heading for the western Atlantic to attack ships loaded with United States-manufactured war materials.

maneuvers are contemplated, during which corps will be brought into action against other corps and even armies against armies. It is expected that some of these grand maneuvers will be held at the Virginia site.

Funds for purchasing the land will come from a lump-sum appropriation in the fourth supplemental defense bill signed by President Roosevelt on Monday, the War Department said. Officials declared that $1,650,000 has been earmarked for the purpose.

The money will permit an average of $15 an acre to be paid for the land. At the request of the Army, the Department of Agriculture surveyed the Caroline County site and estimated that the land with improvements was worth about $12 an acre.

The 110,000 acres, officials stated, will provide space for training from 70,000 to 80,000 troops at a time. A Feld Artillery firing range is contemplated as part of the project.

While the tract will be designated as the training area for the First Army, troops from all over the Eastern part of the country will use it, it was said.

shipments from the United States to France.

He said that the two cargoes of wheat now awaiting shipment would be sent as a gift of the American Red Cross through an arrangement made by President Roosevelt.

"It is a gift which will be greatly appreciated by the French people," Henry-Haye commented.

After these initial shipments, Henry-Haye said, France expects to pay for future cargoes with its funds here that are now "frozen" by Treasury order.

The two ships, awaiting sailing orders now in New York, will return here for further cargoes, the Ambassador said.

Granting of a $5,000,000 food loan to Finland marks the successful conclusion of negotiations for food supplies undertaken here by Finland almost immediately after its war with Russia.

During the intervening months the Red Cross has sent supplies to the northern republic.

The new sum is in addition to $30,000,000 worth of credits extended to Finland by the bank during the Russian invasion. Of these loans, $22,000,00 have been used up and the remained obligated.

Finland, the only foreign power to make regular payments on its debts to the United States, owes this country $8,269,102 on its post-World War relief loan.

Girls Regard D. C. Draftettes With Envy, Letters Disclose

Washington's program for registering Government girls to dance with selectees is being followed enviously by uniform-conscious girls throughout the country, excerpts from the recreation committee's mail revealed yesterday.

One girl from California wrote that "it's a great idea, but I live away out here on the West Coast—I want to be drafted."

A girl from Texas wants to know why the scheme is not being tried there. "There are lots of girls here," she says.

Other letters offer new ideas for inducting draftettes. Some urge that the senders be hired to supervise the dances. Others offer free services of bands and entertainers. One New York promoter volunteered the use of ten bands and "lots of girl entertainers" in return for publicity.

Only two letters received thus far have been critical, according to Chairman Archie Edwards. One was from a Baptist preacher in Pennsylvania, who said that the plan is "immoral and unsafe for young girls." The other was from a local man, who wrote that his son has been drafted but that he will not allow his daughter to be.

Three dances have been scheduled for this weekend. Friday night 50 Government girls now registered will be taken to the Arlington cantonment for a dance with selectees from Fort Belvoir.

Saturday night, the first 150 girls who are registered in the District Building Saturday afternoon will be taken to other Virginia dances, half to Quantico and half to a barn dance at Alexandria for Fort Belvoir men. (Registration Saturday will be at 1:30 p. m.)

Two shows are scheduled for tomorrow night. The operetta "Katinka" will be presented by the Columbia Light Opera Company in Roosevelt High School and a vaudeville review will be given at Fort Meade by a unit from the Community Center committee.

At a recreation committee meeting Friday, a "No. 1 Dancee" contest suggested by a letter from an anonymous Government girl will be discussed.

and raiders also struck at a town on the southeast coast.

A number of persons were killed and injured and others were caught under the wreckage of buildings when Nazi planes showered a northeast coastal town with high explosive bombs tonight.

The R. A. F. had another busy night Monday and reported sinking a 5,000-ton German supply ship which was being escorted by an antiaircraft ship off the Frisian Islands. The British pilot flew off after machine-gunning all other ships in the convoy, the air ministry said.

The R. A. F. also carried out attacks on Wilhelmshaven, Bremen, Rotterdam and Oldenburg, causing numerous explosions and fires in the dock and industrial areas of Wilhelmshaven and Bremen, both naval bases, the air ministry said. It declared a large fire broke out among oil storage tanks at Rotterdam.

Special Status Asked for Doctors, Dentists in Draft

Declaring that it takes more time to train a doctor or dentist than to build a battleship, Senator Murray (Democrati), of Montana, urged Congress yesterday to amend the Draft Act so as to give special status to doctors, dentists and candidates for those professions.

Murray, appearing before the Senate Military Committee, said that he was "told" that "men well-trained in these professions were inducted into the armed forces and served as ordinary privates."

This, he asserted, was threatening to deprive the Nation of the "benefit of the special skills and services" of those trained persons. The Army alone, Murray declared, will require 3,300 doctors each year for the next five years.

More than 200 young men of draft age packed the corridor outside the hearing room. Spokesmen said they represented the Association of Medical Students and the Council of Hospital Internes.

Balkans after the war," and "there can be no question of an infringement of Yugoslav independence."

A high political source said that the real reason for the delay was three-fold:

1. The Yugoslav government's sharp policy reversal precipitated by the general outcry against any concessions to the Reich and Anglo-Turkish representations at Belgrade.

2. German dismay at the sudden change of affairs and the reintroduction of veiled threats and promises to disunite the suddenly united opposition, comprising the overwhelming majority of the population, the five major political parties, the army, the majority of the cabinet.

3. Premier Dragisha Cvetkovitch's poor health and his natural disinclination to face what might be expected to be an ordeal in Berlin in a shaky physical state.

The exact nature of the new German demands is unknown, but that they were probably extensions of the original demands leadened with new promises, about as follows:

1. The right to send troops across Yugoslavia through the Morava and Vardar Valleys and across Macedonia to Greece and Italian-held Albania.

2. Additional railroad concessions for shipments of munitions to Bulgaria, Albania and eventually Greece.

3. Air bases. It is understood Germany would like air bases but considers that this proposal is out of the question.

The Yugoslav government has rejected these demands but has granted rail rights of way for German hospital trains with the precedent of Greek and Italian hospital trains already passing through this country, and is understood to be discussing the admission of a limited number of German technicians.

Nazi pledges, redeemable "after the war," are said to include absolute guarantees of Yugoslav territorial integrity during any Germandictated peace conference, the gift of Albanian territory north of the River Drin, and a corridor to Salonika or even the outright present of Salonika itself and the revision of frontiers in Istria.

Turks, British Confer

Belgrade (Wednesday), March 19 (AP).—Turkish military leaders were reported conferring early today with both British and Greek army chiefs as Britain's expeditionary force in Greece prepared antiaircraft defenses against an expected German attack.

Soon after dispatches from Ankara reported Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu's trip to Palestine or Egypt to meet British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden or other British officials, a dispatch passed by the military censor at Athens said the governors of Turkish and Grecian Thrace met at Karagatch, a railway station near Adrianople.

The Athens dispatch said Kosta Kotzias, temporary governor of Grecian Thrace, inspected defenses along the Bulgarian-Greek frontier before he met the corresponding official (unnamed in the dispatch) of Turkish Thrace.

Meanwhile, Italy has begged Germany not to strike the Greeks until she herself has one chance at an impressive victory in Albania, various sources indicated tonight.

Likelihood that the Italian request coincided with Germany's own needs was suggested in the comment of one important German here, who recalled that it took three months to consolidate the Nazi position in Rumania.

"We may find we do not have this much time to spare" in Bulgaria, he added, but made the point that the Germans might deliberately wait until a sizable British army had landed in Greece so as to "make its defeat the greatest possible blow to the empire's armed strength."

Berlin Blames Sub Report on Arms Makers

By the Associated Press

Berlin, March 18.—Authorized Germans charged "American war inciters" with responsibility today for reports that a long-distance Nazi U-boat was en route across the Atlantic to American waters.

"We are not so naive as to attack the United States with a U-boat," said these informants, calling the reports an attempt by the munitions industry to create war panic in the United States.

The German informants declared that, while ordinarily no information is given concerning military matters, they let the bars down in this case to brand the reports as "clumsy propaganda" and "a put-up job."

The Nazi high command announced, meanwhile, that a German submarine had sunk five armed merchantmen aggregating 35,300 tons out of a convoy and that the Luftwaffe had sent a 4,000-ton freighter to the bottom in the North Sea east of Newcastle.

German speedboat commanders reported further that 10,000 tons of British merchant ships were sunk Sunday night off the British east coast. The captains of two vessels were said to have been rescued.

The authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland estimated Nazi air strength today at three times that of England.

Dienst also declared an American production of 15,000 warplanes during 1941 "would be a record" and estimated that of this number only 7,500 would be available for export.

But even if Britain receives 7,500 planes from the United States this year, Dienst Aus Deutschland said, "as a result of difference in flying time Britain still would be outnumbered three to one if English production as well as the losses of the two warring nations are the same."

Canal Sought, Lake Ships May Go to British

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Transfer to Britain of as many as possible of the 400 freight ships now plying the Great Lakes is being considered by President Roosevelt, it was learned last night after the President revealed he would call for full speed in digging a St. Lawrence waterway.

The President told his press conference yesterday that he would send legislation to Congress within a few days to start on a portion of the controversial Canada-United States water highway.

The President said he would seek authority for the great engineering task in the form of a bill, requiring only a majority in both houses, rather than as a treaty, which must be confirmed by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. The Senate rejected such a treaty in 1934, voting 46 for and 42 against it.

Many Are Seaworthy

Informed sources revealed that Mr. Roosevelt has his eye on the Great Lakes fleet of cargo ships, many of which could be used to bolster Britain's merchant fleet, which is being depleted by U-boat attacks.

A recent official count showed 500 United States vessels operating on the Great Lakes of which 441 regularly carried freight.

About 150 were of light enough draft to pass through the existing 14-foot channel from the Great Lakes to deep water in the St. Lawrence River. Experts estimated that at least 50 could be put to use in war transport service.

All this could be done, it was said even without a St. Lawrence waterway as proposed by the President.

Construction of a waterway with a 27-foot channel would make it possible to float almost all the Great Lake freight ships out to sea, if they could be spared.

Work Would Be Sped

During the World War, it was recalled, 431 vessels were built on the shores of the Great Lakes and brought out to sea via canals. They averaged 14-foot light draft, 20-foot draft when fully loaded, and were not over 261 feet long, due to the necessity of passing through the Welland and other canal locks.

Informed officials said that President Roosevelt would call for day and night work in construction of the waterway, deeming it a vital defense necessity.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was said, is attracted by the shipbuilding capacity of the Great Lakes area, which has 22 shipbuilding concerns with going plants. These are located at Cleveland, Lorraine, Ohio; Chicago, Superior, Wis.; Buffalo, River Rouge, Mich.; Ashtabula, Ohio; Toledo, Ohio, and Manitowoc, Wis.

Submarines on Ways

Ten submarines are now under construction in the Manitowoc yards.

In addition, there are about 20 other inactive shipyards along the lakeshores.

Experts believe that keels for naval vessels could be laid down at the same time that construction is started on the St. Lawrence Waterway and that by the time the big ditch can take them the ships would be ready to be sailed out to join the country's growing two-ocean Navy.

Mr. Roosevelt at his press conference yesterday indicated that his message to Congress on the subject will ask for development of the seaway as well as a power project.

He remarked that the cost of a dam built for power purposes would be increased only 10 per cent if a lock were included for seaway purposes. Thus, he said, if a power dam cost $200,000,000, a lock would cost $20,000,000 more.

Army Plane Crashes at Bolling Field

PILOTS ESCAPE DEATH—Landing at Bolling Field, D. C., after a routine flight, this high-winged Douglas observation plane crashed yesterday and burned. Lieut. J. H. British Ready For Final Drive In East Africa

By Edward Kennedy.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo (Wednesday), March 19.—A polyglot army described as the largest ever to stand in this region has been assembled here and already equipped with several hundred American planes for Britain's final assault on the remnants of Italy's East African empire.

Troops drawn from Australia, New Zealand, India, British African colonies and other parts of the empire have been augmented by free French, Poles, Czechs and Belgians.

The American planes shortly may be put to their severest test—flying through often sand-laden desert air to bomb Italian troops and positions ahead of British land forces in a general advance on Ethiopia.

Already, the British were taking full advantage of their recapture of Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, from the Italians last Sunday.

From this base on the Gulf of Aden, the mixed troops of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell were spreading out through the colony whose natives were joining the British in the drive toward the northern frontier of Ethiopia.

At the same time, two columns of the British forces pushed deeper into Ethiopia from the south, approaching Negelli, from where a passable road offers a possible route for a march on Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital.

A violent Italian counterattack against the British forces which captured two important peaks overlooking Cheren, Eritrea, has been repulsed with heavy Fascist losses in dead, wounded and prisoners, a British headquarters communique said.

The counterattack followed a successful British drive Sunday, carried out by two columns from the west and southwest after intensive planning for six weeks.

The British, veterans of the campaign in Libya, stormed the heights in a fierce wind, then withstood the Italian attempts to dislodge them.

Eight hundred Italians were reported to have been taken prisoner in forts on top of mountain peaks.

Southeast of the besieged Italian stronghold, British planes dive-bombed and machine-gunned Italian troops and gun positions.

In Rome, it was disclosed that Gen. Orlando Lorenzi, 51, veteran Italian commander, had been killed in action before Cheren. Lorenzi had fought on the Austrian front in the World War and commanded the Italian garrison at Massaua, Eritrea, during Italy's Ethiopian invasion.

A Warmer Today To Usher Spring In Tomorrow

vance, but that made them feel no warmer. The mercury sank in dismay to 15 degrees at 7:35 a. m. as northwest winds knifed through the city.

It was the lowest temperature recorded here this winter, and a low of 16 degrees was forecast for early this morning, but after that winter will definitely be on the way out, the Weather Bureau said.

Yesterday marked the second time on record that the winter's coldest weather has come as late as March. In 1932, the lowest temperatures were recorded March 10.

High winds were blamed for the crash of an Army observation plane at Bolling Field, in which Lieut. J. H. Lackey, 24, the pilot, suffered a sprained knee, and Lieut. Ralph A. Brann, 27, was uninjured. Both are Army Air Corps reserve officers stationed at Middletown, Pa.

The plane was reported to have veered while landing, dug one wing into the ground and then burst into flames.

At Fort Meade, Md., all outdoor military activities ceased when a 40-mile-an-hour wind howled throug camp, carrying clouds of stinging sand with it and ripping part of the roof from division headquarters.

The mercury was driven to 14 and the wind felt its way through window casings and around doors, rendering heating plants next to useless. In many regimental and brigade headquarters, officers and men sat in overcoats and endeavored to manipulate typewriters and pencils with mittened hands.

The 110th Field Artillery, of Pikesville, Md., assembled at 8 a. m. for mass calisthenics, was returned to its barracks without flexing a muscle when the bitter wind and driven sand made calisthenics manifestly impossible.

Indoor classes were held, training films were exhibited and equipment was overhauled against the time when better weather will permit the division again to take to the fields for combat training.

Last night the United States Coast Guard cutter Frederick Lee rescued the crew of 19 of the ocean-going tug T. J. Hooper which went aground off Chincoteague Inlet, on the Atlantic above the mouth of Chasapeake Bay late yesterday. The tug was driven aground in a storm, after anchoring its tow, the barge Ajax, the master of the Frederick Lee reported to Coast Guard headquarters here.

Spring, according to the calendar makers, will breeze into town at 7:21 p. m. tomorrow. And the weather, it is believed, will bear them out.

The Weather Bureau predicted a high of 40 degrees for this afternoon with a steady rise to warmer temperatures tomorrow.

Plant Training Asked to Avert Labor Shortage

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Faced with a warning from Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson that skilled labor is growing short in key defense industries and that millions of new jobs are about to exhaust the available skilled labor supply, 75 industrialists and union leaders yesterday called for immediate expansion of training programs in defense plants.

The management and labor representatives, meeting here in conference sponsored by the Office of Production Management, recommended that the Labor Department apprenticeship program be extended and that in plants and factories working on defense contracts there be a broad expansion of the training-in-industry principle. The conference declared that the primary defense contractor "has a definite responsibility" to assist smaller plants, particularly subcontractors, in setting up in-plant training.

Earlier in the day Patterson told the conference that a statement last October by Secretary of Labor Perkins that the defense program would create 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 new jobs was "conservative" because the estimates did not include labor requirements necessary to meet the new contracts of British and other governments, made possible by the Lend-Lease Act.

Among items of proof of the labor shortage, he cited statistics showing extensive overtime being worked in the machine tool, machine tool accessories, firearms, shipbuilding, ammunition, brass, bronze, copper and electrical machinery industries.

Urging intensive efforts to expand the in-service training program as the most feasible method of meeting the shortage of skilled workers, Patterson warned that the alternative, piracy of skilled labor, "cannot be tolerated."

Homing Pigeons to Be Shipped to Britain

Among the equipment and supplies now being assembled for immediate shipment to Great Britain is a flock of homing pigeons to be put in some kind of messenger service.

The American pigeons do not come under the lend-lease program, however, but are being donated by fanciers in this country. An offer to round up a flock of the birds was made several weeks ago by Thomas E. Black, president of the New York and New Jersey Chapter of American Racing Pigeons Union, and was immediately accepted by British Embassy officials here.

OPM Reveals Expansion of Priority List

Formalization of an expanded priorities system, providing that manufacturers and suppliers give preferential treatment in filling orders for 219 categories on the Army and Navy "Critical Priorities List" and on all the component parts making up the finished products, was announced yesterday by the OPM priorities division.

A major change in the crystallized plan allows the officers of the Army and Navy Munitions Board to assign preference ratings not only to prime contracts and first subcontracts, but to all other subcontracts, and to all parts needed for the production of the finished article.

The regulations, announced by Priorities Director E. R. Stettinius, jr., also provide that the Munitions Board may assign preferred ratings to British and Canadian contracts, and that similar priorities may be affixed to orders of the Maritime Commission, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Coast Guard and National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

All Parts Included

The thousands of products under the categories on the critical list, heretofore never made generally public, spell out, in effect, the scarcer items in the inventory of necessities for modern mechanized warfare. They range from diamond cutting tools to "ships, all types," and include all of the parts going into each.

All classes of aircraft are included, as are major classifications of optical and precision instruments, valuable tools of all sorts, all types of guns and ammunition, brass, steel and aluminum forgings and castings, special telephones and telegraphs, most of the alloy steels and all-inclusive categories of aluminum, magnesium, nickel, tungsten, tin and zinc.

Among the more unusual items on the list are castor oil, balloons, ambulances, cipher devices and machines, chemical protective clothing, cooking outfits, demustardizing equipment, floating drydocks, impregnite, pyrotechnics, toxic smoke and equipment for its use.

Net effect of the regulations, observers believe, is that defense demands will receive first call on all of the Nation's raw materials, finished products and production equipment in those fields where scarcity of any sort is threatening.

Navy Chief Warns Of Spy Radiomen On Merchant Ship

The Navy's chief radio officer has warned Congres that it is "urgently necessary to get rid of spy operators" in the American merchant marine.

In a statement submitted to a House committee considering legislation to control subversive activities at sea, made public yesterday, Rear Admiral S. C. Hooper, representing the chief of naval operations, said that the Navy "strongly favors any legislation which will place loyal (radio) operators on all ships of our merchant marine."

"The history of the present war is full of examples of the effectiveness of the Fifth Column radio operator," Hooper said, adding that on "many occasions" shipmasters had been deceived by false messages and had diverted their course toward an enemy ship and destruction.

U. S. Eagles In Britain Give Air Show

By J. Norman Lodge
Associated Press Staff Writer

A British Airport, March 18.—The American Eagle Squadron strutted its stuff for visiting correspondents today in a breath-taking air show intended to make clear that this all-American unit is ready for combat duty.

At present, however, it is assigned to activities covered by that all-embracing word "operational."

The fliers, hopping into their Hurricane fighter planes, went through intricate precision maneuvers, roaring along wingtip to wingtip at more than 300 miles an hour.

They did vertical climbs, nose to tail, close-ranked power dives and swoops and dips and level flight hardly higher than the reporters' heads.

They went through an entire series of maneuvers necessary to actual combat, and their squadron leader, William E. G. Taylor, once of Fort Leavenworth, declared at the finish:

"They are pilots; and in my opinion excellent pilots. They have gone through exceptional training as a unit and are ready to take the air as fighters at a moment's notice."

All of them—16 at the moment—go about with the top buttons of their tunics unfastened, for that is the sign of a fighter pilot here.

Although they have not officially been on fighter duty, three of the group have been killed on active duty.

Reporters weer told that in all there were 46 American pilots available, and when the number reaches 50 a second Eagle squadron composed entirely of Americans may be formed.

The "baby" of the outfit is Gregory Austin Daymond, of San Francisco, now 20; the oldest active flying officer is Taylor, who is 35.

Taylor was described by a British liaison officer as "a damned good flier and a man who knows more about planes than any man I ever saw."

The son of a United States Army officer, he was released from the fleet air arm to command the Eagles.

For the benefit of the visitors, Taylor demonstrated his marksmanship by emptying his eight machine guns into a target.

The ammunition belt in each gun is loaded with tracer bullets near the end, so that a pilot can tell when his supply is running low.

Contract for 25 Ships Let to Carolina Firm

The first of seven contracts for the construction of 200 merchant ships of simplified design in the President's emergency program, has been cleared by the Office of Production Management and awarded to the North Carolina Shipbuilding Co., of Wilmington, N. C., the Maritime Commission announced today.

The contract is for 25 ships at a total estimated base cost of $37,500,000. Delivery of the first vessel is called for within 287 days and all 25 vessels are to be delivered within 731 days from the date of the contract which was signed Friday, March 14.

Italians' Attack Repelled, Greeks Say

Athens, March 18 (AP).—Greek military authorities announced tonight the repulse of repeated local Italian attacks in Albania and the capture of 165 additional prisoners.

The Greek spokesman said the prisoners informed the Greeks that the Fascists had suffered heavily in their desperate attacks of last week and now were busy reorganizing their defensive works.

He repeated assertions that prisoners reported discontent among Italian officers because of recent failures.

"Our artillery and mortar fire caused much damage to the enemy positions," the spokesman said.

Invasion Is a Matter Of Hours Japanese Says

Tokyo (Wednesday), March 19 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Kiyofuku Okamoto, just returned from Berlin, said today he thinks the landing of German forces on the British Isles was "now only a matter of hours."

Okamoto was attached to the Japanese Embassy in Berlin.

agree to dictatorial unity until our boys are in the war."

Published hearings of the committee meanwhile quoted Administration witnesses for the bill as follows:

Secretary of State Hull warned of "the magnitude of the dangers which confront us," and admonished: "We must strive with all our will, all our power and all our resources. To be content with less would be to invite disaster. No people in history have had such an opportunity to learn from the tragic example of others. We cannot stint and we must not falter."

$1,682,000 Paid

Budget Director Harold D. Smith testified that British orders here total $2,700,000,000, of which $1,682,000,000 has been paid. All goods delivered have been paid for. Remaining liabilities will be met from existing dollar resources, but Britain does not have funds adequate to meet additional coommitments. None of the proposed $7,000,000,000 appropriation will be used to pay for orders placed by Britain here before passage of the lend-lease bill.

William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, testified that since June a total of 784 plants have been made available or are preparing for defense production. He said $1,574,000,000 was being spent by the Government on plants for production of material worth $12,600,000,000. The British have financed 61 plants, he said, and 421 private plants have been certified for $393,000,000 of Government assistance.

Secretary of War Stimson testified that 95 per cent of military equipment being manufactured for the British could be used by the Army "in case Britain should fall." The other 5 per cent, he said, represented purely British types of materials, but facilities for manufacturing these could be transformed for American use in about two months.

Secretary of the Navy Knox likewise testified that naval materials being manufactured for the British, "with minor exceptions, are also suitable for our own use should circumstances, when they are completed, dictate that they should be retained."

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief off staff, testified that the aid program would in no way endanger our national defense. Marshall said that "on the contrary I think that as we now have matters arranged, the result will be to our advantage."

20 Per Cent Transfer Privilege

As reported, the bill earmarks the $7,000,000,000 into the ten categories recommended by the President, with a 20 per cent flexible transfer privilege between categories.

Language was incorporated empowering the President to withhold articles for this country's own use when he deems it necessary for national defense.

The committee inserted a section prohibiting payment of any part of the sum in salary or wages to "any person who advocates, or who is a member of an organization that advocates, the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence."

Amendments rejected by the committee included an effort by Lambertson to trim the outlay to $5,000,000,000; another by Representative Houston (Democrat), of Kansas, to boost it to $10,000,000,000; and another by Representative Rich (Republican), of Pennsylvania, to cut it in half.

Aside from attempts to cut the bill, none of the major amendment efforts due in the House today strike dangerously at the objects of the bill.

Outstanding among these is a motion by Representative Vorys (Republican), of Ohio, providing the President shall obtain security "if available" for the articles loaned. Another would require all of the $7,000,000,000 to be spent in this country and a third specifies that the appropriation shall be limited to a two-year period. Administration assurances have been given that the President intends to do all of these things, but leaders are opposing all rigid restrictions.

While leaders estimate the final opposition vote below 50 the opposition was vocal and frequent attacks on the measure rang through the debate.

Representative Tinkham (Republican), of Massachusetts, charged the bill "will bring poverty, chaos and ultimately revolution to the United States."

Representative Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, called the bill "a second invitation to Hitler to fight," and Representative Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota, declared the United States would be in the war "in 60 or 90 days."

Representative Taber, while indorsing the $7,000,000,000 aid appropriation in the form asked by the Administration, launched into a criticism of the President and called on him to "end labor racketeering" and interunion strikes, to head up defense procurement under one man and "to get rid" of the NLRB and "those in his Cabinet who are incapableo f handling their positions."

Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, one of the leaders in the fight on the lend-lease bill, said he would support the $7,000,000,000 appropriation "because the policy is fixed and it is the law."

Woodrum in his opening plea told the House that the program was designed first and foremost for peace, but that "sometimes the only way to retain peace and domestic tranquillity is by fighting for it."

Joseph Vanderbilt Reported Missing; Police Not Worried

New York, March 18 (INS).—Socially prominent, multimillionaire Joseph B. Vanderbilt has been mysteriously missing from his home and office since March 7, relatives reported to the police today.

Fearful for his safety, they asked help in locating Vanderbilt, who is a cousin of Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and a brother of R. T. Vanderbilt. The missing man, according to Special Attorney General John Harlan Amen, of Brooklyn, has been suffering from a severe attack of grippe and influenza, and left for a Southern vacation several days ago.

Amen said that Vanderbilt's family's apprehension was not felt by himself. Vanderbilt had said he expected to stop off in Washington "to take care of a tax matter," Amen asserted.

Fewer Chauffeurs, More Policemen, Young Demands

If the District police force "would get rid of some of these clerks and chauffeurs" there might not be so great a need for more police on the force Commissioner J. Russell Young said yesterday on a visit to police headquarters.

The Commissioner instructed Inspector I. H. Edwards to clear the police property yard at South Capitol and G Streets for a proposed playground, it was understood. Inspector Edwards is acting Chief in the absence of Maj. Ernest W. Brown who is in Florida.

In his criticism of the "clerks and chauffeurs" Commissioner Young referred to policemen used at headquarters in clerical positions and as drivers for headquarters cars.

two other plants supplying materials to the Fisher works.

A. F. L. electrical workers threatened a strike which would cut off electrical power vital to industrial plants in the St. Louis metropolitan area filling more than $100,000,000 worth of armament contracts. Night workers at three Union Electric Company plants authorized a walkout in protest against discharge of 18 men at the company's Venice, Ill., plant. Day-shift workers were scheduled to vote on the strike issue late last night.

Miners to Continue

Rep. Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, charged in the House that the strike at the Allis-Chalmers plant in Milwaukee was holding up powder production at the new Hercules plant at Radford, Va., because necessary machinery could not be released.

It was Merrill Meigs, chief of the OPM air division, who reported to the House Judiciary Committee that strikes in three aircraft centers are delaying needed planes. He appeared in connection with legislation aimed at curtailing labor stoppages in defense industries.

The three principal centers named by Meigs were the Universal Cyclops Steel Corporation, Bridgeville, Pa.; the Harvill Aircraft plant, Los Angeles, and Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

"The Cyclops plant," he declared, "is one of the two principal sources of supply for special steel for parts of critical importance in plane production. The industry is desperately short of propellors. The supply of material for these propellors is low."

The Harvill Co., Meigs said, has developed a particular technique in die casting and furnishes castings to practically all of the Pacific Coast airplane companies.

"Therefore," Meigs said, "I am sorry that I must tell you now that we have revised our schedule of deliveries on planes which carry these castings."

Meigs said he had been told by Donald Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft concern, that his company would have to stop production of some planes this week as a result of the Harvill stoppage.

Officials were loath to discuss plans being considered to bring about resumption of work at Wright Field, where A. F. L. construction workers have struck against employment of several C. I. O. men on a separate installation project.

Nevertheless, it was conceded that very grave concern was felt over the situation, and while it was said no ultimatum had gone forward to the strikers, when action is taken, they said, it will be very definite.

Hope was expressed, however, that today might bring a settlement.

Hammond, Jr., Sues to Prevent State Department From Dismissing Him

Department's division of foreign service personnel.

Hammond, the complaint said, took office after passing written and oral examinations, served in Vienna and Leipzig and was ordered back to the Foreign Officers' Training School, where he was graduated in June, 1940. Then he served in the division of cultural relations until December 28, 1940, when he was placed on leave of absence, which still continued.

Berle sent for Hammond, the complaint said, last October 18 and told him he had better resign because of the stories about the President and the foreign agent. Berle refused to say who reported the charges, the petition declared.

On October 31, 1940, the complaint said, Berle told Hammond that the story about the President was verified by statements to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Berle was quoted as saying Hoover got his information from Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., and Vanderbilt's sister, Mrs. Robert L. Stevens.

One of Hammond's exhibits was an affidavit of Mrs. Stevens to the effect that she never saw Hammond mimic the President or heard of his doing so.

On October 31, the complaint said, Berle told Hammond that he was investigating Hammond's relations with Miss Stein, but that this was not taken seriously. Hammond promised to disprove both stories.

Without knowing who gave the information against him, the complaint said, Hammond submitted evidence of the falsity of the statements. Nevertheless, Berle and Shaw proceeded against him "out" of personal malice," he contends.

On February 20, according to the petition, Shaw told Hammond he must resign or charges would be filed against him and he surely would be dismissed on March 6. Shaw and Berle still intend to hold a hearing and dismiss Hammond (the complaint said).

Meanwhile, on February 26, the complaint said, Shaw informed Hammond that he was placed on "probationary status" because he had been given a rating of "unsatisfactory." Hammond was ordered to Montreal, on probation, and Shaw told Hammond there was no use to fight the charges because the Board of Foreign Service was resolved to get rid of Hammond, whether the charges were true or not.

Among Hammond's exhibits was a 13-page affidavit he said was submitted to Shaw, in which he denied both charges. He recounted taking Miss Stein to lunch in Vienna, having her aid in an effort to get evidence of sale of faked passport visas, receiving from her $100, a gold watch, a family heirloom, and having her take a personal letter to a girl friend in New York. He said he wrote to Miss Stein three times from Leipsig and in March, 1940, looked her up in New York and gave her back the watch and $100.

AIR'S FREE— so why not use it?

GETTING right down to it, one reason why you get as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon from a 1941 FIREBALL Buick with Compound Carburetion is that this engine is supplied with more air.

For it is a mixture of gasoline and air that gives you power.

A single carburetor, no matter how many jets it has, can handle only so much air—which is nearly always too little for full-out, high-power performance.

But two carburetors that function as needed, as is the case in Compound Carburetion, can meet any fuel-supply need from low-speed to heavy-power use—and always provide a well-balanced mixture.

They can double the air supply as well as the gasoline feed—and that's something you can't do in any single-carburetor car.

So Compound Carburetion leads to big savings in fuel costs.

You get as much as 800 miles for the gas-cost of 700 in earlier Buicks of the same size.

It also provides a walloping big bank of reserve power, which means an up-and-at-'em lift and surge that's nothing short of thrilling to experience.

And you can have Compound Carburetion, you know, on any 1941 Buick—it's only a few dollars extra on the swell big SPECIAL pictured here, and standard equipment on all other models.

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $915 for the Business Coupe

Farmers Told To Hike Prices, Army Asserts

By the Associated Press

A War Department civilian official told the House Military Affairs Committee yesterday "interference" by Defense Commission and Agriculture Department representatives had increased the cost of land being bought by the Army in a number of instances.

John J. O'Brien, in charge of the War Department's real estate branch, testified that while the Army was trying to buy land for its Wilmington (Ill.) shell-loading plant and for the new proving ground in Indiana, representatives of the Defense Commission and Agriculture Departments had gone into those areas and told farmers they were entitled to boost prices for their land to recompense them for "disturbance" and other damage.

John D. Biggers told Senators, meanwhile, that a special "plant site committee" had been appointed in the Office of Production Management with "veto powers" over location of new factories and defense plants.

Centralization Protested

Members of both the Senate and House have been protesting about centralization of defense industries in a few areas.

Biggers, director of production in the OPM, said that Director General William S. Knudsen, Associate Director Sidney Hillman and Secretaries of War and Navy had agreed upon appointment of the following five members of the committee:

Donald M. Nelson, director of purchases, OPM; former Gov. Clifford Townsend of Indiana, special adviser on agricultural and labor matters; Ell Oliver, of Ohio, special assistant on labor relations; E. F. Johnson, of Michigan, chief, aircraft, ordnance and tools branch of the production division of the OPM, and S. R. Fuller, of New York and Tennessee, chairman, production planning board, OPM.

Biggers appeared before a Senate Appropriation subcommittee, which later approved a $3,446,000,000 naval appropriations bill, the largest peacetime outlay for the fleet.

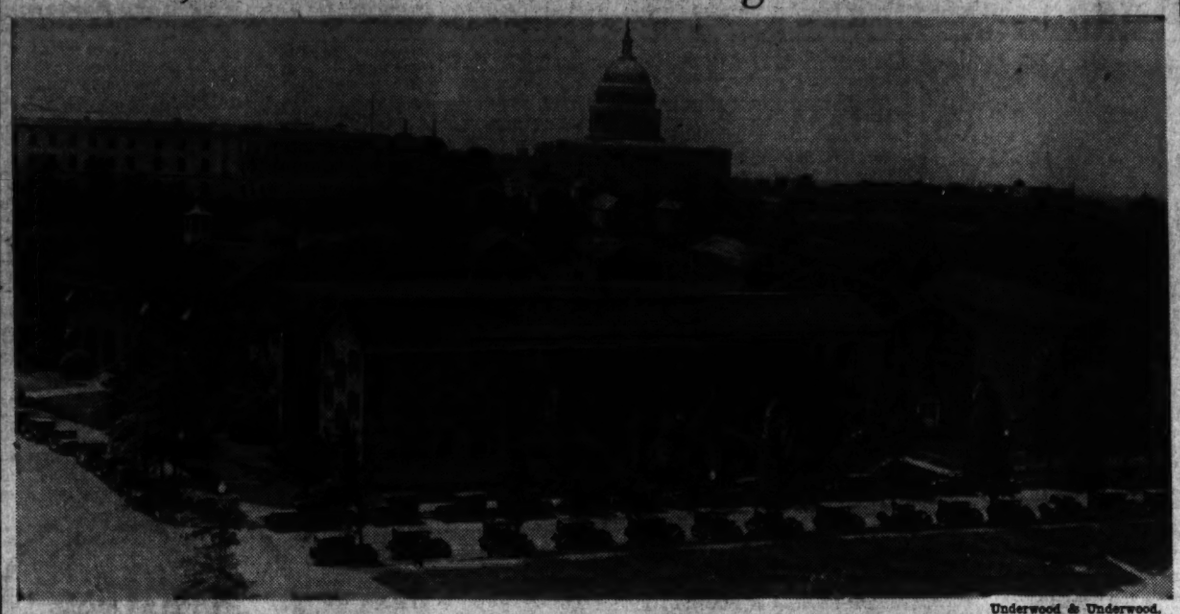
1,800 Women Lived Here During World War I



Underwood & Underwood.

REMEMBER THESE DORMITORIES?—Approval yesterday of a 1,000-unit dormitory project to house single women working in Government offices here, brought back memories of these stucco and frame buildings near Union Station Plaza which housed 1,800 women Federal workers during World War 1. At that time they were called Government hotels. Torn down in 1929, the dormitories stood in the area extending from Union Station Plaza to the Capitol, now a parkway containing a reflecting pool and fountain the Defense Homes Corporation, a Federal Loan Agency subsidiary. In this case, construction would be of a permanent character, costing from $1,200 to $2,000 per unit and requiring from 10 to 12 months to erect.

If it is decided, however, that the costs of the project cannot be met by the proposed rentals, it will be financed from Defense Housing Division's emergency funds and built as a temporary structure. Under this plan, the costt would range from $350 to $600 a unit and the time required for construction would be reducted to thre or four months, Palmer said.

Unlik the ugly and shoddy Union Plaza dormitories, long a scar on the Capital's landscape, the projected shelters, even if of temporary construction, are expected to be far superior to the old ones both in appearance and comfort, Palmer indicated. They will have parlors and lounges, where the residents may entertain guests or spend leisure time and may include eating facilities, although this latter aspect is still undetermined.

Even without the influx of new Government workers coming to the Capitol for emergency and defense jobs, Palmer said, the steady normal growth in the number of Federalemployes would make a permanent women's dormitory desirable. He cited the experience of the Y. W. C. A. Strong Residence, which has a long waiting list, as indicative of the demand for this sort of shelter by unmarried women employes.

Dean Suspends College Paper At Johns Hopkins

Baltimore, March 18 (AP).—Indefinite suspension of the Johns Hopkins University campus publication, The News Letter, was disclosed today amid conflicting statements by Dean Edward W. Berry and members of the paper's staff.

Dean Berry said he had ordered suspension pending a financial audit of the paper's affairs. John Higham, one of the student editors, countered that the suspension was an attempt "to stifle the independent critical attitude" of the publication.

Higham denied that the paper was $200 "in the red." Dean Berry said "the paper has the poorest business staff in the history of the thing. . . . In the face of our attempts to correct the situation, the staff has been alibiing about 'freedom of the press.'"

Col. Donovan Reports to Roosevelt Today On 25,000-Mile Survey of War Situation

By Inez Robb

International News Service Staff Writer

New York, March 18.—Col. William J. Donovan, home from a confidential White House mission to Europe, Africa and Asia Minor, will spend tomorrow in Washington revealing to President Roosevelt the political, military, diplomatic and economic secrets gathered on his 25,000-mile whirlwind journey abroad.

Donovan, who has been playing the role of Col. Edward M. House to the present Administration, flew into New York today aboard the Yankee Clipper. The World War commander of New York's Fighting Sixty-ninth refused to discuss any aspect of his trip with reporters, except to deny the widespread report that he had conferred with Gen. Weygand in Africa.

"I didn't see Gen. Weygand," Donovan declared.

But he has seen more of Europe, Africa and Asia Minor than any other American observer. He will be able to give the President first-hand information on the two most delicate situations in the present conflict: Ireland and the Balkans.

In Eire, Donovan conferred with Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, and in the Balkans with every first rank statesman, including King Boris of Bulgaria. If any man is able to give the President a clew to the tenuous situation in Ireland and in the Balkans, Donovan is the one.

Saw Interplay of Forces

"I have spent many hours on the sea, in the air and in the desert," Donovan said in his brief statement to the press. "I have seen the interplay of various forces, economic military, political and moral.

"I have seen a lot of modern warfare, and think that from this unusual vantage point I have learned something of benefit to American defense."

The colonel was one of 27 passengers arriving in the Yankee Clipper from Lisbon.

The passenger list also included Frank Aiken, Irish minister for defense coordination, here to buy military supplies for Eire, and Eelco Nicholas van Kleffans, Netherlands foreign minister on his way to the Dutch East Indies. Mme. van Kleffans accompanied her husband.

Van Kleffans said he would go at once to Washington to "pay my respects to President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull."

When asked if he would discuss future defense of the Dutch East Indies with Mr. Roosevelt, Van Kleffans smilingly replied:

"That depends upon the President.

Sees No Imminent Danger

"We accept protection from no one!" he stoutly added. "I see no imminent danger to the Dutch East Indies. We and the Japanese have had three and a half centuries of peace. I see no cause for anything else. I see no signs that give me any anxiety."

The Dutch Minister added, however, that he believed "English, American and Dutch interests are parallel."

"So far in history, dictators have always played a losing game against the Dutch," he pointed out. "Ask Phillip II of Spain or Louis XIV of France or Napoleon, and I don't see why in a year or two you can't ask Hitler."

Van Kleffans told an interesting story of Dutch collaboration with English forces. He said that two new Dutch cruisers had just been put into commission.

"At the time of the German attack on Holland, the two cruisers could just be floated," he said. "We got tugs and floated them to England. Since then they have been completed in English dock yards and are now in commission.

"We Dutch have a reputation for many things, and one of them is for stubbornness," he said when asked to verify reports that Dutch resistance to Nazi domination was constant and shrewd in the motherland.

A big man with a smudge of black mustache, Gen. Aiken is minister for coordination of defense in the De Valera cabinet and thus head of the army against which he once fought.

"I've come to explore the whole question of war materials and other supplies," he said. "We can man an army of 200,000 trained men, but we can't equip it. We need everything. I'm going to try to get it."

Asked how many planes he sought for Ireland, how many tanks, how many guns, the former chief of staff of the Irish Republican Army said he couldn't itemize Ireland's needs.

Editor Here From Shanghai Doubts Japan Will Fight U. S.

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Staff Writer

Randall Gould former editor of the Shanghai Evening Post, thinks the odds are against Japan risking a "suicidal" war with the United States.

GOULD

Gould, who began packing a gun in Shanghai after the Japanese-dominated Nanking government had placed him on a blacklist, is here on a visit and is stopping at the Roger Smith Hotel. On his way home from the Orient, where he has spent 21 of his 42 years, Gould stopped off in Japan and made a survey of sentiment.

"Notwithstanding Foreign Minister Matsuoka's visit to Berlin," Gould said "Japan will never play the role of puppet for Germany. There is a feeling among Japanese that Hitler is trying to use them. A great many of them, I found are now sorry that Japan ever entered into the three-power pact with Germany and Italy.

Says Navy Wants Peace

"Matsuoka is a prima donna, a man who loves the limelight where there was a possibility of his getting into the headlines.

"But I do think that there is a solid burden of opinion in Japan that peace with America should be preserved. This probably would include the Japanese navy, which is perhaps better informed than the army, and which, after all, would have to do the fighting with America.

"Barring the always possible accident, I think the odds are that there won't be any war between the United States and Japan."

Always Faces Door

Born in Minnesota and raised in Montana, Gould went to the Far East as a young reporter. He was in Tokyo when the earthquake struck there in 1923. The following year he went to Pekin, and has since spent most of his time in China.

As editor of the Shanghai Evening Post, he pursued a strong pro-China, pro-American policy. This led to his being blacklisted, along with six other Americans and Britons and 87 Chinese newspapermen, by the Japanese puppet government of Nanking. Three of the Chinese were murdered, one of them while eating in a restaurant with his back to the door.

Thereupon Editor Gould—and also Mrs. Gould—began carrying a gun, and he made it a point always to face the door when he was in restaurants. He came to the United States to handle business matters for C. V. Starr, owner of the Shanghai Evening Post.

Dies Assails Delay in Action Against Aliens

By Hedley Donovan

Post Staff Writer

Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, yesterday rebuked the Justice Department for "too much delay" in prosecuting foreign agents for failure to register and announced that he will ask the convening of a grand jury here to receive evidence from his committee. The evidence, he said, will prove foreign control over the German-American Bund, Communist Party and other organizations.

"The Department of Justice did not see fit to act" on his suggestion two years ago that the bund, Communist Party "and other foreign-controlled organizations" be prosecuted for failure to register, on the basis of evidence gathered by the committee, the chairman of the House investigation into un-American activities asserted.

Justice Department officials last night declined to reply directly to Dies' charges, but pointed out that eight indictments have been obtained, with guilty pleas entered to six of them, since enactment in 1938 of the law requiring registration of foreign agents. All the men indicted were charged with serving as agents of Russia.

Dies, in renewing his feud with Attorney General Jackson, said he would be "very glad to cooperate in every possible way" with the Justice Department but that it was now his duty "as a citizen" to institute proceedings.

"This whole question must come to a showdown," Dies said.

Besides the bund and the Communist Party, Dies named the International Workers Order, the International Labor Defense and the Workers Alliance as organizations which his committee has proved subject to foreign control.

Two German citizens accused of violating the registration law pleaded not guilty yesterday in District Court before Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

They were Manfred Zapp, American manager of Transocean News Service, and Guenther Tonn, one of his assistants, whom the Government charges with disseminating Nazi propaganda. Bond of $5,000 was set for Zapp and $3,000 for Tonn.

Robert Sweetwood, Fireman, Injured

Fireman Robert Sweetwood, 35, of No. 13 Engine Company, suffered a spinal injury yesterday when he jumped from a hose wagon as it approached an automobile fire at Third and G Streets Southeast, and was struck by a streetcar.

At Emergency Hospital he was treated for lacerations and abrasions of the head and body and contusions and possible fracture of the spine.

Sweetwood lives at 906 South Oak Street, Arlington, Va. W. J. Ashburn, of 902 Eleventh Street Northeast, was listed as operator of the streetcar.

Survey of Va. Schools Shows 29,721 Students

Richmond, Va., March 18 (AP).—A State Chamber of Commerce survey showed Virginia colleges, universities and private schools had a total enrollment of 29,721 students this year, a "substantial increase over last year."

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

Police See Red As Trolleys Jam At Turn to Mall

The Capital Transit Co.'s new service to the Southwest Mall struck another snag yesterday—at least in the eyes of police and traffic control officials.

A power failure when the line opened Monday forced thousands of Government workers to walk to their offices. But a more permanent development has traffic regulators talking to themselves and transit officials eyeing their budget.

To install the Mall service, a new switch was built at Seventh Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. It permits street cars to turn south on Seventh Street from the avenue and west on the avenue from Seventh. However, the tracks, which were laid more than seven years ago, are situated so that two cars can not make the turn simultaneously, it was pointed out.

According to Inspector Arthur E. Miller, police traffic chief, the tracks on the turn are so close together that only one trolley at a time can make the swing south or west.

"And it has created a real headache for us," he added.

During rush hours, he said, extra details of police are necessary to keep traffic moving. On a single change of traffic lights, only two cars in each direction can pass, Miller said.

As a result, the streetcars back up beyond Eighth Street on the Avenue and more than a block down Seventh Street and hold up other traffic, he reported.

Yesterday, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer informed Capital Transit officials that "something must be done" to remedy the trouble.

R. H. Dalglish, chief engineer of the Capital Transit Co., admitting to The Post there is no car clearance on the turn, said the new route operates over tracks laid some years ago.

"It would be quite a job to rip up those tracks and relay them," he said. "I think the problem will iron out all right. It will just take a little time to get used to it."

He suggested a change in the timing of traffic lights at the intersection so as to permit longer intervals for streetcars to turn. This, he said, would "help materially."

"We are keeping a careful watch at the corner," Dalglish declared, "and I am certain we can work out something and not have to tear up those tracks."

City College Tutor, Ex-Communist, Held for Perjury

New York, March 18 (AP).—The office of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey disclosed that Morris U. Schappes, City College English tutor named as a Communist in testimony before a legislative committee investigating subversive activities in the city's schools, had been arrested following his indictment today on a four-count charge of first degree perjury in connection with his testimony before the committee.

Schappes, the first teacher awaiting trial under the resolution, admitted that he was a former member of the Communist Party.

Schappes, 33, a native of Russia, was suspended Saturday and was awaiting trial on a board of higher education resolution adopted early today under which municipal college faculty members belonging to Nazi, Communist or Fascist groups would be ousted.

Norton Opposes Soothing Japan

Robert Norton, associate editor of China Today, told more than 150 persons last night that appeasement of Japan would be "fatal" to the welfare of democracy in the Far East.

He addressed a meeting held at Turner's Arena under the auspices of the American Peace Mobilization.

Other speakers included George Murphy, administrative secretary of the National Negro Congress; Sarah Montgomery, secretary-treasurer of the Washington Peace Mobilization; Eugene P. Connally, of New York, and Carl Bradley, of Baltimore. Hudson Wells, president of the Washington organization, presided.

Louis Resnick Dies; Ex-U. S. Press Aide

New York, March 19 (AP).—Louis Resnick, 49, public relations counsel and former newspaperman, died at his home today after a long illness.

He served as industrial relations director of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness for 15 years, was director of public information and public education with the Welfare Council of New York, and in 1935 went to Washington at the invitation of John G. Winant, then head of the Social Security Board, to set up and direct the information service of that agency.

BEVERLY BLAYNE, singer with Jack Coffey's band, opening in Wardman's new Burgundy Room tomorrow eve

"WINDMILL" IN MAYFAIR. No less a character than Tubby O'Farrell, known professionally as "The Musical Windmill" and his quartet will arrive in Mayfair on April 7. This crew has a great reputation for starting tornados of good times, and for generally "going to town" with trick rhythm. To give you an idea, Tubby plays the trumpet with his right hand, the cymabls and tomtom with his left, manipulates the off-beat cymbal with his feet. The group has played opposite many big dance bands . . . The O'Farrellites should be worthy successors to Paul Kain's Foursome who have made numerous friends during their months in Mayfair, and who will later be incorporated into Paul's Glen Echo band.

Just married, Anne Kless, of New York's Stork Club, and young movie producer Bob Rodenburgh, were serenaded to a fare-you-well the other eve by Dick Koens' band in the Mayflower Lounge. Anne and Bob are both Congressmen's children, and lived in Washington for many years.

PARTY-OF-THE-WEEK will be the opening of Wardman's new Burgundy Room tomorrow eve and the simultaneous debut of Jack Coffey's "Rockin' Rhythm" orchestra with full floor show. This is a double-header with a vengeance. The big new Burgundy Room, a symphony in silver-and-wine, is being opened a day ahead of schedule forthe Coffey symposium of dance music and vaudeville, a diversion pattern new to Washington. . . . There's a story in back of this swift change. Tommy Marvin's band who'll say goodby tonight to their friends in Wardman's Metronome Room, has been hit by the draft, and hard. Maestro Marvin and four of his musicians will leave Washington to report to their local boards.

LINA D'ACOSTA, Mexican firecracker, has just opened a singing engagement at the Silver Fox. She knows hundreds of authentic and unusual Mexican folk songs, accompanies herself brilliantly on the guitar, and has been starred in many South American and Riviera resorts.

ELSIE, THE COQUETTISH COW, is making many conquests at the Lotus. Glamorous Elsie is introduced by pretty Edith Carroll who explains that she's the "farmer's daughter" and that Elsie is Ferdinand's girl friend. Beribboned Elsie ogles ringsiders, dances until she collapses, but draws the line at giving milk . . . Customers have a grand opportunity to romp at Lotus this week. The colleens of the St. Patrick's Revue bid one and all to come out and dance an Irish reel with them, and they won't take no for an answer.

Joe Lee, now dancing in the Shoreham floor show, has applied for duty with the Canadian air force, expects to be called shortly. He's a graduate pilot, but no Canadian. He hails from Wheeling, W. Va.

PORTRAIT OF AN ARTIST. Lee Miller, the personable lad who's sketching folks at Madrillon, is a University of Michigander, says it's the finest school in the world because it's so "near" to Ann Arbor and its college girls. At 16 he won a short story prize from Scribner's. It upset him so he's not been able to write a story since. He's worked in all sorts of places including a flour mill and Ricardo's in Chicago. He arrived in Washington two weeks ago with $1.75, is doing nicely, thank you.

A ONE MAN CIRCUS is Al Schenk, newly arrived emcee at Paul Young's. He's fresh from Miami's Mayfair where he's been taking the place apart all season. To say that Al is a song-dance-comedy man is an anemic description of his talents. You'll really have to see him!

ABOUT THE GIRLS. Ariel of Ciro's Famous Village, has the most soulful and melancholy eyes. But there's nothing melancholy about the way she flutters herself in la conga . . . Eileen George, of the Anchor Room, goes home to Baltimore after her last song on Saturday night, spends Sunday eves studying the entertainment in Baltimore night spots . . . The contagious smile of violinist Jane Marlow is a pretty high light in Restaurant "823." She "smiles with her eyes" . . . Eve Knight of the King Cole Room has a practically magical technique with a "mike." And that's a trick worth knowing. . . . Lola of the Troika, personally creates those luxurious and colorful costumes she wears in her Russian dances.

NIGHTINGALE MEMORIES. Maestro Rodd Raffell's first band was styled after Guy Lombardo's. It's on the Tommy Dorsey ride now . . . Vocalist Tommy Lawrence sang with Hal Kemp's band a few seasons ago . . . The Nightingale band was a tremendous success at Georgetown's Junior Prom.

MUSIC YOU'LL REMEMBER. Carmen Cavallaro's inspired pianoing of "Rhapsody in Blue" in the Cosmos Room. It fills 13 enchanted minutes . . . "Pavane," as played by Pete Macias' orchestra in the Lounge Riviera. The arrangement, made by trumpeter Art Humes, is sleek as a blackbird's wing . . . The xylophoning of "Flight of the Bumble Bee" in 73 seconds flat by Val Eddy in the Casino Royal revue . . . The double-piano version of Ravel's "Bolero" being played in the Neptune Room by Bob and Bertie Hellman. It's a study in low-keyed vibrancy . . . "Coral Moon," one of the loveliest of South Seas numbers, now being played with complete charm by Don Carper's Four in Cafe Caprice.

RIVER BEND has been doing a turn-away business, especially over week-ends. And no wonder. It's located within easy driving distance on the beautiful Mount Vernon Boulevard, George Stein's dance music is colorful and bright, the dinners are something swell, the atmosphere cordial.

BANDSMEN'S UNIFORMS. The Plymouth's musicians, headed by Bob Strazzny, are going to blossom out in lush gypsy attire with white satin blouses and red jackets studded with brass buttons . . . Maestro Milton Davis of the Rainbow Room is going through his annual seance of picking summer uniforms for the orchestra. Tell him your preference.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

96th Annual Statement to its Policyholders

THE management of a life insurance company has a primary responsibility to its policyholders to invest the funds of the company and to conduct its affairs so that the company will be able promptly to meet all its contractual obligations to policyholders and beneficiaries when they fall due. The discharge of that responsibility carries with it a great opportunity for service to the public at large.

Because of the complexities of the present economic situation growing out of the critical period through which the world is passing, this service to the public has now become of great importance in the economic and social structure of the country. Your management is acutely aware of its responsibility to its policyholders. So also, it recognizes that much public benefit will necessarily follow from its performance of that responsibility.

Nearly one-half of the people of the United States own life insurance. From the savings of these people, who live on the farms and in the villages and the cities, come the premium payments which account for most of the income received by life insurance companies. These funds eventually go back from those companies to the policyholders and beneficiaries as payments in accordance with the terms of their policy contracts. Before such payments are due, however, the funds become available for employment in the economic life of the people as a whole in the form of investments or loans. Such investments or loans are useful to those individuals, corporations and governments who need funds to build homes, to carry on business, or to meet budgetary and capital requirements.

The life insurance companies in turn consider the probable income from these investments and loans when they calculate their premiums. Earnings are an important factor in building up the funds out of which future obligations to policyholders and beneficiaries are met. They are also a substantial factor in reducing the total cost of insurance to the policyholder.

Safety is the First Consideration

In making investments or loans it is of paramount importance that the policyholders' interests be protected and that safety be made the first consideration. That has been the policy of this Company since its organization. It will continue to be its policy.

The Public Interest is Served

But the Company is also very conscious of the public service that is rendered through the employment of its funds. In recent years, for various reasons, the individual who has accumulated savings during the course of the year has been more and more hesitant, or has experienced greater and greater difficulty, in making his own private investment of these savings. As a result the public has put larger amounts of savings into such institutions as life insurance companies. But these savings are not stagnant or idle. In large part they are turned back into the blood stream of the national economy through investments and loans which these institutions make in accordance with the laws of the various States.

In the past ten years, the investments and loans of all life insurance companies in the country have grown from approximately $20,000,000,000 to $30,000,000,000. The effect of this upon our national economy is great, for, as the volume of such investments and loans has increased, the public service performed by them has likewise increased. Even a brief examination of the loans and investments of the New York Life Insurance Company will, we believe, demonstrate that it has employed its funds both with a view to safety and in the public interest.

Loans and Investments at Work

Government Bonds.—This Company's investments in bonds aggregate $1,827,000,000. Of this amount, approximately $800,000,000 are United States Government bonds, either direct or fully guaranteed. During the past year the Company increased its holdings in this classification of investment by about $100,000,000. United States Government bonds are generally regarded as the prime investment security of the world. Their safety is beyond question. More than that, the Government at the present time is making huge expenditures in the interests of national defense. From the point of view of the public interest as well as the safety of its policyholders, the Company's policy is to continue, in the present circumstances, to invest in Government securities.

Other Bonds.—The Company's investments in State, county and municipal bonds, which are likewise regarded as prime investments, and which amount to over $250,000,000, also play a great part in our national economy as well as our social advancement. They provide funds to help build schools, bridges and highways as well as other local institutions and improvements. The Company's holdings of railroad bonds aggregate approximately $285,000,000 and help to finance the country's principal transportation system which is so essential to both the business of the country and its defense. Our public utility bonds aggregate over $335,000,000 and, in making these investments, the Company has helped to provide the people with electric, gas, water, communication and other services.

Large and Small Loans.—Most of the corporations whose bonds are owned by the Company are relatively large because so many small borrowers do not or cannot issue bonds which are eligible or practicable as investments for a life insurance company. This Company, however, makes many mortgage loans and policy loans. Most of the policy loans are for small amounts. Mortgage loans are made in both small and large amounts. An examination of the Mortgage Loan Portfolio, which includes loans on business, residential and farm properties, shows that at the end of 1940 the Company had on its books 31,741 first mortgage loans on real estate, which, less reserves, amounted to about $420,000,000. About 87 per cent of these mortgage loans, that is 27,656, were for less than $10,000 each and aggregated over $117,000,000. About 60 per cent of the total number of such loans, that is 18,928, were for less than $5,000 each and aggregated over $60,000,000. About $70,000,000 of the Company's real estate loans were FHA-insured mortgage loans.

Stocks.—The Insurance Law of the State of New York does not permit life insurance companies to invest in common stocks. As a result they cannot legally provide equity or partnership capital, either for big business or for small business. However, they are permitted to invest in preferred and guaranteed stocks which measure up to certain legal requirements. This Company's holdings of such stocks, which provide additional funds for industry, amount to about $90,000,000.

All things considered, it is apparent that the assets of the New York Life Insurance Company are at work not merely to produce a return but also to do their part in advancing both economic and social progress.

Payments to Policyholders and Beneficiaries

During the year 1940, the New York Life Insurance Company paid to policyholders and their beneficiaries a total of $204,394,345. Of this sum $135,015,066 was paid to living policyholders and $69,379,279 to beneficiaries. During the past ten years, the Company's payments to policyholders and beneficiaries have exceeded $2,180,000,000.

New Insurance

New insurance during the year 1940 amounted to $425,970,300. There were 210,896 new policy contracts made during the year and the average size of new policies was $2,020. Although the volume of new business was slightly less than the previous year, nevertheless there was a substantial reduction in the aggregate volume of terminations, particularly lapses and surrenders. On December 31, 1940 the Company had 2,925,775 insurance policies in force for a total of $6,895,182,749, which represented an increase of 53,541 in the number of policies and $64,347,953 in amount as compared with the end of the previous year.

Assets and Liabilities

The total value of all bonds, which were valued in accordance with the law, was substantially below the total market value as of December 31, 1940. The aggregate amount of the Company's real estate mortgage loans was written down by $26,000,000 to the estimated value as of the end of the year. Furthermore, the total real estate owned by the Company was also marked down in 1940 and is carried at the estimated market value. Total admitted assets amount to $2,869,735,205, an increase of $107,456,722 over the previous year.

In the liabilities, by far the largest item, $2,322,671,554, is the Insurance and Annuity Reserve computed by the Superintendent of Insurance of the State of New York. This reserve is the amount which the Company must hold in good assets so that together with future premiums and interest, it may be able to meet future policy obligations as they become due based on assumptions as to future rates of claim, interest and expense. The sum of $38,747,490 is set aside in the liabilities for dividends payable to policyholders in 1941. In addition to a Voluntary Investment Reserve of $50,000,000, the Company had, at the end of the year, a surplus, reserved for general contingencies, amounting to $127,073,603.

The present high standing of the Company, its conservative financial and actuarial standards, and the character of the organization both in the Home Office and the Field should be a source of great satisfaction to every policyholder.

A more complete report as of December 31, 1940 containing additional statistical and other information of interest about the Company, as well as a list of the bonds and the guaranteed and preferred stocks owned by the Company, will be sent upon request to the New York Life Insurance Company, 51 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Inquiry Names Film Magnate, Federal Judge

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, March 18.—At the request of the Department of Justice, a Federal grand jury was directed today to investigate charges that a retired United States Circuit Court judge, a former United States Minister, a one-time movie magnate, and several others had conspired to obstruct justice.

A communication from Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, which was made public by United States District Judge Guy K. Bard, the presiding jurist, appointed two New Yorkers as Jackson's special assistants to direct the inquiry.

Named in the charges were J. Warren Davis, retired judge of the Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals; David E. Kaufman, of Towanda, Pa., former Minister to Siam; William Fox, one-time motion-picture magnate, and five others.

Inquirers Named

Kaufman served as a Federal court trustee for the old Philadelphia Transit Co. while it was undergoing financial reorganization before Judge Davis retired two years ago. Fox was a party to several pieces of litigation in the courts here about the same time.

Appointed by Attorney General Jackson to direct the inquiry were Hugh E. Fulton, executive assistant to Mathias F. Correa, United States attorney for the Southern District of New York, and Assistant United States Attorney W. H. Gahagan, of New York.

An investigation of certain affairs of former Judge Davis was begun by a Federal grand jury in New York in February, 1940.

Others named by Attorney General Jackson included Eva Fox, William's wife; their daughter, Belle; Morgan Kaufman, of Scranton, Pa., David's brother and bankruptcy referee for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, and Murray Becker and Daniel Rosenblatt, New York lawyers.

Also named were the All Continent Corporation and Parkwood Corporations, identified as subsidiary organizations set up in the one-time Fox financial empire.

The communication from Jackson to Fulton said the department was informed "other persons, companies, corporations, and firms unknown to the department have violated Federal laws by corruptly influencing, obstructing and impeding and corruptly endeavoring to influence, obstruct and impede the due administration of justice in the United States courts" in the Philadelphia district.

Fox was adjudicated a bankrupt in May, 1936. In succeeding years, there was considerable litigation between the trustee in bankruptcy and the All Continent Corporation and one of the cases was taken to the Supreme Court.

Fox's wife, Eva, was president of the corporation.

Further Dog Tax Action Indicated

The District Commissioners yesterday indicated they may turn the police department's report on the shortages in the dog tag accounts over to the United States Attorney for "any action he may deem advisable."

The final report on the investigation, which was conducted by Acting Capt. Earl P. Hartman of the special investigation squad, will be delivered today to the Commissioners who will submit the report to Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

German Sub Startled America in 1916

Makers Oppose Diluted Whisky As 'Dangerous Lure' From Beer

By the Associated Press

The liquor industry opposed yesterday a proposal to lower the minimum alcoholic content of whisky from 80 to 60 proof.

Only supporter of the proposal at a hearing conducted by the Treasury's alcohol tax unit was Prof. Yandell Henderson, professor emeritus of physiology at Yale University.

Henderson, who described himself as the father of 3.2 beer, said the proposed weaker strength whisky would "contribute to law and order, eliminate bootlegging, promote legal distilling and improve the attitude of the public toward distilled liquor."

Industry representatives, however, took the unanimous stand that 60-proof whisky would be "unpalatable" and "dangerous."

Howard T. Jones, of Washington, representing the Distilled Spirits Institute, said that he doubted whether, under the pure food and drug law, it would be legal to call such a weak mixture "whisky."

Harry L. Lourie, of Washington, executive vice president of the National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers, suggested that "it might create a new form of cheap drink sold by the glass, and this would create a new type of social evil."

Fear that diluted whisky might "lure young people from wine and beer" was voiced by Niel Diegham, of New York, representing the Association of State Tavern Owners.

Among those who doubted whether the weak liquor would lead to temperance was J. M. Doran, of Washington, one-time head of prohibition enforcement. Doran said "people who drink whisky, drink it for its effect. I question whether a reduction to 60 proof would be a satisfactory solution to social problems."

Stewart Berkshire, deputy commissioner of internal revenue, who presided, indicated a decision would be announced at a later date.

Petworth Citizens Approve Increase In Parking Meters

Approval of the move to increase parking meters in downtown Washington was expressed last night by the Petworth Citizens Association at its regular meeting held in the Petworth Library. "Prompt collection" and "stricter enforcement to prevent thefts" were urged in the group's indorsement.

The public defender system for the District was approved as was the Overton fiscal plan. The bill exempting the National Society of Colonial Dames from taxation now before Congress was opposed by the association.

175 Defense Workers Hurt In Train Crash

By the Associated Press

Windham, Ohio, March 18.—"Man failure" was blamed tonight for an Erie Railroad freight train's crash into the middle of a passenger train carrying 700 construction workers into Ravenna Arsenal today.

Capt. Earl D. Payne, of the arsenal, said an extensive check of hospitals in nearby cities showed 201 injured, 13 of them critically and 72 others serious enough to be held for further treatment.

The eastbound freight, pulling 47 loaded and 5 empty cars, smashed at a sidewise angle into the fourth and fifth coaches of a ten-car Erie commuter train. One of the steel coaches was torn open almost half its length, the other was battered. Both were derailed.

Injured men screamed and moaned in the wind-sharpened 12-degree cold. Some kicked out windows. Others crawled out or were carried over loosened seat cushions and unch pails.

The freight locomotive, piloted by C. H. Stallsmith, 61, of Meadville, Pa., nosed on its side into a slight embankment, tearing up tracks. Seventeen derailed freight cars folded together like an accordion, a dozen of them clustering into one group.

Stallsmith and his four crew members, and the quartet of passenger trainmen working with Engineer J. T. Hand, 52, Youngstown, Ohio, all escaped serious injury and were ordered to appear for a formal investigation tomorrow. One Erie official quoted Stallsmith as saying he "had a clear signal."

A preliminary inquiry, Erie said, "indicates the accident was due to man failure"—negligence in observing either orders or signals. "Full investigation is being carried out in conjunction with Federal and State authorities."

About 75 construction workers—nearly all from Youngstown—were in each coach. The passenger train was backing across the freight's path into the arsenal as the mishap occurred, on a stretch of trackage which has a virtually unobstructed view for at least a mile.

Edwin Smith Asserts Criticism Is 'Outrageous'

Edwin S. Smith, member of the Labor Board, asserted yesterday that House committeemen who had accused him of fostering radicalism were guilty of a "disgraceful perversion of the important tasks assigned to them by Congress."

In a 17-page statement submitted to the legislators, Smith replied to criticism by a majority of the five-man committee set up by the House, under the chairmanship of Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, to investigate the Labor Board.

The majority report contended that Edwin S. Smith exhibited "a disturbing personal interest in and support of persons and organizations known to be opposed to the American system of private enterprise."

It reviewed his public appearances at Mexico City meetings during the Cardenas regime, his decisions on certain board matters, and other activities.

Smith called the findings an "outrageous distortion" of the evidence, and added:

"In its efforts to prove a case, where none exists, the report engages in a prolix repetition of old and demonstrated errors, and the creation of a host of new and extraordinary ones, with the result that the task of pointing out the truth is like cleaning the Augean stables."

He charged that the committee majority endeavored, "by inventing facts," to portray his speaking appearance at the International Industrial Relations Institute in Mexico City in 1937 as "a grave international incident."

This and other committee statements, including one that he appeared at a meeting in a "hall decked with Communistic symbols," Smith said, "are a hodge-podge of errors."

He said the allegation that he used his position to "encourage and foster radicalism" was based on a disagreement between himself and board member William M. Leiserson over what to do with communications from the Civil Service Commission involving charges of communism against two NLRB stenographers.

Consistency On Parking

The wrangle over installation of more parking meters demonstrates the need for more coherent thought on the whole parking problem. Representative Schulte has explained that he doesn't want District streets "cluttered up" with meters because his traffic subcommittee is drafting recommendations to prohibit downtown parking. In connection with the ban, he wisely observed that some scheme must be evolved to provide off-the-street space for automobiles. This puzzle has been attacked unsuccessfully for a number of years, and it is hard to see how we can seriously consider chasing the cars off the streets until the question is settled. District-owned parking lots downtown have been found impossible because the price of land is too high. The most promising proposal has been to acquire lots on the edges of the congested areas, where the cost is a fifth to a fifteenth of downtown prices. Fringe lots operate satisfactorily in Philadelphia and Detroit, with transit-line tickets included in the parking charge. In this respect the establishment of some system would seem to be the first line of approach.

The experience downtown shows the necessity of better planning in new areas. The zoning regulations should be changed to require off-the-street parking facilities in every new apartment or business house. Legal authorities here are not sure that the Zoning Commission or the District Commissioners can set up such a regulation under existing laws. The issue should be presented to the Commissioners in such a way that a decision will have to be reached, and if they cannot take the responsibility, we must go to Congress. Opponents of the requirement think its adoption would not be fair unless all-night parking is abolished in the neighborhood of established apartment houses so that they will have to find parking space or lose the advantage of their smaller overhead. The answer is that the existing situation is not fair because all-night parking is forbidden in some areas now. The arbitrary way it has been necessary to do this argues well for future regulation.

Partial measures and piecemeal proposals in Congress have led to confusion and delay through the years. Fortunately within a few weeks a comprehensive report on traffic and parking problems here will be available. For eight months the Highway Department and the Public Roads Administration have been engaged in an exhaustive study. Presumably the findings will consider the problem as a whole. Congressional friends of the District should use the data collected as a basis of their thinking, with a view to putting first things first.

To Expose Lobbyists

Lobbying in Washington seems to be as eternal as the breaking of waves on the beach. It has become so much a part of our law-making process that Congress would scarcely know how to function without it. The days when idealists dreamed of ridding the Capital of this particular breed of "parasites" have long since passed. We are still concerned with the excessive activity of lobbyists and pressure groups, though the remedies proposed nowadays are, for the most part, couched in realistic terms.

The latest attack on lobbyists comes in the form of a monograph by Donald C. Blaisdell and Jane Greverus published by the Temporary National Economic Committee. These authors believe that some check upon propagandists for special causes is essential to the preservation of democracy in the United States. But they have no vision of lobbyists being driven from the Capital. On the contrary, they fully recognize the constitutional right of citizens to petition their Government and the inevitability of that right being exercised through specialists representing pressure groups. Since we can and should do nothing to prevent lobbyists from keeping Congress informed as to the views of the groups for whom they speak, it is proposed that Congress in turn keep itself and the public informed as to who the lobbyists are and what interests they represent.

In theory at least that suggestion is sound. The operation of government and the influences that bear upon it should be exposed to public view wherever practicable in a democracy. No reasonable objection could be raised, therefore, to compulsory registration of lobbyists and the interests they represent. The only difficulty arises in defining a lobbyist in terms that would expose the workings of pressure groups without embarrassing every citizen who wishes to express his viewpoint to his Congressman.

Stop That Strike!

Not the least significant aspect of President Roosevelt's address last Saturday night was his changed attitude toward strikes in defense industries. Previous attempts to minimize the effect of walkouts on our national mobilization of strength were apparently forgotten. Mr. Roosevelt called for increasing production—"production that does not stop and should not pause." His emphasis upon moving "products from the assembly lines of our factories to the battle lines of democrary—now" could not have have been lost upon recalcitrant managements and labor groups who are keeping defense plants idle. Certainly that note brought warm response from his audience. The loudest applause of the evening came when the President declared that the "determination of America . . . must not be obstructed by unnecessary strikes . . ."

The President's concern is fully justified. An authoritative survey shows an alarming increase in strikes since January 1. A total of 26 strikes affecting War Department orders alone were in progress on Monday, causing a loss of 31,513 man-days. In January 150,211 man-days were lost through strikes, in February 468,855; and if the present rate of loss in March continues throughout the month, it will amount to 578,000 man-days. The stoppages responsible for this enormous waste of precious time affect only equipment for the Army. Data for Navy and Maritime Commission orders would make a much higher total.

The most disturbing aspect of the picture is the rapid rate at which strikes are increasing and the failure of the Government to settle prolonged disputes. For three months the Allis-Chalmers plant at Milwaukee has been idle while the company and the C. I. O. have squabbled over the closed-shop issue. The public knows that this walkout has stopped work on machinery urgently needed for the manufacture of powder. Less well known is the fact that the Navy's destroyer program has been held up for three months by this breakdown of vital productive machinery.

Efforts of the OPM to settle the dispute appear to have prolonged it. For more than a month the disputants have been quarreling over Sidney Hillman's interpretation of a tentative agreement which both sides seemed willing to accept. Labor representatives in the OPM are reported to be giving aid and comfort to the union in continuing the struggle, while some industrialists in the same organization use their influence to prevent acceptance of the closed shop. In handling this dispute the OPM appears to have done nothing more than demonstrate its incapacity to serve as a mediator. That experience should be ample warning against the appointment of employer and union representatives to the proposed mediation board.

There is no time to continue fumbling with disputes of this category. More effective means of bringing about a settlement ought to be quickly invoked. It is time for the Secretary of Labor to acknowledge the failure of mediation efforts, even though the OPM has taken a hand in the controversy. Then she could call upon the President to set up a special board to investigate the dispute. Since an agreement has not been reached in three months, the public is entitled to know the facts. Mr. Roosevelt cannot too quickly designate a group of impartial citizens to lay those facts bare as a preliminary step toward taking over the plant, if that seems necessary, to speed the work on essential defense equipment.

The Unwanted Bale

The item of $1,350,000,000 in the $7,000,000,000 aid bill has buoyed up farmer hopes of a revival in exports of farm products. But it is a thin hope in regard to cotton. Continental markets are cut off, there is limited shipping space for bulky exports like cotton, and British export regulations severely restrict the use at home of cotton. These factors will continue to keep buying at low levels for an indefinite future. For the phenomenon isn't due to the war. The war has only aggravated a downward trend in cotton exports which has several explanations, not the least being our production and price raising policies. In the early days of the New Deal these policies led foreign buyers to look to other countries for their cotton supplies.

The statistical picture certainly seems to justify this pessimism. In January export sales of cotton dropped to 60,000 bales. At the current rate of exports, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimates that the volume of shipments for the full marketing year 1940-41 will be little more than 1,000,000 bales. Exports this year to date have been the smallest since 1868, and some of those exports have been shipped with the aid of subsidies. In view of the spread between prices of American cotton and prices of competing growths in world markets, it is obvious that export subsidies are essential to retain a hold on foreign markets, so long as we keep cotton prices at artificially high levels by means of price-raising commodity loans.

At present the Government either owns or holds in storage against loans about 10,800,000 bales of cotton, or about a year's crop. Despite the expectation of a record domestic consumption of cotton this year, approximately 3,000,000 bales of the 1940 crop were held under loan at the end of January, and it was expected that most of it would still be there August 1, the beginning of the new marketing year. Back in 1927 when we produced 17,750,000 bales of cotton we exported 11,000,000 bales. Last year a 13,000,000-bale crop presented a much more formidable problem of surplus disposal with foreign sales reduced to a trickle.

Another disturbing feature of the cotton situation is the failure of acreage reduction to reduce yields correspondingly. In 1940, for instance, the cotton acreage was 41 per cent less than the average for the years 1923-32; yet, as a result of the great increase in acreage yields, production was only 12 per cent below the average for those years. In the face of this showing, efforts are currently being made to boost cotton prices still higher by means of loans until so-called parity levels are reached. The effect of this economic madness would be to put still more cotton in the hands of the Government, add to the obstacles to export trade, and reduce domestic consumption. No wonder the Government's experts are putting up a warning finger. Parity prices would necessitate more stringent control over production, and higher prices for a greatly reduced output might bring smaller incomes to farmers.

Royal 'Ermann

A great deal has been made lately over the parallel between Hitler and Napoleon. One minor point of dissimilarity, however, is that the Fuehrer has no available relatives or relatives-in-law to place upon the thrones of the lands he has won by conquest. But in Berlin, the story goes that when (and if) England is conquered, Hermann Goering will become by the grace of Hitler King of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith.

Not only that, but it seems that the marshal has a claim to the throne of England which is a good deal more reasonable than any that Marshal Murat had to the throne of Naples or Louis Bonaparte had to the throne of Holland. Hermann is a Plantagenet, no less. He claims direct descent from Henry II, and, since this King is remembered chiefly as the one who sent his strong-arm boys to murder a saint in his own cathedral, the claim has considerable plausibility. Of course, his descent is, so to speak, on the left hand, since all legitimate male issue of the Plantagenet line became extinct at the end of the fifteenth century.

We have no doubt that Hermann would vastly enjoy being King of Great Britain. One can see him standing on a ruined balcony of Buckingham Palace beaming genially as his subjects, hurriedly imported to replace the exterminated indigenous population, sing lustily, "Gott Safe der Kink." Or riding in a state coach through the bomb-blasted streets of Dublin, while the army of occupation reads out the words "O'Goering Abu!" from their special phrase books. Or going up to Balmoral for the shooting season, where the tracking down of fugitive Highlanders and Polish legionnaires proves better sport than the grouse.

Of course, King Hermann would have to order many new uniforms to supplement the hundreds already in his wardrobe. What these uniforms will be like we cannot even guess. But it seems to us that if King Hermann wants to do the thing in the proper heraldic style he will order one somewhat as follows: A conical helm with nasal, symbolizing his Norman origin and, a courteous gesture from one conqueror to another, a Beefeater's doublet, symbolic of England and Wales, kilts symbolic of Scotland, and pampooties symbolic of Ireland. Over all this would be worn an ermine cloak stitched with costers' mother-of-pearl buttons in swastika designs, thus reconciling the idea of feudal monarchy with the much-advertised revolt of the masses.

BEYOND FLIGHT

This is where the partridge fell. We heard the gun-fire, saw the plunging flight, the bird bruised against earth. Then in that somber night
snow came quietly, covering all from sight.
Snow turned to ice, sleet;
those wings no longer beat against the wind and hail.
The cold sun, pale as a guttering candle, marks that small white mound,
one with the frozen ground.
After months, April
rouses the sap; across the field a maple opens its leaves. There is an urgent need for living, blossoming of weed, bush and slow flower. The fallen bird is still,
with deeper knowledge than the sloping hill can hold in summer; yet his wings may veer through lovelier seasons, lighter atmosphere.

President's Speech

Millions of Americans listened in on Roosevelt's speech Saturday night—and today those millions are busy analyzing that speech. At no time did he assure the American taxpayer that his interests would be protected. The words "lend" and "lease" do not mean out and out gifts. At no time did he state that British possessions would be taken over to protect our loans. Surely we haven't forgotten the first World War and the loans made to England and other nations. With the exception of little Finland, those debts have never been paid. The American people are still struggling under that burden.

Roosevelt seems to forget that many millions were and are opposed to the lend-lease bill. They see things as they are here and abroad. Our sympathies are not so much for England as against Germany. The British propaganda here is as deadly as that of Germany. There is no reason why we should change our way of living and bankrupt ourselves to take over the financial burdens of an England, a Greece or a China. He does a lot of blaring about sacrifices—higher taxes and unity. No one knows better than he that there is less unity now than a week ago. The average man and woman find it hard to live and pay the taxes we now have. They aren't forgetting that Roosevelt won his first election on the promise that he would reduce taxes and balance the budget.

Now he demands that seven billions be given England and Greece and a little to China. We should see that England hands over the Bahamas, Canada, or anything else to protect the people here who pay the bills.

Parking Panacea

Trying to find a parking place in this boom town on the Potomac is indeed a vexing and trying problem. Restricted hours of parking, buses and taxis, fire plugs and streetcars—all contribute to our traffic woes. But motorists aimlessly but hopefully cruising up one street and down another seeking an elusive parking spot for their vehicles complicate matters tenfold.

Next time the District Committee meets, it should consider the possibility of constructing a superstructure over the length and breadth of the Potomac River from the Arlington to the Highway Bridges. This would easily provide free parking space for 10,000 or more cars and solve the traffic problem.

As for enemy submarines coming up the river to make war on the Washington Canoe Club, hard by the Key Bridge, the marauders of the deep probably would come to the surface beneath our superstructure parking veranda to get their bearings, as darkness would prevail under it. Then the submarine commanders, thinking it was night, would postpone the attack until dawn. Such strategy would be perfect, for, as they do in the movies, we patriotic motorists, armed to the teeth and grateful for our parking facilities, would then descend upon the sleeping submarines and win this great war for democracy right in our own front yard with our trusty can openers.

Civilized Man

May I comment on the article in The Post of March 17, "Speech Put U. S. in War, Italian Says." It is about the President's broadcast Saturday night on the lend-lease bill. Signor Exio Maria Gray, a member of the Italian parliament, (I didn't realize that they had one) is reported, in the following quotation from The Post, as holding the following views:

"He (Signor Gray) ridiculed alleged American assertion that this will be the century of the United States world domination and said that Mr. Roosevelt's dreams of conquest would turn out to be like those of Genghis Kahn."

Those Axis powers cannot comprehend that "dreams of world domination" are not the mode of today in the minds of thinking peoples. The totalitarian leaders are measuring everybody's wheat in their own half-bushel measures. The real human being of the present day does not desire to conquer, dominate, steal, or otherwise damage a fellow man. He wants to live and let live and he would like to be unmolested so that he may have the opportunity to advance spiritually as far and as fast as his present evolutionary status will permit.

Modern civilized man is not perfect and can be very trying at times, but he is past the stage, believe it or not, where he desires in his secret heart to steal the property of others by open warfare or under the guise of "protection," or by any other subterfuge, or in any conscious way to interfere with man's temporal or spiritual progress.

The World's Great Undeveloped Human Resources

The world's greatest remaining virgin resource is its enormous masses of undeveloped people. More than half the population of the earth is included in the "backward," the suppressed and the "underprivileged," scattered about its surface. There are a billion of them in Asia, a hundred million in Latin America, others in Africa. Europe itself, despite its high industrial advancement, contains vast numbers; and even the United States has its 30 or 40 million. "ill housed, ill fed and ill clothed."

The economic potential of these people—their potential producing and consuming power—is sufficient to lift the whole of industrial civilization to new and uncontemplated heights. Here is our greatest frontier. It is not the only frontier left: There are vast untouched physical resources of land, minerals and forests in three of the major continents. But the undeveloped peoples are the most important. For they not only have great latent energies, but they are the key to the fuller utilization of the physical resources which they now occupy and partly operate.

The breakdown of industrial civilization since the first World War is a basic matter. It is largely due to an improper adjustment between human energies and natural resources. The newer regions were opened up—except in the United States—on an exploitative basis, seeking to take advantage of the natural wealth and the supplies of cheap native labor, without adequate thought for markets to consume the final products. Population was concentrated in the restricted industrial areas about the North Atlantic. The consuming power of the dependent populations, who must supply the export markets, was neglected. The whole system became top-heavy, and fell into a violent competitive struggle among the industrial nations for their "places in the sun."

The limits of this exploitative imperialism have now been reached, years ago. Industrial civilization has to go continually forward to new frontiers, or begin to recede. And now it must seek a wider base—or continue to shrink and to fight within itself.

The problem is, first, to defeat Nazilism—which is the most reactionary and ruthless form of exploitation of subject peoples—and then to organize the "backward" countries in a way to permit of their proper economic development. To do this involves a modernization of the whole world set-up, on lines of freedom and emancipation, with security for the weak and the small nations.

And it is such ideas which underlie the whole recent American foreign policy, the "good neighbor" policy, the good will ambassadorship of Vice President Henry Wallace, and—in the opinion of Capital observers—the journey of Ambassador Winant and Counselor Benjamin Cohen to London.

More specifically, the problem is by education, sanitation and gradually increasing responsibility to augment the productive efficiency, the incomes and the standard of living of the peoples throughout the Orient, the Tropics and the South Temperate zone. Included also are the peasant economies, the slums and the "tobacco roads" of Europe and America. Development of these "human resources" is the best—the only remaining—way to provide the expanded markets, the outlets for surplus capital, to revive a sick capitalism. It is the only way to lay a foundation for lasting peace and restoration of a world order based on freedom and law.

Migrations of European refugees and possibly American unemployed will probably be seen. Refugee colonies are already being started in this hemisphere. The colonists will supply skilled labor, needed to balance the native economies. They will be getting closer to the natural resources upon which they must, in any case, depend; their labor will be the more effective.

Industrialization of the new countries will follow, building up native processing industries and transportation to handle the native raw materials. Countries like those of South America and Australasia will come up out of the "extractive" industry stage and cease their dependency on exports of raw materials to the dwindling and uncertain markets of Europe. The result will be, not less, but more demand in these countries for the manufactured products of the older industrial countries. The world-wide revolution in living standards will increase world trade to volumes never dreamed of in the palmiest days of the twenties.

All this will require application of specific, new political methods. The old type of nationalistic imperialism is moribund, passe. The colonies and dependencies have got to be emancipated. They must be given autonomy, independence, in some kind of world commonwealth of nations. This emancipation, of course, cannot be sudden. It must be gradually extended.

Fortunately, the English-speaking world has long-tried political devices ready at hand for such an undertaking, in the "dominion" status of the British Empire and the "territorial" status of the United States of America. In these devices are instruments for gradual extension of Anglo-Saxon citizenship and local autonomy throughout the democratic world, gradually building up a cemented order.

It is suggestive that Hawaii, now an American "territory," is applying for admission to the Union, and that a few days ago a former premier of Belgium proposed that his country apply for dominion status in the British Empire.

Crisis For Mr. Bim

The grey mist of an early winter morning was still shrouding the windows when Mr. Bim opened his eyes and looked anxiously toward the bed where Mary lay sleeping.

"Thank God," he reverently thought, "she is still here."

Although Mr. Bim was very brave about almost everything, one fear gripped him. At the very thought that something might happen to Mary he cringed. He lived in constant dread that she might disappear. But like all true opportunists, Mr. Bim possessed clairvoyant powers, and so always managed to awake just a few minutes before Mary did. From the instant Mary ran down the hall to her bath, he was at her heels and never willingly throughout the day did he let her far from his sight.

It is true that he stood outside the bathroom door until the water stopped hissing and plunging into the tub: the noise was too terrifying. However, the moment he heard Mary splashing about, he would gently push the door open and step inside, prepared for all eventualities. In fact, he almost hoped at times that Mary might sink beneath the water so that he could pull her safely out and thus prove to her his deep devotion.

In his sight Mary had only one fault. She seemed obsessed with the idea of bathing. Every morning she disappeared into the tub. And not satisfied with her own ablution, she would refill the tub when she was finished, and call cheerily to her husband: "Get up, sleepy-head! Your bath is ready." Such verve and gayety inspired by a tub did not seem to Mr. Bim entirely sane.

The real adventure of Mr. Bim's day was when the kitchen door was opened and he was able to investigate anew the garden which had been left to its own devices during the long night. There was always the fresh track of the milkman to be discovered; and often there was discernible the faint aroma of a questing cat that had passed through the garden, intent on a nocturnal intrigue. Tommy Tucker, from next door, was almost always out, too, investigating his garden, and ready to gossip. This morning Tommy Tucker was walking a little stiff-legged. He was sniffing the bushes, but only in a perfunctory fashion—there was no titillation in it.

Mr. Bim recognized the signs. "My word," he sympathetically cried, "have you been plucked again?"

Tommy Tucker was quite an aristocrat and like many of the haut monde, he was a little tiresome on occasions. He had only two strings to his conversational bow and he played upon them constantly and rather monotonously. He loved to talk of his pluckings and the dog shows which he attended.

Mr. Bim considered himself to be a collie, but his long black nose and rather bat-shaped ears, slightly reminiscent of a German shepherd, had effectively barred him from bench shows. Tommy was curious and often, looking pointedly at Mr. Bim, would hint at a mesalliance. Mr. Bim was too much of a gentleman to speak of family matters and so the subject would be dropped.

Tommy, hearing the note of sympathy in Mr. Bim's question, walked painfully to his side of the fence and overcome with ennui sank down upon his poor bare haunches. "Yes, I was plucked yesterday. I am being groomed for the next show. My hair will grow in very wiry. But you have no idea how painful this last operation was. We who are well-born have to put up with some discomforts though."

Mr. Bim's eyes began to roam. He had heard all this so many times before. Tommy, noticing that his audience was withdrawing, in spirit, at least, decided to hold him at any cost. So maliciously he inquired: "Are you attending the show this year?"

"Oh, no," countered Mr. Bim. "Mary says it would be too confining for a large dog like me."

Tommy Tucker, a little nonplused, decided upon a new attack. Looking very important, he said: "You can't imagine how suffering develops one. Have you ever really suffered?"

"Of course," Mr. Bim answered with dignity. "In fact, I do not consider having a few hairs plucked suffering at all. That is merely physical. Mental anguish is what devastates one. I have spent many sleepless nights. My great fear," continued he, waxing enthusiastic, as one is apt to, when discussing one's sufferings, "is being separated from Mary. So far the emergencies have kept her home, but I am so afraid she may go away."

"I heard your folks talking of Bermuda the other day," said Tommy spitefully. He had expected to do all the talking.

What dreadful news! Poor Mr. Bim crept to his back porch and dejectedly scratched on his back door. The door swung open. What delicious odors greeted him! Even in his deep distress his sensitive nose could not help twitching. There was just enough sage in the sausage.

Forlornly, he walked to the dining room. The sun was dappling the rug with golden specks. The cretonne cover had been removed from Lawrence Tibbet's cage, and he was assiduously practicing those cadenzas that seemed so dear to his heart. The percolator was bubbling. Mary, just finishing her grape fruit, was conscientiously keeping one eye on the waffle iron. Everything was so cozy and natural.

Just then Mary spoke. "Put down your paper, darling. This waffle is perfect."

Mary's husband gave her an unhappy look. "My dear," he said, "would you be dreadfully disappointed if we did not go to Bermuda?" There seems to be another emergency on the way."

"Disappointed!" cried Mary. "I really didn't want to go. It would be too cruel to leave Mr. Bim. You know how he misses us."

Mr. Bim grew weak with joy. He put his long black nose on Mary's knee and looked at her with ardent amber eyes. Mary did love him and, oh, how he loved her.

Suddenly he could stand no longer. "I am emotionally exhausted," thought he. "I must lie down for a moment and thank God," he [illegible] devoutly, "for all our emer[illegible]

Warning To London

ALSOP

THE SALE OF the British-owned Viscose Co. by a syndicate headed by Morgan, Stanley and Dillon, Read marks the end of the most prolonged and embittered controversy that has so far troubled the relations between London and Washington. To be sure, like Polonius, the hatchet has been "interred hugger-mugger," but the main point is that it really is buried at last.

The disposal of Britain's direct investments in this country was the issue that produced so much friction. From the beginning of the war, the British have been selling their American securities. Until last fall, however, when Lord Lothian announced that the British war effort would have to be financed in this country, there was no question of selling such direct investments as the Viscose Co., Lever Brothers, the American branches of the large British insurance companies, British owned American real estate, and so on. The question was raised by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau jr., immediately after Lord Lothian's public declaration that Britain would need American credits.

AFTER LORD LOTHIAN'S declaration, Sir Frederick Phillips, one of the chief officials of the British Treasury, was sent to this country to present the British balance sheet, and to arrange for the needed credits being made available. Sir Frederick's balance sheet convinced the Treasury. The result was the lease-lend bill. But Sir Frederick's balance sheet included some $900,000,000 of the direct investments which, as part of the economic foundation of their empire, the British were at first reluctant to sell.

Morgenthau forced the issue for the first time shortly before the lease-lend bill was offered to Congress. Warning the British Treasury that his position would be politically untenable if no effort to liquidate the direct investments were made, he demanded that some one empowered to undertake the liquidation be sent to this country without delay. Accordingly Sir Edward Peacock was named for the job, and hurried to New York. Meanwhile, in his testimony on the lease-lend bill, Morgenthau included the $900,000,000 of direct investments among the assets the British were prepared to throw into the pot for supplies from this country.

Then followed a long period of investigation and negotiation, during which Sir Edward, his colleague, Carlisle Gifford, and their American advisers explored the situation. Selling large properties of great value, for which there is no ready market, is an extremely difficult affair. Delays arose, and the delays rightly or wrongly generated in Washington the suspicion that the British were attempting to put off the evil day, and perhaps even trying to hang on to their properties. As an important element of British banking opinion was bitterly opposed to sale of the direct investments, and this banking faction was represented by several officials here, the suspicions were not unnatural.

FORTUNATELY, Winston Churchill and the real leaders of the British government regarded sale of the direct investments as a rather trivial sacrifice to the war effort. Consequently they responded with the utmost promptness when Morgenthau and the President sent a warning to London that because of the Congressional line-up, at least one important sale must be made before debate began on the $7,000,000,000 appropriation for British aid. Peremptory orders appear to have been sent to Sir Edward Peacock from London. In obedience to them, he called at Morgan, Stanley last week, told the partners that he wished to dispose of the Viscoe Co. by Sunday at the latest, and suggested the formation of a syndicate for the purpose headed by Morgan, Stanley and Dillon, Read.

Because of the need for extreme haste, the transaction had to be very unusual. There could be no valuation of the big factories and other assets of Viscoe, the leading rayon firm in this country and a subsidiary of the British company, Courtauld's, Ltd. Instead, the low basic price of $40,000,000 was set, and an agreement was made to give the British 90 per cent of any sums above that obtained for the property. The prospective sale was announced in time to meet the deadline, and the authorities here were filled with pleased satisfaction.

THE EPISODE is exceedingly interesting in two ways. In the first place, the remarkable promptitude of the British leaders' response to the Treasury's informal warning shows that they are completely single-minded in their prosecution of the war effort, whatever subordinate officials or London bankers may think.

KINTNER

In the second place, the fact that it was politically necessary to insist on such a sale casts a dubious light on our own relation to the British war effort. For Britain's direct investments, here and abroad, are essential to her economic health. If she liquidates all her direct investments, her postwar economic position will be infinitely difficult. And surely it is more than a little shortsighted to destroy Britain's economic health, while giving all-out support to her battle for democracy.

Dear Ma:

Well you will laff at this ma but the army has learned me how to make a bed. If I get out of this war safe and back in plain close, no matter how bad the employment situashun is I can get a job as a chambermade. Making beds is one thing I never thought I would be a expert at but it is one of the first things you get instructed at in a draft camp. I never paid no attention all my life to bed making. I just got out in the morning and from all I knew it was all done autermatically but I am now a first class bed maker and some nice girl could use me as a housekeeper.

I no this will surprise you more than anything tho mom when I tell you I am a Grade A dishwasher. They call this kitchen police detail but I do not know where the police part comes in as I never seen no cop doing dishes, but they tell me in the army that they call any dirty work police work. Well anyhow I put in a hole day washing dishes and if you ever ask me to help with the pots and pans hereafter and I refews, I will apolergize becuz it will be a picknick compared to what washing dishes is up here. You don't wash a plate at a time. You wash 'em in bunches and you have to be a combernashun Japaneze jugler, kitchen canary and all around mopper-upper. I have got so good at it that if I had a race with a electric dish washing machine it would take a photo to pick the winner.

I do not like it much as it does not seem to have much glammer and in all the stories I read about war heroes I never noticed a dish washer being mentioned. The sergeant says Napoleon started as a dish washer washing French pastery dishes witch is why they call him Napoleon, but he is kidding I gess.

All the boys is talking about the rumor that this training will last longer than a year, maybe for two years but I wud not mind it so much pervided I could go home winters as the life the last winter was so tuff even those Finns would of been soar. I see Washington says the report is strictly balony, but most of us has our fingers crost becus the lease lend bill is passed and anybody knows that nobody who borrows anything ever gives it back under a couple of years.

Anyway ma do not worry as I am still okay except for soar feet, a bad hangnail and a little touch of newmonnia but I am so busy washing dishes that it takes my mind off my suffering.

Your loving son,

OSCAR.

Weighty Words

By Ernest K. Lindley

The President's Speech

WHEN THE President's words are heard and read avidly around the world he cannot choose them with a view solely to their effect at home.

His speech Saturday night, like many other of his recent utterances, had diplomatic purposes. Its effect was visible in Yugoslavia, which seemed last week about to fall into the Axis basket. The arrival of British troops and equipment in Greece undoubtedly was a more potent influence than the President's speech. But the President's words buttressed British action and such encouragement to resist as may have come from Turkey.

LINDLEY

The invisible diplomatic effects of the President's address can only be surmised. It ruled out all thought of compromise with the Axis leadership. It breathed confidence in the ultimate total victory of the democracies. It predicted the "disintegration" of the dictatorships and hinted that this might come earlier than any of us now dare hope it would.

The speech was about as well devised as one could be to convince the doubtful that the Axis is doomed, no matter what temporary reverses the democracies may continue to suffer during the next few weeks or months.

The front which the President showed to the world was perhaps a shade more confident than he has revealed himself to be in talks with several of his advisers. But not more than a shade. His faith in the ability of the British to stand what they still may have to stand has been bolstered by the reports of Harry Hopkins, Wendell Willkie and other observers. His appraisal of the inner strength of the Axis countries — especially Germany — is much lower than that of many of the specialists who think more strictly in terms of weapons and trained men.

THE PRESIDENT believes that the dictator states will begin to go to pieces when it becomes plain that they cannot win. Take a discount, if you like, for his habitual optimism. He speaks, nevertheless, as a master-student of human behavior in the mass. On such questions his judgment is worth more, probably, than that of all our generals and admirals wrapped up together.

The President's second task Saturday was to let the American people know that their present effort is insufficient to achieve the victory he envisages. They must forget "business as usual." They must brace themselves for sacrifices, for higher taxes, for longer and harder hours of work.

Had the President chosen to go into detail about our rearmament effort, he could have painted either a dark picture or a bright one. The defense program has not bogged down. It is picking up speed. Here and there it is running ahead of schedule. In some channels it is behind schedule. Over all, it is not yet going at the speed we are capable of generating and must generate to enable the British and their allies to hold their own during the next few months.

But the President thrust aside detailed analysis in favor of a call to action. He put the emphasis on what we are going to do, beginning now, instead of on what we have already done. Thus he skillfully blended the parts of his speech drafted chiefly for foreign consumption with those intended chiefly for the American people.

THE PRESIDENT has never spoken more earnestly and forcefully. If the applause from his immediate audience was light and scattered, it was probably due chiefly to the fact that a good many newspapermen were present. Newspapermen are trained to act as observers. Under most circumstances it is regarded as a breach of good taste for newspapermen to applaud. Besides, most of them are accustomed to seeing the President regularly at his press conferences. Add to this the fact that many of the President's phrases were well worn.

As all who listened over the radio know, the biggest applause was for the President's admonishment to labor to avoid strikes. The volume was swelled by the exceptional enthusiasm of a number of businessmen and lobbyists who were present as guests. But most of the newspapermen I noticed were also moved to demonstrate their aprpoval of this passage.

Special pleaders for labor may put this down to antilabor bias on the part of Washington correspondents. On the whole the correspondents are a rather conservative group. But I saw newspapermen who usually are classed as liberal or progressive applauding this passage. Perhaps it was because they had felt that the Administration, from the President down, had gone out of its way to avoid speaking plainly to labor. It had encouraged or accepted statements which glossed over the serious-ness to the defense effort of strikes at key points in production.

If speed in production is imperative, as the President says—and unquestionably it is—no one who slows up or stops production can expect much sympathy from the general public. The ordinary citizen seems to be ready to make the sacrifices which may be necessary. And, as the President said, a million and a half of them are already working hard in the armed services. Their hours are long and their pay, in most cases, is low. They may have to take real risks. While that is going on, neither high profits nor higher wages for men who are already fairly well paid are likely to receive much popular support.

There was a sense of relief in the audience Saturday night when the President at last said in plain words what almost everybody in Washington already knew.

Churchill's Welcome

Text Of His Greeting To John G. Winant

By the Associated Press

London, March 18.—Following is the text of an address delivered today by Prime Minister Churchill at a luncheon of the Pilgrims welcoming United States Ambassador John G. Winant:

We meet here today under the strong impression and the impact of the historic declaration on Saturday last by the President of the United States.

And where could there be a more fitting opportunity than at this gathering of the Pilgrims to greet the new Ambassador for me to express on behalf of the British nation and empire the sense of encouragement and of fortification in our resolve which has come to us from across the ocean by those stirring, august and fateful Presidential words.

You have come here, Mr. Winant, to a community which has been tried and proved before mankind and history, and tried and proved to a degree on a scale and under conditions which have not previously been known to human experience.

We are here a free society governed through a Parliament which rests upon universal suffrage and upon the public opinion of the whole nation.

"Like a Draught of Life"

We are being subjected to daily attacks which if not efficiently resisted and repelled would soon prove mortal.

We have to call our whole people—men, women and children alike—to stand up with fortitude and composure to the fire of the enemy and accept increasing privations while making increasing effort. Nothing like this has been seen before.

We have our faults and our social system has its faults, but we hope that, with God's help, we shall be able to prove for all time, or at any rate for a long time, that a state or commonwealth of nations founded upon long-enjoyed freedom and steadily evolved democracy possesses, amid the sharpest shocks, the faculty of survival in high and honorable and, indeed, glorious debate.

At such a moment and in such an ordeal, the words and acts of the President and people of the United States come to us like a draught of life, and they tell us by an ocean-borne trumpet call that we are no longer alone.

We know that other hearts in millions and in scores of millions beat with ours, that their voices proclaim the cause for which we strive. Other strong hands wield hammers and shape weapons we need, other keen and gleaming eyes are fixed in hard conviction upon tyrannies that must and will be destroyed.

Battle Must Be Won

We welcome you here, Mr. Winant, at a moment when the great battle in which your Government and Nation are deeply interested is developing its full scope and severity.

The battle of the Atlantic must be won in decisive manner. It must be won beyond all doubt if the declared policies of the Government and people of the United States are not to be forcibly frustrated.

Not only German U-boats but German battle cruisers have crossed to the American side of the Atlantic and have already sunk some of our independently routed ships not sailing in convoy. They have sunk ships as far west as the forty-second meridian of longitude.

Over here, upon the approaches to our island, an intense, unrelenting struggle is being waged to bring in an endless stream of munitions and food without which our war efforts here and in the middle east—for that shall not be relaxed—cannot be maintained.

Our losses have risen for the time being and we are applying our fullest strength and resources and all the skill and science we can command in order to meet this potentially mortal challenge.

Not only, I must remind you, does our shipping suffer by attacks of the enemy, but also the fertility of its importing power is reduced by many of the precautions and measures which we must take to master and dominate the attacks which are made upon us. But our strength is growing every week.

American destroyers which reached us in the autumn and winter are increasingly coming into action. Our own flotillas are growing in number. Our air power over the island and over the seas is growing fast.

We are striking back with increasing effect. Only yesterday I received news of the certain destruction of three German U-boats.

Not since October 13, 1939, have I been cheered by such delectable tidings of a triple event.

(On October 14, 1939, the admiralty announced that three U-boats were sunk the previous day. Some of the crews were rescued.)

It is my rule, as you know, not to conceal the gravity of our dangers from our people and, therefore, I have the right to be believed when I also proclaim our confidence that we shall overcome them.

But anyone can see how bitter is the need of Hitler and his gang to cut the sea roads between Great Britain and the United States and, having divided these mighty powers, to destroy them one by one.

Turning Point in History

We must regard this battle of the Atlantic as one of the most momentous ever fought in all the annals of war.

Therefore, Mr. Winant, you come to us at a grand turning point in the world's history.

We rejoice to have you with us in these days of storm and trial because we have a friend and a faithful comrade who "report us and our cause aright."

But none who has met you can doubt that you hold and embody in a strong and intense degree the convictions and ideals which, in the name of American democracy, President Roosevelt has proclaimed. In the last few months we have had a succession of eminent American citizens visiting these storm-beaten shores and finding them unconquered and unconquerable.

Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Willkie, Col. Donovan and now today we have here Mr. (W. Averell) Harriman and yourself. I have dwelt with all these men in mind and spirit and there is one thing I have discerned in them all.

They would be ready to give their lives, nay, would be proud to give their lives rather than that the good cause be trampled down and the darkness of barbarism again engulf mankind.

You, Mr. Ambassador, share our purpose. You'll share our dangers. You'll share our interests. You shall share our secrets.

And the day will come when the British Empire and the United States will share together the solemn but splendid duties which are the crown of victory.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

An Awesome Story

THE READERS, if any, of these dispatches may have wondered lately why they have borne the date line of Fort Bragg and Fayetteville while dealing only in the most general terms with affairs of the Army. The explanation is that I thought I would do some pieces about the Army, which is really an amazingly good one to the naked, inexpert eye, and much further along now than its daddy was at a corresponding time in the effort of 1917. But I spent a few days at Fort Dix, down toward the southern coast of Jersey, then a week or so in Washington renewing acquaintance with a lot of officers drawn in from everywhere to work in the War Department, including Gen. Marshall, the four-star chief of staff, and finally came down here to Fort Bragg a week ago, and I still seem unable to back into the story.

PEGLER

I think the trouble is bashfulness in the presence of a story so big, awesome, solemn and, I am afraid, ominous that, for the first time since old man Conkle sent me out to work the stockyards fire in Chicago in 1910, I am suffering from buck fever on an assignment.

THIS ARMY is enormous, and the soldiers seem so much better than I expected to find them, the morale is so good and the program is pushing along so well that I am afraid to trust my own judgment. Incidentally, I have discovered an almost pathetic appeal for newspaper and magazine publicity to arouse the public to the fact that such an Army does exist and is growing day by day and may have to fight the Germans and not necessarily on German soil, and a fear that the publicity, when it does come, will be unsympathetic or possibly nasty.

An example of nasty publicity occurred recently when some Congressmen returned to Washington after a personal tour of several of these big camps, and, in the words of another Congressman, whose name wasn't given, was said to have backed four generals against a wall and to have fired questions at them in such a manner that they looked as though they would have preferred to face a firing squad.

Well, in the first place, so far as anyone here knows, there was no other Congressman present to bear witness to the interview, which did take place all right, and, in the second place, nobody is backing any of these generals against any wall. Anyone who tries anything like that, whether Congressman or whatever, will get popped right on the nose. It is all right for a Congressman to ask questions about the Army, but no officer or enlisted soldier would be worth having who would let any civilian back him against a wall and make a quavering monkey of him.

I don't know why any officer should be afraid that our papers and magazines might knock the Army, but probably we have here an example of the influence of the jerked-English and low-down school of journalism which consists mostly of affectations plagiarized from the God-awful, nerve-racking fidgets of Time Magazine. If any officer is falling down on his job, the War Department probably will boost him aside to make room for some hustling, ambitious party who can turn out results. After all, such men as Marshall and Henry Stimson are Americans, not Germans, and no Congressman or journalist is any more eager than they to do this job efficiently and fast or to eliminate incompetents.

UNDOUBTEDLY many officers will be relieved as the effort goes along, just as Pershing relieved unfit men in France, and it stands to reason that a lot of these casualties will be Guard officers who are over their heads in rank and probably, in some cases, better politicians than soldiers. I don't think Gen. Marshall would be afraid to get rid of a militarized civilian politician who was lacking in professional ability because President Roosevelt picked him for his job and the President backs up his men.

Moreover, it would be a horrible thing to keep a mediocrity or incompetent in a command to the jeopardy of soldiers' lives and the national safety just to placate some State political machine. Nor do I mean by this to suggest that the Guard officers are inefficient as a group, but only that in view of the employment of the Guard as a political army in Louisiana and Rhode Island in recent years, you naturally expect to find in it some officers who don't measure up.

Well, here we are at the end of the line and still I haven't gone into my piece about the grouping and organization of the new Army which I have been studying for days and days and still don't grasp and, therefore, assume that you don't. Well, tomorrow is another day.

Change Of Tone

By Barnet Nover

America And Hitler's Timetable

THE VIOLENCE of the German and Italian reactions to the President's March 15 address is symptomatic of the alarm which it has produced in those countries.

NOVER

In the past, the dictators have found it possible to dismiss American utterances critical of their actions and ideologies as meaningless pinpricks. They could afford to scoff at such utterances because they had no force of the kind respected by totalitarian regimes, nor of any threat of force. What this country did mattered; not what our statesmen said. And what we did was, by and large, far more encouraging than discouraging to the aggressors.

For years the deliberate policy of the United States was to close its eyes to any distinction between aggressors and their victims. Even as late as the summer of 1939, when Europe was plunging headlong into war, a powerful faction in Congress prevented the revision of the Neutrality Act along realistic lines.

AMERICAN POLICY has undergone very radical changes since those days. When the President spoke on Saturday night, the lease-lend bill had already been enacted into law and Congress was moving rapidly to act on the request by the Chief Executive for a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to implement that measure.

Hitler's riposte to Mr. Roosevelt's promise of unlimited aid to Great Britain, Greece and China was along familiar lines. He said that "no power and no support coming from any part of the world can change the outcome of this battle in any respect. England will fall." But his speech was, in large part, pitched in a much lower key than most of his speeches have been, as though he was moved by the unfamiliar feeling that the Third Reich faces dangers which not even oratory can exorcise.

LAST YEAR something went wrong with Hitler's English timetable. It forced him to make far-reaching changes in his plans and strategy. Before these could be worked out with the usual German thoroughness, Mussolini took the plunge in Egypt and Greece with consequences disastrous to Italy and embarrassing, to say the least, to Germany. Again Hitler had to recast his plans. Before launching an all-out attack on Great Britain he had to recoup the losses suffered by his ill-fated partner.

A fortnight ago it looked as though he might achieve the latter objective at relatively little cost. Bulgaria agreed to become a doormat over which the Nazi legions could march in triumph on Greece. The Yugoslav government under terrific pressure from Berlin showed signs of joining the procession. There was doubt as to the capacity of Great Britain to divert any men and supplies from Africa to the Aegean. The Turkish attitude remained a mystery. A German hegemony over the Balkans achieved by the strategy of terror alone seemed a real possibility.

THE BALKAN picture is now in process of undergoing a radical change. There is no longer any doubt whatever that British troops and material have landed somewhere in the Aegean area. Their arrival will ease the situation for the Greeks, as it has already helped stiffen the morale of the Yugoslavs and given the Turks an incentive to act in a positive manner. In the meantime, a great Italian offensive directed, it was reported, by Mussolini himself has gone on the rocks.

The refusal of these small Balkan nations, particularly Greece, to bow the knee to the conqueror of half of Europe must seem incredible to the Fuehrer, as it must appear fantastic to the German military mind. When Germany threw up the sponge in the fall of 1918, her own territory had not been invaded. She was still in possession of most of her war gains, including the Ukraine and Russian Poland, almost all of Belgium and a good part of northern France. But by that time it had become apparent to the German high command that Germany was fighting a losing fight, that she could not win against the forces which, by November, 1918, were mobilized against her. The logic of the situation called for surrender before the war was brought to German soil. This logic ruled the day. Germany surrendered.

THIS SAME LOGIC, in reverse, has been applied and applied with success in more than one instance since Hitler came into power. Hitler has been seeking to apply it again, this time in the Balkans. It worked in the case of Bulgaria. But the Greeks, though fantastically outnumbered, would not permit it to work in their case. The people of Yugoslavia have gained courage by their neighbors' example. And all of them have been stiffened in their resolution to resist dictation by the promise of American aid voiced by President Roosevelt.

There can be no discounting the force which Hitler has massed and is in a position to mass on the borders of Greece and Yugoslavia. It begins to look, however, that if he is to have his way in the Balkan, mere threat of force will not suffice. Force will have to be used. To use force means, however, to revive the nightmare that plagued the Kaiser—a war on two fronts.

If he doesn't fight, he faces the possibility of another upset in his timetable, and this with his margin of safety growing slight as the American industrial giant prepares to put on seven-league boots. More than ever, therefore, Hitler is under compulsion to seek a decision soon before American aid to Britain becomes a factor too great for Germany to overcome. But to move with undue haste, in the Balkans or anywhere else, may mean moving before a satisfactory plan of action is fully worked out. That is the dilemma which faces Hitler today.

10,000 Visit New Gallery

By Charles Mercer
Post Staff Writer

The people proved yesterday that the National Gallery of Art belongs to them.

They came more than 10,000 of them, young and old, rich and poor, dressed in sweaters and furs, to view enduring art of the ages on the first day the gallery was open to the general public.

White, colored, yellow and brown mingled under the great rotunda and in the colonnaded garden courts. In the endless galleries were heard Spanish, French and Italian amid the hushed voices of Yankee and Southerner.

The impossibility of seeing everything at one time was voiced by a tired man who said to his companion, "The idea is to come and look at one room and then come back on other days and see the other rooms one at a time."

The persons who went to particular rooms and stayed there to study the art often reflected the work they observed. In the deeply religious work of Gaddi and Giorgione of the Florentine school many elderly persons and a number of priests found peace and opportunity for meditation.

Attracting a large number of visitors were the canvasses of the early American School, chiefly grave and pink-cheeked faces of the founding fathers by Gilbert Stuart.

Everyone was a critic, and sometimes the person with the loudest voice was the most convincing.

A young man with a French accent and a stocky man with a nasal drawl had to be hushed by a guard in an argument over the comparative merits of Venus Anadyomene and Bacchus and a Young Fawn by Sansovino. The Frenchman was for Venus and the Yankee was for Bacchus.

As the guard edged them away, the Frechman caressed the ankle of Venus. "Such form," he muttered in a voice almost tearful.

Artists Preview Corcoran Exhibit

Factory laborers, miners and shopkeepers have over the last seven years made America art-conscious through "decentralized community art projects," Forbes Watson, of the FWA Section of Fine Arts, yesterday told more than 300 of this country's art leaders.

Watson told the delegates to the two-day convention of the American Federation of Arts that a "new public for art" has resulted from the growth of school and adult art classes, Government art projects, and the popularization of low-cost prints and amateur painting.

Samples of typical American paintings gathered from all sections of the country were examined by the artists at a preview of the Corcoran Gallery's biennial exhibit. They included scenes from defense-booming cities, devastated farms and Western landscapes.

Consensus of opinion of speakers at last night's session urged Federal support necessary for American art.

Backgrounds of American art will be discussed at today's session, to be held in the National Gallery of Art

Lost { Her Double Chin / Her Prominent Hips / Her Sluggishness

Gained { In Attractiveness / A Shapely Figure

When your bowels and kidneys fail to perform their work correctly your system cannot throw off the waste materials and digestion often becomes deranged—you lose energy and activity. Perhaps before you realize it you're losing your appeal and getting objectionably fat.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of water every morning half an hour before breakfast, cut out pastry, fatty meats—and go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. In three weeks get on the scales and see how many pounds of fat have vanished; notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin seems clearer and eyes brighter—you feel younger in body and keener in mind.

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts (a famous English formula) plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant, at leading druggists everywhere; lasts 4 weeks and is inexpensive. Money back if not fully satisfied.

Dr. Price, Once GHA Defender, Assails Project as Inadequate

Seeking, under cross-examination, to break down Dr. Price's condemnation of the group clinic which the American Medical Association, District Medical Society and 18 affiliated physicians are accused of obstructing, Prosecutor John Henry Lewin played as his trump card the stenographic record of the witness' testimony before the grand jury in the fall of 1938.

Different View in 1938

Dr. Price, then a member of the G. H. A. staff, was asked:

"What about the kind of treatment that you give to the patients at Group Health as compared to the kind of treatment you could give to the patients in private practice in Delaware?" (He formerly practiced in that State).

"Well, the treatment and care are superior here," he replied, according to the grand jury investigation transcript, "because we have the association with other men in the various specialties and have complete and adequate laboratory facilities, and also because we can devote our entire time to medical work and not have to think about the patient's pocketbook. So I believe we can give the patients better medical care."

Dr. Price, a Naval Reserve officer, joined the G. H. A. staff early in 1938, a few months after the clinic was opened. Some time later he submitted his resignation, only to withdraw it after a large number of G. H. A. members protested that they liked his services so much they wished him to stay. Eventually, however, he left the clinic staff.

Defense counsel raised objections to the Government's liberal use of the grand jury hearing transcript while Dr. Price was on the stand. Justice James M. Proctor permitted its use, however, with certain limitations.

The witness said that, by direction of the G. H. A. medical director, he had had to "stall off" patients desiring surgical operations because the clinic's hospitalization funds were inadequate.

Consultation by Phone

He admitted that a rule of the District Medical Society prohibiting its members from consulting with G. H. A. doctors had worked a disadvantage when he sought the assistance of an outside specialist in connection with the treatment of two cardiac cases.

Leahy elicited from the witness, however, the statement that Dr. Thomas Lee, the specialist in question, did consult with him by telephone and help materially in bringing about the recovery of both patients.

"Is there anything unethical about group health practice?" Lewin asked Dr. Price.

"Well, I don't understand. There are so many standards of ethics," was the reply.

"In 1938 weren't you able to give patients better care in G. H. A. than in your private practice in Delaware," Lewin came back.

"No," said the witness. At that point, the prosecutor showed Dr. Price the transcript excerpt in which he was represented as saying group practice was superior. The witness thereupon modified his answer with, "In some ways, yes."

Dr. Leland Denies Charges

Lewin then read the excerpt to the jury.

First witness yesterday was Dr. R. G. Leland, director of the A. M. A.'s bureau of medical economics and one of the 18 personal defendants. He denied categorically the Government's charges, as set forth in the indictment, that he conspired to restrain G. H. A., its doctors and hospitals whose facilities were desired by the health cooperative.

Like Drs. William C. Woodward and William Dick Cutter, A. M. A. colleagues who have already testified in their own defense, Dr. Leland said he only sought information about prepayment, group practice plans, that he did not attempt to interfere with them.

Leahy presented to the jury a letter written by Dr. Leland in which he mentioned that the Ross-Loos Clinic—a group practice plan—was staffed with "very competent physicians."

In his nationwide investigations, said the witness, he encountered certain types of contract practice schemes which should have been discouraged. As a case in point, he told of one such clinic which amputated a member's arm because that was a more economial than a protracted course of treatment.

Some types of contract practice are essential as in industry, said Dr. Leland. He asserted that the bureau which he heads never took any action against Group Health Association, did not even investigate it. It was only three days ago, he added, that he even knew where G. H. A. was situated (1326 I Street Northwest).

Only other witness yesterday was Percy S. Brown of Boston, treasurer of the Twentieth Century Fund and the Good Will Fund, who was subpenaed along with a quantity of the two organizations' financial reports. These presumably will be offered in evidence later.

Group Health Association launched with a $40,000 grant by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, also was aided financially by the Twentieth Century Fund.

Entering its seventh week, the trial will be resumed this morning.

Defense Housing Record Described As 'Remarkable'

"Remarkable" strides have been made a defense housing, with 72,335 family dwelling units approved by March 15, Carl Monsees, executive assistant to the Defense Housing Administrator, last night told a conference sponsored by the housing committee of the Washington Industrial Union Council.

In approximately eight months that the coordinated program has been under way, 40,987 units have been put under contract and 3,879 completed by March 15, he said in a report on Federal financed housing in the Nation.

He quoted an estimate that during 1941 private enterprise may build as many as 200,000 homes for families with incomes of less than $2,000.

Asked about the possibility of rents being raised in Federal financed projects as wages rise, Monsees said rents would probably be increased on an annual basis to keep pace, if persons were renting in proportion to income.

3 New Yorkers Named to U. S. Arts Commission

Three New Yorkers were appointed yesterday by President Roosevelt to four-year terms on the United States Commission of Fine Arts, which has sway over statues and other works of art on Federal property in the District.

Appointed were:

Henry Varnum Porr 3d, New York painter who has won many prizes for his work and did murals for the Department of Justice and the New Interior Buildings.

Frederick P. Keppel, president of the Carnegie Corporation, author, third Assistant Secretary of War at the close of the World War, and director of several large business enterprises.

William F. Lamb, New York architect, reappointed for a second term.

Poor and Keppel will replace Eugene F. Savage and Paul Manship, whose terms expire.

Cantrels 2d Set of Twins Born 17 Years Later on Same Day

Mention March 6 to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cantrel, 127 West Bradley Lane, Chevy Chase, Md., and they'll tell you it's just about the most important date in history.

February 12, Lincoln's birthday, February 22, Washington's birthday and November 11, Armistice Day, are important, of course. But really outstanding as far as the Cantrels are concerned is March 6, the birthday of their two sets of twins.

Mrs. Cantrel's second set of twins were 12 days old yesterday and doing splendidly. They were born at Georgetown Hospital 17 years to the day after her first set.

"It was a surprise," said Mrs. Cantrel, "and I'm just delighted."

The Cantrels have decided to name the new arrivals Esther and Joanne. "Esther will be named for me and Joanne for my husband," said Mrs. Cantrel. "We would have called her Josephine, but I didn't like that name."

Esther weighed six pounds, 12 ounces at birth and Joanne, seven pounds, two ounces.

The other Cantrel twins are Frank and Joseph, jr. Neither set is identical. Frank is a student at Gonzaga and Joseph attends Bethesda-Chevy Chase, High School. The Cantrels also have a 14-year-old daughter, Mary, who attends the Georgetown Visitation Convent.

Mr. Cantrel, a lawyer with an office in Washington, is counsel to the Montgomery County Commissioners. He is a former delegate to the Maryland State Legislature.

Silk-Stocking Sabotage

Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, militant reformer, who has stopped a lot of things, now intends to stop silk-stocking runs.

Mrs. DeGoofey

The aggressive president of the Do Something About It League announced at her conference yesterday that she had started an investigation of "just who or what" was behind the recent epidemic of silk stocking runs in the downtown district.

"But isn't it generally accepted that acid cinders are causing this national crisis?" asked the correspondent for the Economic Review.

"Yes but WHO is back of the acid cinders?" retorted Mrs. DeGoofey. "I am convinced there is a foul plot afoot. Ever since I won my fight a year ago to keep women in short skirts there has been continual sabotage against their efforts to display their legs."

"Whom do you suspect in this case?" asked a city room "undercover" man.

Warmongers Among The Suspects

"My agents are working on several angles. Of course, there is the possibility that Hitler and Mussolini are involved. But since both have their hands full at present, a more likely lead is that the warmongers and interventionists are trying to discourage women from wearing silk stockings and to get them into uniforms—possibly to send them to fight on foreign soil! At any rate I intend to ask a Congressional investigation at once."

"But, really," interjected a London correspondent, "isn't Congress a trifle too busy at the moment for such a trivial undertaking?"

"Our Congress is never too busy for anything trivial," replied Mrs. DeGoofey. "However this is not trivial. The way it is affecting the pocketbooks of our womanhood makes it one of the vital problems of the day. Moreover, I know Congress would take to such an investigation like a duck to water. Why its members could virtually talk all summer on the subject!"

"Mrs. DeGoofey," broke in an art critic, "have you considered that the League of Higher Esthetes might be involved in this plot?"

"Yes, I am investigating that too. As you may remember, both the League of Higher Esthetes and the Associated Esthetes, Inc. fought me bitterly when I was conducting my campaign to retain the short skirt. Well, all I can say is that if our esthetes don't like the looks of our Washington women let them go to Hollywood. This is a free country and as long as I have a breath of life I shall fight for the constitutional right of bow-legged and knock-kneed women to wear short skirts."

News Photographers Are Exonerated

"Mrs. DeGoofey," said a poetry editor, "I have heard it suggested that the newspaper photographers were back of this hose run epidemic—so they could get pictures for their papers."

"That is perfectly absurd," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "Newspaper photographers already have more leg pictures than they can get in the paper. I understand they are even hiring extra men to keep up with the situation.

"No, I think it more likely that some jealous woman, who has never yet had her picture in the paper with legs crossed started the acid cinders plot."

Mrs. DeGoofey announced that to meet the immediate emergency she was having manufactured some cellophane pantalettes for women to wear on the streets.

"These would be neatly ruffled at the ankles and would be very effective as attention getting devices," she said. "Meanwhile, I shall keep on the trail of the conspirators who are responsible for the stocking runs. And I want to take this opportunity to assure all women that I shall never desert the battle for the short skirts, and that even if we are all driven into uniforms I shall see to it that they are made with knee trousers."

Deeply in Love and Unable to Wed for Four Years, Couple Fight to Retain Emotional Control During Their Infrequent Visits Together; Girl Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Perhaps you can help me with a problem that has been worrying me very much. We are "head over heels in love," as the saying goes, but because of the young man's chosen profession, marriage is utterly impossible for at least four years. Our minutes together are few and far between. He is in college in the West and we meet only for short times—when he is en route from school to his home.

Perhaps it is the infrequency and brevity of these visits that determine their character—but no matter with what high purpose we start the evening, our emotions run away with us and we find ourselves very nearly involved in something neither of us wants. It has been said, time and again, that it is the girl's duty to prevent such happenings. But can you tell me how I can do this?

I often think it would be better not to see him. But ours doesn't seem to be the kind of love one can put aside at will. I have often thought that a serious talk on the subject would help us both. But since we seem to be confined to short hours together, there has never been time for serious talk until too late—and letters just don't do for that. Do help me, Miss Haworth. I have to have a solution. We can't live through four years of such worry and uncertainty as this has caused us. Thank you. TROUBLED.

Man Doesn't Distress Girl He Truly Loves

DEAR TROUBLED: It is my belief that any man who would put a girl on the defensive against his address—to the extent that she feels charged with the burden, yet unequal to the task, of "keeping their emotions from running away with them"—is either a man who isn't in love, or a man who hasn't yet developed the capacity to really love.

Someone has beautifully defined love as "the desire to give fullness of life." Another has supplied a more down-to-earth and yet more searching definition, to-wit: "Love is that state in which the satisfaction and security of another person becomes as significant to one as one's own satisfaction and security." To love, then, is to experience the capacity to think and feel and act, spontaneously, in terms not only of sharing another's burdens and relieving his anxieties, but of enriching his existence with every immediate and lasting good that is in one's power to evoke or confer. True love is infinitely compassionate and protective; inexhaustibly patient and charitable; "suffereth long and is kind," as Scripture tells us—and therefore must not be confused with the stark urgency of brutal desire, blindly seeking its own appeasement.

Real love, on the one hand, when confronted by impetuous emotional self seeking, on the other hand, is inevitably thwarted and distorted in its flowering—shaped either to a pattern of grieved resistance or to a pattern of psychically distressing compromise. Your troubled attitude with regard to the form your romance is taking, suggests that your love for your "young man" is being maimed by such attempted compromise.

And unless you can elicit his genuinely protective consideration, and wholehearted cooperation in a plan of behavior that will give you a light heart and complete peace of mind in your future dealings with him—it is my belief that the only "right" solution of the situation is to renounce the relationship. As you suggest, a grave discussion of your erstwhile headlong pleasure-seeking performance, and its progressively corrupting implications and temptations, might stem the toboggan slide into an "involvement which neither of you wants."

Such a discussion might bring about a meeting of minds, a oneness of understanding, which would constitute a finer, more dependable, more satisfying bond—in the current emergency of enforced separation and inability to marry—than your unhappy eddying both toward and against forbidden lovemaking ever can. And it is for you, who most seriously feel the need of this discussion, to make occasion for introducing it and carrying it through to some positive conclusion. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

New Neckwear Far From Timid

No timid, retiring fashion is the new neckwear! It's big and important, appearing on daytime dresses, casual dresses, suits, coats and dinner costumes. Big sailors. Big Puritans. Big yokes. Big revers. And lots of generously ruffled jabots.

Most of the new big collars are done in sheer organdie or mousseline de soie with many tucks, row upon row of fine lacee and delicate embroidery.

Jabots are the top fashion at present. They ripple from suit fronts. They cascade from the necklines of afternoon and dinner dresses. Tailored suits are softened by the frilly jabots. Some are attached to collars; others to gilets; still others are separate just to pin or clip to any neckline.

Whether of lace, embroidered net, lace edged organdie, embroidered organdie, or sheer mousseline de soie, they give any costume feminine flattery.

Slenderize Legs By Exercise

OH, for a pair of lovely slim legs in this day of ever shorter skirts!

But, if your legs aren't all they should be, don't bemoan your fate—DO something about it!

You can! Those heavy knees and calves that make you so self-conscious could soon be slimmed with proper exercise. Then you wouldn't be so embarrassedly tugging at your skirts. You'd have the shapely "underpinnings" that everyone admires.

Or have you other figure faults—fatty rolls at the waistline, a drooping bust sadly unlike the firm, rounded contours in fashion now?

Spruce up with the exercise routines in our 40-page booklet, BEAUTY AND HEALTH THROUGH SIMPLE EXERCISES. Has exercises to correct faults of posture, neck, shoulders, arms and bust; of hips, legs and waistline; for overcoming nervous tension, constipation, painful feet and backache; for regaining your figure after childbirth.

Send 15c in coin for our booklet, BEAUTY AND HEALTH THROUGH SIMPLE EXERCISES, to the NEW YORK OFFICE of THE WASHINGTON POST, Home Institute, 100 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of Booklet.

Elsa Maxwell Selects Ideal Dinner Guests

By Hope Ridings Miller.

ELSA MAXWELL, Playgirl of the Western World and the Nation's No. 1 party giver, has shelved that dual role . . . for the duration. She won't be flinging any more double-barreled fun fests . . . purely for pleasure . . . until after the war.

But in rare moments of leisure from lecturing, writing, and arranging benefit teas, she sometimes amuses herself by making up lists of guests she'd like to invite to a dinner . . . if she were giving one, just for fun. Likewise, she finds it entertaining to name several persons she wouldn't have to any dinner, any time, for any reason.

ELSA MAXWELL

The two lists came to light during an interview I had with La Maxwell yesterday in the Leroy Place home of Mrs. Arthur Fowler.

I put the questions to her, and got the answers back in record time. Would the woman who is an authority on what makes entertaining tick care to name names for an ideal dinner company? In other words, if she were giving a party tonight, and could pick 12 guests from all over the world, whom would she choose?

"That'll be fun," she answered, with a chuckle. "It'll also be easy." Here's the list . . . and at least one reason for each inclusion:

Alice Longworth ("She can carry any company off its feet, without showing off.")

Cole Porter ("So genial and stimulating you can't fail to have a good time if he's around.")

George Bernard Shaw ("As a counterirritant for Winston Churchill.")

Anne O'Hara McCormick ("Because she's one of the most interesting and best informed women I know.")

Clare Boothe ("She'd add an extra dash of beauty.")

Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr. ("For his charm.")

Charles Boyer ("For his flair at making women feel fascinating and other men, successful.")

Dorothy Parker ("Her quips would help.")

Gertrude Lawrence ("Because she's one of the most delightful women I know.")

Robert Benchley ("For his wit, and his genius at bringing out wit in others.")

Mrs. Huntington Astor ("A distinctive addition to any gathering, large or small.")

I noted that Washington was represented in that company by only one person. But that situation was nicely balanced when we got down to the business of making a list for the dullest dinner company Miss Maxwell could possibly imagine. But after naming only six she said:

"The crowd's getting so dull I'm already bored to death with it. I can't go on."

With that behind us, we looked into the future . . . the future of society, to be exact. Miss Maxwell thinks there's going to be "a great leveling" in the social system. She believes money is going to count for less and less, and that the person who doesn't have something besides a fat bankroll to recommend him is going to be completely out of the social picture.

And that, thinks Miss Maxwell, is exactly as it should be. While she's full of folklore on the rich and ritzy, she prides herself on the fact that all her best friends could carry their own weight, with or without money.

Talk turned to parties and party-giving, and soon Miss Maxwell was mentioning a few rules for successful entertaining. Here they are:

Ask only those persons who will actually contribute to the party; who will cooperate with you, the hostess, and help make everybody else have a good time.

Don't ask anybody just to pay off an obligation.

Don't ask anybody because of his political position or his rating in Wall Street.

Don't ask anybody who won't cheerfully comply with your request to play games, treasure hunt, tell stories or dance. (Miss Mexwell, you remember, once had Einstein doing the shag at one of her parties.)

Be sure that everybody at the party is a participant in the fun-making; allow no "spectators to remain."

And what if, by some mistake, you find among your guests somebody who turns out to be a dud? Ah, Miss Maxwell has a cure for that type, too.

"I always have on hand a supply of the newest books—novels, autobiographies, and adventure stories. A guest who threatens to be a wet blanket is quietly tapped on the shoulder by a servant and

Mrs. Watson, at Piano, Holds Notable Audience Spellbound

By Elizabeth Henney

An audience held its breath. Seated on the stage before an immense dark grand piano, a Dresden figurine of a fair-haired woman in pastel blue, swayed gently to the soft violin prelude of the orchestra. Then she dropped her hands to the keyboard—and an ocean roar of sound rolled out through Constitution Hall.

Frances Nash Watson, playing as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra last evening, was master of the instrument she played. She treated the piano, not as a giant to be appeased, but as though she could bend it to her will and draw from it any mood she wished. And she drew many, from torrential cascades of deafening sound to lilting ripples that gurgled with an impish joy. Not only master of her art, she held her audience spellbound too, and they called her back again and again after her program was over.

The soloist, known officially in Washington as Mrs. Edwin Watson, is the wife of Brig. Gen. Edwin A. Watson, Military Aide to the President. A professional concert artist for years, she has played with the symphony orchestras of Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis and Washington, in addition to her own concert tours.

Last evening's program drew from the ranks of Washington's society, officials, diplomats and residentials, many of them friends who would never miss a chance to hear her artistry. Down from New York, for the occasion, came Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, who though rushed by official business, managed to arrive at Constitution Hall, accompanied by Gen. Watson, just before Mrs. Watson came onto the stage, and left immediately afterwards.

Wallaces Occupy Presidential Box

Vice President and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace occupied the Presidential Box, having as their guests Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Stanley Reed and Mrs. Mae Helm, White House Secretary.

The Supreme Court was well represented, too, for in other boxes around the blue horseshoe of the hall were noted Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, she in black velvet, sprinkled with gold sequins; Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, and Justice Frank Murphy.

In still other boxes were Miss Mabel Boardman, who had with her her sister, Mrs. Murray Crane; Mrs. Emil Hurja with her brother-in-law and his wife, Maj. and Mrs. Arthur Hurja, and the Federal Security Administrator, Paul V. McNutt, with Mrs. McNutt and daughter, Miss Louise McNutt.

Concert Preceded By Many Dinners

Many a dinner party preceded the affair, and among those entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, who had as their honor guest Mrs. Robert Low Bacon. Their other guests included Mr. and Mrs. William Delano, who came here for the opening of the National Art Gallery and are house guests of Mrs. Bacon; Walter Pendergast and Miss Kemp Stilling.

The Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Baroness van Boetzelaer also had dinner guests before the concert. They included the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Ciechanowska, Mrs. Hallam Tuck, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Orme Wilson.

Dave Saranoff, head of the N. B. C., was among the audience, and his broadcast network recorded the program. Others noted during the evening were Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury; Hans Kindler, the Greek Minister and Mme. Diamantopoulos and hundreds more.

About the Town

—with Dudley Harmon

WHEN THE new Representative from New York, Joseph C. Baldwin, comes to town, Congress will welcome its greatest "family man." Not only does he come from an enormous clan—eight brothers and sisters—but has a large assortment of children himself. ("At least seven!" says one Washington friend.)

DUDLEY HARMON

Mrs. Baldwin is a Frenchwoman whom her husband met abroad. For years their Thursday evenings "at home" have been one of the few salons in New York. During the campaign for Repeal, as might be expected of any French person, Mrs. Baldwin took a great interest in working for the committee. She went around the country under the direction of Mrs. Dwight Davis.—then Mrs. Charles Sabin—making speeches.

One of the new Representative's sisters is married to a Warburg. The Baldwin family place in Westchester County is filled with beautiful old tapestries and has an enormous pipe organ. After the depression the estate became very much of a white elephant.

Mr. Baldwin fills the vacancy left by the late Kenneth Simpson, liberal Republican leader who died recently of a heart attack.

WAITING impatiently to get into the thick of "The Battle of Britain" is blonde, attractive Elizabeth Alving, Swedish war correspondent. She is haunting the British Embassy to make final arrangements to sail and hopes to leave in April. She will carry with her the most streamlined luggage possible—one small suitcase and a handbag.

Miss Alving, who left a 3-year-old baby back in Sweden, started her career writing up cosmetics for a woman's magazine. After she had begged for something more interesting, she was sent to cover the Olympic games in Germany. When they were over, she cabled a request to go to the war in Spain. Her paper didn't want to take the responsibility so wired no—but sent her the necessary money. Later she covered the Finnish war, and did such a good job that some of the newspapermen, reluctant to freeze at the front, just copied her dispatcnes.

Several of the topflight women correspondents of Washington will give a luncheon for Miss Alving today.

WASHINGTON is wondering if Lady Salter will accompany Sir Arthur when he arrives from England on a mission to discuss shipping. The recently married wife of the British secretary is an American and owns the house here where Secretary Frances Perkins lives. When she was Mrs. Arthur Bullard, widow of the newspaper correspondent, Lady Salter spent several winters here. She used to summer in Geneva, occupying the home of the late Ernest Shelling, near Paderewski's barbed-wire enclosed establishment.

OFF FOR Havana today on another embassy-decorating mission is Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins. The new embassy there will not be completed until next fall, but Mrs. Robbins, with the taxpayer in mind, will look over the old furniture to see how much can be salvaged.

Loaded down with bottles, formulas, and their ten weeks old baby, Commander and Mrs. Jerauld Wright left by train yesterday for the West Coast. From there they will go to Hawaii, as Commander Wright has been named to the Mississippi. After closing their home in Annapolis the Wrights put up in Washington for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, sr.

Notes of Society

—Official—Residential—

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Frederick G. Pyne have arrived in Washington from the West Coast and have taken an apartment at the Brighton Hotel.

Col. and Mrs. B. L. Jackson have returned from Quarry Heights, Canal Zone and are visiting Mrs. Jackson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Didlake at Manassas, Va.

Mrs. David Stuart Mann, Miss Rita Walker Malcoskey and Miss Edna Walker Malcoskey, who are stopping at the Mayflower Hotel, will leave shortly for The Homestead in Hot Springs, Va. They came to Washington for the opening of the National Gallery of Art Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan E. Reeside of 6437 Thirty-first Street are enjoying several days' visit at the Shoremeade Hotel at Miami Beach, Fla.

Mrs. S. A. Cloman, Mrs. Phillips Entertain for 50

Mrs. Sydney A. Cloman and Mrs. Clifton Phillips entertained at an informal cocktail party yesterday afternoon. From 5 to 7 o'clock about 50 friends attended the fete, which took place in Mrs. Cloman's apartment at 2310 Connecticut Avenue.

The party was one in a series that Mrs. Cloman and Mrs. Phillips are giving this season. Mrs. Cloman, incidently, recently completed her autobiography, "I'd Live it Over," which is scheduled for publication in May.

Margaret Howard Engaged to Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Brush Howard of New York and Annapolis have announced engagement of the former's daughter, Miss Margaret Bushrod Howard, to Lieut. David Livingston Roscoe, jr., U. S. N., son of Col. and Mrs. David Livingston Roscoe, U. S. A., retired, of Los Angeles.

Miss Howard was educated in France and England and was graduated from the Finch School in 1937. Lieut. Roscoe, a member of the class of 1931 at the United States Naval Academy, is now attached to the U. S. S. Erie.

Mrs. del Mar To Give Second Luncheon Today

Mrs. Carlos del Mar entertained at a luncheon yesterday and will be hostess again today at a similar party.

Guests yesterday were Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the Canadian Legation; Mme. Wennerberg, wife of the Counselor of the Swedish Legation; Mrs. William Fitch Kelly, Mrs. Harry Grant, Meem, Mrs. George F. Becker, Mrs. Kemper Williams, of New Orleans; Mrs. Emil Hurja, Miss Lydia Loring, Miss Elizabeth Howry, Countess Cassini and Mrs. del Mar's daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Y. Wheeler.

The Finletters Arrive in Capital

The newly appointed Special Assistant to the Secretary of State, Thomas Finletter, and Mrs. Finletter have arrived in Washington and are staying at the Mayflower.

They have taken a house in Georgetown for the season and will move there some time in April. Mrs. Finletter is the former Miss Gretchen Damrosch, daughter of the famous director, Walter Damrosch.

Miss Henning Sets New Date

A new wedding date has been selected by Miss Barbara Sears Henning who was to have been married to Thomas Courtenay O'Connell on June 14. The marriage will take place on June 12, the day following West Point graduation.

The couple will be married here in the Walter Reed Chapel. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sears Henning and made her debut several seasons ago. Mr. O'Connell, who is a first classman at the United States Military Academy, is the son of Col. and Mrs. George O'Connell of Fort McClellen, Anniston, Ala.

On Saturday night Miss Frances Clark will entertain at a supper party at the Army and Navy Country Club in honor of the engaged couple. Miss Clark is the daughter of Mrs. Frances Clark and the late Comdr. Clark.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Hostess At White House Dinner

A distinguished company dined at the White House last night when Mrs. Roosevelt entertained. Many attending the party are interested in what the First Lady terms "an experimental charity." The organization assists young boys, just out of reform school, in finding jobs.

Talisman roses, bronze snapdragons, jonquils and maidenhair fern were used on the table. Among the guests were the head of the Office of Production Management, William S. Knudsen, and Mrs. Knudsen; Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the National Democratic Committee; Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, niece of the First Lady; Miss Anne Morgan; Prince and Princess Archill Gourelli; the head of the National Youth Administration and Mrs. Aubrey Williams; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Studebaker and Judge and Mrs. Stephen S. Jackson.

Those attending the party were Miss Elizabeth Achelis, Armar E. Archbold, Mr. and Mrs. V. Hampton Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Buttenweiser, Mr. and Mrs. J. Randall Creel, Edward Elliott, Jakob Goldschmidt, Arthur Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Girard van D. Hale, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Hannum, Samuel Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Heimlich, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hires, Ira Hirschman, Alfred Illma, Miss Viola Illma, Miss Miriam Isaacs, Willard Kauth, Miss Laurette Kilborn, James A. Leftwich, Miss Katherine Lenroot, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gerard A. Matthiessen.

Still others there were Miss Mary Margaret McBride, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. McCormick, John J. McKeon, Newbold Morris, Harold Oerther, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel C. Perera, jr., Mr. and Mrs. George S. Pollitz, Albert B. Richter-Rothschild, Mrs. Moritz Rosenthal, Victor Roudin, Serge Rubinstein, Stuart Scheftel, David Scher, Dr. and Mrs. DeWitt Stetten, Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Elsa Maxwell Draws Up List of Ideal Dinner Guests ushered outside. His hat and coat are waiting. So am I. 'Just take one of these books and go on home, dear,' I say with my sweetest smile. 'You'd be much happier there, and you aren't much help here. Goodby.'"

In Miss Maxwell's bacon of buffoonery there is a wide strip of philosophy. To the latter she gives credit for much of her success. She knows what she is about, does Elsa. She knows what she wants and how to get it, and she's not one to be sidetracked with baubles that clutter up lives of far too many persons.

Miss Maxwell has never succumbed to the urge to collect inanimate objects of any kind, because she is thoroughly convinced that one is "possessed by his possessions" and she wants to be free. Discussing other tenets of her philosophy, she mentioned that she has "never been afraid of 'they'—whoever or whatever 'they' may be . . . because I don't owe anybody anything, and I don't have anything anybody can take away."

She never allows herself to be indebted to anybody, even for one second. She believes that happiness is the average person's ultimate aim. "And happiness," she went on philosophically, "is one thing you can't receive until you give it to others. And the more you receive, the more you give. You see, it's a circle . . . but not a vicious one."

They were many other subjects we touched on before Miss Maxwell had to tear away to dress for luncheon with Mrs. Harry Black. She said in passing she found more charming people per square inch in Washington than anywhere else in the world, and she named several persons to prove that point. She mentioned that she was to have dinner last night with Countess Zoppola and then said she would leave for New York today and start on a lecture tour in a few weeks. She implied that she might do another film in Hollywood; but she wasn't sure. She said she didn't allow herself to make plans too far ahead because she wants to be free to go and come as the notion strikes her.

Yes, she is doing some writing, too. Magazine stuff. But she has turned down those offers to do a syndicated column. "That's not my dish of tea," said Miss Maxwell . . . who knows what she's about.

Mrs. Waring Gives Informal Party

Mrs. Frank Waring gathered in a small group of friends for an informal luncheon party yesterday in her apartment at 1717 Twentieth Street.

Guests included Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Mrs. Frank Buck, Mrs. Francis Cabell Brown, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Barnet Nover and Miss Patricia Grady.

Alma Robinson To Be Wed Today To Dr. W. J. Homer

At 11 o'clock this morning in St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, Miss Alma Robinson will become the bride of Dr. Walter Jay Homer. The Rev. F. J. Bohanan will officiate.

Mrs. John Sloan McCall, sister of the bride, will serve as her only attendant, and Frank Reinhart will be best man. Following the ceremony, the couple will leave on a southern wedding trip, after which they will be at home at 2720 Wisconsin Avenue.

Miss Robinson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Prosser Robinson of Parker's Landing, Pa. She attended Wellesley College. Dr. Homer, the son of Mrs. Edgar S. Curfman of Altoona, Pa., received his bachelor's degree from Juniata College and his Ph. D. degree from Yale.

Huntington Girls Home From College

Arriving to spend their Spring vacations are the Misses Joanna and Edith Huntington, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington.

Stocking-Run Mystery Back With Ill Wind

An epidemic of running stockings broke out again yesterday in downtown Washington as District smoke control technicians dangled hosiery in the belching chimneys of central buildings in search of the mysterious run-ripping something.

The technicians denied that their investigations were responsible for the new outbreak of stocking shredding, which, like its three predecessors, accompanied a high wind.

They were sure there was no connection between the tests and the tears because the experimental stockings came through the soot undamaged. The chemists were working on the theory that a downtown chimney is spewing acid particles into the streets.

They plan to continue their chimney chasing today in the sector bounded by Tenth, Fourteenth and F Streets and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. This is the area most affected by the stocking plague.

Not a Laughing Matter

A theory advanced by H. K. Kugel, chief engineer of the smoke control division, is that sulphur in the soot, when mixed with moisture in the air, turns to sulphuric acid. But yesterday's smoke-treated hosiery seemed as strong as ever under tests in the division's laboratory.

Other smoke experts shot sand and soot particles at silk stockings with the aid of a sand blasting machine. But the thread did not break. The only effect was to stretch the mesh.

The scrapings from smokestacks of both the oil and coal-burning variety were mixed with water. Stockings were dipped into the solution. Not a stocking ran.

These tests were carried out under extreme mental pressure. Dozens of irate women called yesterday to tell Kugel and his assistants that "this isn't a laughing matter any more."

One such was Mrs. Ethel Cline, of Takoma Park, Md., who works in the Munsey Building. She told The Post she learned that a secretary in the smoke inspector's office had lost five pairs of stockings herself.

That made her feel better. Mrs. Cline has lost but four pairs—one in each attack.

"Honestly," she said, "you men have no idea how sickening it is to have this happen. Oh, the dickens. There it goes again. Another run."

Finds Black Particles

Sleuthing on her own, Mrs. Cline found six other women who had suffered stocking losses yesterday. One of them, Miss Edith Moorasa, who works at Whelan's Drug Store, at Fourteenth and E Streets, had red blotches break out on her face after feeling a stinging sensation as she went to work yesterday morning.

Mrs. Cline noticed that the runs started from the tongue of her shoe and found black particles lodged there after a short walk on E Street.

"Can't you do something about it?" she asked The Post. "What would all the employers in this area say if all of us stayed home on windy days? There'd be prompt action, I'd bet."

Serum Is Advised For Measles; Debs Fear Coming Out

Dr. George Ruhland, the District health officer, yesterday urged parents to obtain serum immunization of children under 3 years, who are exposed to measles, as 42 cases reported yesterday brought the total for the year to 525.

The health officer advised the precaution to check the disease, which has reached the mild epidemic stage.

Meanwhile, a group of Washington debutantes, who attended a luncheon Monday that was broken up by the discovery that the hostess had measles, reported that their friends were noticeably cool at yesterday's social affairs.

Miss Patricia Grady, daughter of the head of the President Lines and Mrs. Henry F. Grady, said she felt "socially ostracized." She also said she felt a bad cold coming on, generally first symptom of the red disease.

Workers Failing To Get Jobs Pose Problem Here

Relief for stranded workers who fail to obtain jobs here in national defense agencies has become a major problem to private welfare groups, the Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, director of Catholic Charities, declared yesterday.

Speaking before the luncheon meeting of the Federal Community Chest Forum, Father Shehan said although the defense program has lessened financial pressure on private groups it also has introduced new problems "which must be faced and solved."

Robert E. Bondy, welfare director and chairman of the welfare and consumer interest committee of the District Defense Council, who also spoke, explained the work of his committee which has planned an elaborate program for entertaining the man in uniform and which will, when the time comes, provide information to householders on commodity prices and problems of similar nature.

Diamond Jubilee Year

Celebrating 75 years of consistently superior ice cream

In 1866—just 75 years ago—a young man named Breyer made his first gallon of ice cream. He was neither a reformer nor a scientist. But he had one ambition . . . to make an absolutely pure, wholesome ice cream—the finest that could be produced.

So he pledged himself to use real cream, real cane sugar, pure, natural flavorings—and nothing else. No substitute ingredients . . . no fillers nor artificial flavorings. This is the famous Breyers "Pledge of Purity."

Year by year since 1866—through better methods of blending and freezing—by world-wide searching for finer ingredients—by creating new and more delightful ice cream flavors—Breyers Ice Cream has constantly improved in quality and taste.

Today—in our Diamond Jubilee year—Breyers is enjoyed by more people—is served in more hospitals and schools—than any other ice cream in America . . . a striking tribute to its quality and delicious flavor.

Lenten Talker Blames World Strife on Greed

"The only real answer to human dictatorship is divine dictatorship," the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, rector, Calvary Episcopal Church, New York City, said yesterday at the Church of the Epiphany, in a Lenten sermon on "The Threat to Freedom."

"If we let God tell us what to do, we should never need to be dominated by any human leader whatever," he said. "We should then be such men as would build such a society that nothing could overthrow it."

Materialism, individualism, division and godlessness are "grave threats to our democratic freedom that flourish within our own borders and in which many of us have a share," Dr. Shoemaker said.

"There is enough in this broad land, in this fertile world, for everybody's need, but there is not enough for everybody's greed," he asserted.

"Selfish people," he added, "often know better how to work for gain than unselfish people do for the good of all."

Speaking of division, he said: "A man said to me, 'Why shouldn't I get a divorce and marry another woman if I want to? It's a private affair.' 'Not at all,' " the rector said he retorted, " 'broken homes break the strength of the Nation.' "

"The truth is," he continued, "that we are asking our leaders to produce within this Nation and amongst the nations of the world, a unity which we often cannot produce right at home or in the office."

Dr. Shoemaker will speak at the service at the Church of the Epiphany at noon daily through Friday of this week.

The Gallup Poll

Public Favors Treatment in Special Camps Of Selectees Rejected for Curable Defects

By Dr. George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 18.—One of the health problems raised by the draft—an important one in the eyes of health experts—is what should be done with draftees or volunteers who are rejected for physical ailments that could be cured.

If a draftee has syphilis or some venereal disease, should an attempt to be made to follow up his case and see that he is treated? Should the Army accept men with bad teeth and fix their teeth before training them? Health experts argue that a worthwhile program of public health can be dovetailed into the work of the draft. The Army, on the other hand, wants only men who are in topnotch physical condition.

To determine where public opinion stands in this controversy—and particularly what men of draft age themselves think—the Institute has completed a survey in which two questions were posed, one dealing with venereal disease treatment and the other with bad teeth.

The results follow:

"The Army has been rejecting volunteers and draftees who have not been able to pass the physical examination because they have bad teeth. Do you think the Army should accept these men for duty and fix their teeth before they begin training?"

Yes	80%
No	13
Don't Know	7

"Do you think men who have a venereal disease that can be cured should be accepted by the Army and placed in special camps until they are cured before starting training?"

Yes	65%
Don't Know	10

The Army undoubtedly has good reasons for rejecting volunteers or draftees with such physical ailments as those described above. What the survey results indicate is simply that the public is not generally aware of those reasons, or has not been convinced by them. In the absence of well-publicized arguments why the Army should not accept men with curable defects and set up a program for curing them, the majority hold to the view that Army officials should, in fact, adopt such a program.

The young men of draft age interviewed in the survey voted affirmatively on the two questions by a large majority. Seventy-seven per cent favor the proposal for dental work on bad teeth, and 66 per cent the idea of curing venereal disease in special camps. If this view is any criterion, it seems evident that draftees and volunteers with physical defects would not object to a period of "curing" before their training began.

Bridges Denied 30-Day Delay in Hearing

By the Associated Press

Harry Bridges' appeal for a 30-day postponement of his deportation hearing was denied yesterday by Judge Charles B. Sears, the special presiding inspector appointed by Attorney General Jackson to hear the case.

As a result of the action, Bridges, who is the president of the C. I. O. Longshoremen's Union, will face the Government's witnesses March 31 in the Federal Court at San Francisco.

D. C. Merchants Ask Hundreds Of Additional Parking Meters

Installation of several hundred more parking meters in the downtown business district was urged yesterday by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Commenting on recent proposals to remove meters and ban all downtown parking, Arthur J. Sundlun, president of the association, said such a move would "drive business from the downtown section and result in a serious loss of property values and taxes."

"Even New York City," he said, "with its extremely congested streets, still permits parking on many of its streets in the business section."

Sundlun said his association favored creation of extensive off-street parking facilities, but until such facilities are provided, parking on the streets should be permitted.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

Employes who will be hired to help make the lend-lease bill effective will be chosen from Civil Service rolls, Budget Director Harold Smith has told the House Appropriations Committee. He added that the Civil Service Commission was doing a "very good job" of supplying personnel to defense agencies. The bill carries $10,000,000 for administrative expenses which is sufficient to hire thousands of new workers. Smith said the money would be distributed mainly among existing agencies. The Budget Bureau will control the money and supervise the spending.

Associate Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy has been proposed to President Roosevelt as chairman of the National Labor Mediation Board to be created to mediate defense strikes. His backer is known to be an influential adviser to the President on labor problems. Murphy is an old hand at mediating strikes, but whether he'd step down from the court is problematical. Solicitor General Francis Biddle also is being supported for a place on the board as is William H. Davis, former chairman of the New York Mediation Board.

Harold E. Pomeroy has submitted his resignation as chief of the home registration division in the office of the Defense Housing Coordinator. He had been under fire since his appointment . . . Representative Paul W. Shafer of Michigan, says the annual agriculture yearbook is "heavily tinged with communistic propaganda."

Roy Hendrickson, Agriculture's personnel director, is laid up with the measles . . . Allan B. Miller will resign soon as chief of Commerce's information section to accept a position with the Clear Channel Broadcasting Service . . . Farm Security is bringing Shelby Thompson from Milwaukee to grind out information for newspapermen . . . OPM has hired Mrs. Pauline Chambers to counsel the hundreds of young women it has, and will employ. Mrs. Chambers will try to see that the girls are properly housed, amused, and oriented at their jobs and in Washington. It's an idea that other defense agencies might follow.

Archie Edwards, Civil Service chief statistician, has an injured foot. He was hit by shot thrown from the arm of giant Al Blozis . . . Representative Fred Bradley of Michigan, a frequent CAA critic, brought out in yesterday's Congressional Record that there had actually been a decrease of accidents per million miles flown since CAA was reorganized despite the general opinion to the contrary. He complimented CAA chiefs for the fine record.

The Senate has approved a bill that would permit overtime pay to be paid to radio inspectors in the field . . . FBI has modified its requirements in a hunt for additional G-men. A law degree is now no longer mandatory. Applicants who have either investigative or practical business experience and who have a fluent knowledge of a foreign language will be accepted . . . Harold L. Ickes yesterday was given an illuminated scroll listing the accomplishments of the Interior Department under his record administration. Interior officials made the presentation . . . A well-dressed "business man" has taken a number of Commerce employes for a ride. He borrows from $2 to $5 from each employe after telling them he needs the money to keep an urgent appointment with Knudsen or Hillman or some other defense big shot.

NLRB is after more money for administrative expenses. It is operating with 100 fewer employes than a year ago and the number of complaints is averaging 88 more a week . . . Gifford Pinchot is expected to get a Federal appointment shortly, maybe Forest Service chief . . . Interior efficiency ratings for the period ended April, 1940, are being distributed, just a year late . . . Government bookkeepers are hoping Congress will authorize Federal agencies to pay selectees their accumulated annual leave. Leave is being carried on the books now and it's bound to lead to misunderstanding.

Castor Oil Is Defense Weapon Now!

When little Johnny refuses to take his castor oil he's not obstinate—he's patriotic.

It was included yesterday on a list of 220 critical defense items on which preference will be given to Army and Navy orders.

Officials said that castor oil is used as a lubricant in some airplane motors.

How Fast Is Fast?

Mr. and Mrs. James Riggsbee, of 1014 Twelfth Street Northwest, were arrested for reckless horseback riding along Potomac Parkway. The case came to court yesterday and Mounted Park Policeman R. I. Bartmess testified that the horses had been "extended."

Judge Newman dismissed the case. The patrolman, he said, should be more specific.

Blotto Service Is Proposed For Drunks

Creation of a "blotto" service with chauffeurs to drive drunks home in their cars, improvement of District street lighting and an interprecinct police safety contest were suggested last night as accident deterrents by Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican), of Ohio.

Senator Burton is the new chairman of the Senate subcommittee on D. C. traffic.

Burton, who was mayor of Cleveland when that city raised its traffic safety status to the highest in the United States, spoke at the advisory board meeting of the Keystone Automobile Club in the Shoreham Hotel.

Adoption of the Cleveland plan by the District, by which the traffic death rate was reduced 50 per cent from 1936 to 1938, was suggested as the cities are of similar size and population. Burton outlined the plan as involving:

Formation of a "safety board" of traffic judges, accident prevention officers, newspaper traffic reporters, and safety education workers.

Standard Fines

Initiation of "no-fix" speed tickets, a separate traffic court and standard fines.

A public education campaign, including door-to-door safety workers, distribution of 1,000,000 pieces of safety literature annually and periodic safety talks in schools and business establishments.

Creation of accident investigation squads, a police academy for training all traffic policemen in accident prevention measures and systematic safety contests among police precincts and city wards.

Organization of a statistical department as the basis of "selective enforcement" to concentrate on places and times when most accidents occur.

Establishment of a bureau of public relations membered by 15 of the best traffic experts from each precinct to coordinate safety efforts.

School for Violators

A traffic school for repeaters of traffic violations. Installation of two-way radio in police squad cars.

Burton credited the "psychology of safety" developed as a result of this program with the success of the Cleveland plan, together with street engineering improvements and impartiality in making traffic arrests.

The automobile club board supplemented his suggestions with a request that the District Commissioners void the directional arrows which prohibit cars from passing on both sides of streetcar loading platforms, thus creating "unnecessary one-lane traffic bottlenecks."

Hearings to present the "rights of motorists" on this order were asked and a factual survey by club traffic experts authorized.

George Carrick Dies; Year's 18th Traffic Fatality

D. C. traffic deaths this year .. 18
Deaths this date last year 15
Total D. C. deaths last year .. 79

George W. Carrick, 69, of 1519 Park Road, died at Garfield Hospital yesterday of a skull fracture, the District's eighteenth traffic victim this year.

He was knocked down by an automobile Sunday morning while crossing Park Road Northwest, at Pine Street, less than 70 feet from his home. Police said he started diagonally across the street and walked into the path of the machine.

Miss Ethel S. Hayden, 17, of 3100 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, was said by police to have been driving the car. She was released in custody of her attorney to appear at a coroner's inquest, the date of which has not been set.

Concert Has Mrs. Watson As Soloist

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Eugene Ormandy conducts the Philadelphia Orchestra on Tuesday night in Constitution Hall. Soloist: Frances Nash Watson, pianist. Program: Sinfonia for Double Orchestra, Op. 18, No. 3 (John Christian Bach), Piano Concerto No. 2 in D minor (Edward MacDowell), Symphony in D minor (Cesar Franck).

Two ovations, justly deserved by Frances Nash Watson and Eugene Ormandy, followed both halves of the concert in Constitution Hall last evening, when the Philadelphia Orchestra closed its regular series of Washington appearances for the season. Mrs. Watson, or Frances Nash as she has long been professionally known, won her award of three recalls by her technically brilliant and emotionally vital reading of MacDowell's D minor concerto, and Mr. Ormandy received a lengthy meed of appreciative applause for his fine interpretation of Ceesar Franck's noble symphony. The concert as a whole was one of the most satisfying that the Philadelphians have given us.

BROWN

For the performance of John Christian Bach's sinfonia in D major "for double orchestra," Mr. Ormandy arranged the musicians with the divided violins at the front of the stage and the violoncelli in a crescent behind them, so that the musical conversation between the sections became visually as well as audibly effective. This interesting work by Sebastian Bach's youngest son dates from the years when the symphony was emerging as a form, and the word itself had a variety of meanings. It was published as "a grand overture" and the three movements abide by the Italian procedure of enclosing a slow movement between two in fast time.

Sebastian Bach knew and occasionally practiced the Italian style, while Christian resided for an extended period in Italy and became thoroughly imbued with the southern idiom before settling in London in 1762. This was all to his advantage, for fashionable English music-lovers were at the moment what we would call today "Italy conscious" and Christian rode to popularity on the crest of the wave.

Mrs. Watson merits commendation for having chosen the D minor concerto of MacDowell, whose major works for piano have been in eclipse for too long a time. It is a lovely work, so suffused with genuine romantic feeling as to be virtually a tone-poem in which the piano has an eloquent voice. The opening larghetto and the largo which introduces the final allegro are in the ballad style, plainly narrative in implication, and the scherzo is a delightful fantasy which belongs with the fairy music of Mendelssohn and Weber. Mrs. Watson's reading was faithful to the poetic values, particularly in her intelligent treatment of the slow passages, and her technique had a fluent ease in the scintillant sections.

In his one symphony Cesar Franck expressed with perdurable fervor the selfless love which was his predominating characteristic. Vincent d'Indy has told us that Franck "radiated a love so warm and unselfish that his pupils not only cared for him as a father, but were attached to each other in and through him." It is this universal affection for men of good will, as well as Franck's innate and sincere mysticism, that imparts to the symphony its spiritual elevation.

Cleric Urges Pioneer Spirit In Churches

"Unless the church and Christian people become venturesome pioneers once more and give the spiritual leadership so desperately needed by the world, we are headed for a temporary lag in the onward march of the human race toward the spiritual level of life which Jesus characterized as the kingdom of God."

Thus the Rev. John W. Harms, of Baltimore launched his address on "Significant Frontiers in Christian Education" last night at the annual dinner of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association.

"The great abstract problem of world peace comes down finally to the problem of Christian education," Dr. Harms said, naming as other areas in which such education is needed: Alcohol control, race problems, economic organization, home and marriage.

Dr. Harms, executive secretary of the Council of Churches and Christian Education of Maryland and Delaware, addressed the gathering of 130 association representatives at the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church.

Roy W. Prince, who is serving his twenty-ninth consecutive year as superintendent of Central Presbyterian Sunday School, was honor guest and was presented with a pin emblematic of that service. Dr. Charles E. Resser, president of the association, presided.

Dr. Harms said a series of Christian education conventions will be held across America in the spring of 1942, with five to ten being planned for Maryland and Delaware. No doubt one will be in Washington, he added. This movement will lead up to a program in churches and communities, climaxed by the Nation-wide observance of Religious Education Week in the fall of 1942. Four or five years hence, he said, there will probably be a great all-American Protestant convention on Christian education.

Opposes Tax Increase

Opposition to any increase in the present District tax rates was expressed last night by the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association at its regular meeting held at 5320 Georgia Avenue Northwest.

The Dirksen proposal of Federal contributions to the District government was indorsed. Opposition was expressed to the plan to limit express transportation to Georgia and New Hampshire Avenues Northwest and to discontinuation of local service on the Petworth and Chillum bus lines.

Hearing Put Off Again

A hearing of the Public Utilities Commission here was called off for a second time yesterday because there aren't enough members of the commission to offer a majority decision.

Death of one member and resignation of a second leave Col. David McCoach as lone member of the board. Appointment of Gregory Hankin, an attorney with the Federal Power Commission, to the P. U. C., still awaits confirmation of the Senate.

Thus, action on Capital Transit's move to establish a straight 10-cent fare for the J-1 Takoma express bus will also have to wait, until at least one new colleague joins McCoach.

D.C. Formula Hearing Set For Tuesday

Overton and Dirksen Proposals for Fixing U. S. Contribution Will Be Gone Over

A public hearing on the Overton and the Dirksen bills to fix the Federal payment to the District was scheduled to start at 10:30 a. m. next Tuesday, after a conference yesterday between the House fiscal affairs subcommittee and city officials failed to produce any new revenue plan.

District officials were reluctant to express any opinion on the Dirksen measure on the ground that it carries no provision for arriving at the United States payment after the valuation of Federal property is reported to Congress.

Asked by Chairman Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, how the District intends to meet the emergency created by the rapid growth in Washington's population, Commissioner David McCoach said:

"If Congress appropriates for everything we need and fails to provide additional revenue, there will be no alternative for the Commissioners but to raise the real estate tax rate."

Rate High, Says McGehee

During a subsequent discussion of comparative realty taxes, Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, expressed the belief that "assessments here are higher than anywhere else in the United States."

McGehee said that whereas District assessments are on full value, assessments in his State would not average more than 40 per cent of actual market worth.

The Pond plan of a combined income and sales tax was indorsed again by McCoach, and the sales tax was urged by McGehee and Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana.

Chairman Hunter, however, told the conference that "there is no chance of the House passing a sales tax this year."

Average Return $16

Asked by Hunter what was being done to force the estimated 15,000 residents who have failed to file District income tax returns to comply, Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent said that his investigators were "concentrating" on corporations.

The average return from an individual tax return, he said, was only $16 last year.

"There's a lot more money to be obtained from checking upon the corporations," he added. "We haven't had the staff to make much of an audit of individual Federal tax returns."

Dent said he believed the 15,000 estimate of persons who have ignored the District income tax was too large. A great many taxpayers who filed their returns in Washington, he explained, actually live in Maryland or Virginia and consequently would not be subject to the local levy.

$4,000,000 Worth Off List

While reviewing his report of tax-exempt property in the District, Dent revealed that $4,000,000 worth of real property has been removed from the tax lists since July 1, last.

Representative Herbert and Chairman Hunter were both critical of the Congressional requirement that children of non-residents be admitted free of tuition charge to Washington public schools.

"Why, that's the most unfair thing I've ever heard of," he said.

McGehee objected to a suggestion that a special tax on gasoline be used for general revenue expenditures after Hunter explained that Ohio employed such a levy to pay part of the operating costs of the schools.

Sales Tax Favored

The Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights last night went on record in favor of a sales tax for the District in place of the present income tax plan.

The Overton plan for taxation also was favored by the association. Appointment of a rent commission in the District was opposed. Extermination of rats was urged.

The Rev. G. E. Lemski, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, led devotions at the session which was held in the Powell Junior High School, Hiatt Place and Lamont Street Northwest.

New Assembly To Hear Capper On Suffrage

District suffrage, the local income tax law and welfare problems confronting Washington will be discussed by a panel of Congressional and District leaders at the final organization meeting tonight of the Municipal Assembly in the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest.

Delegates from participating local organizations will vote on a proposed constitution for the assembly. A tentative draft provides that "any functioning organization, except political parties, whose membership includes 30 or more citizens of the District" shall be eligible for membership.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, will discuss the Capper-Sumner constitutional amendment which would enable Congress to provide national representation for the District and local self-government.

Dr. Herbert A. Wood, tax expert of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, will speak on proposed amendments to the income tax law and relative merits of the income and sales tax.

Mrs. George Barnes Galloway, of the League of Women Voters, is to present the highlights of the league's recent public hearings on the problem of relief and welfare needs of the District.

Other speakers of the assembly's second meeting will include Merlo J. Pusey, associate editor of The Washington Post, and District officials.

Purposes of the assembly are defined in the proposed constitution as seeking "to stimulate greater citizen interest; more responsible and vigorous organized group activity with reference to local civic affairs; to provide a means for crystalizing an informed public opinion on issues of major concern to the community, and to serve as an agency for the effective expression of the community will regarding questions of public policy."

House Group Seeks Change In Loan Law

The judiciary subcommittee of the House District Committee yesterday decided to promote legislation amending the small loan law and to consider a bill prohibiting the assignment of wages.

At the same time it pigeonholed seven other measures, one of which proposed to create the office of public defender in the District Court.

Public hearings will be held on the small loan legislation, Chairman McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, said, as soon as a bill being prepared by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech is submitted. This measure will be considered with the Nichols bill.

The Nichols bill would raise the legal interest rate on loans under $300 to 3½ per cent per month. Keech's bill, it was said, will propose a lower interest rate but an increase above the present 1 per cent per month.

McGehee said a proposed liberalization of the child labor law to permit minors to appear in public performances would be considered.

Bills set aside as having little chance of consideration at this session included, besides the public defender proposal, the following:

The Guyer bill to dry up the District, machinery for electing delegates to the national political conventions, the D'Alesandro bill to set up an elective municipal assembly, an amendment of the law regulating the hours of female employment, and a bill to require that amusement tickets sold when all seats are sold be stamped "S. R. O."

Penksa Tells Of Slaying At Inquest

He Confesses Shotgun Killing And Is Held for Grand Jury Action

A coroner's jury yesterday held Gay Alexander Penksa, 32-year-old stonemason, for grand jury action in the fatal shooting of Joseph L. Caligurie, 21, of 1720 Newton Street Northeast.

Not represented by counsel, Penksa took the stand in his own defense at yesterday's inquest and admitted firing a shotgun blast into Caligurie's heart at Eighth and F Streets Northeast, Saturday night.

The defendant agreed to make a "voluntary statement" after he was advised of his constitutional right to keep silence by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. A short time before, Mrs. Dena Penksa, 22, the defendant's wife, had refused to testify against her husband.

Took Shotgun With Him

Penksa said he returned to his home, 833 Eleventh Street Northeast, about 2 p. m. Saturday and found that his wife had left him. He went to look for her, taking a 12-gauge shotgun with him "to protect me from my wife's relatives and friends."

He said he went first to a restaurant in the 800 block F Street Northeast, where his wife's sister, Anne Carlo, 19, of 1349 Maryland Avenue Northeast, was employed.

"The reason I carried the gun was that I had had trouble with my wife's sister and her boy friend," Penksa stated, "and I wanted to make sure I'd be protected if they jumped me.

"She and her boy friend (Caligurie) came out of the restaurant and I asked her if she knew where Lena was. She said she didn't."

Penksa said Miss Carlo ran toward the Masonic Temple and that Caligurie started toward him, telling him to put down the gun.

"I Was Watching His Hands"

"I told him 'don't bother me. I didn't say anything to you.' I told him to keep away, but he kept walking toward me with his hands in his pockets. I was watching his hands as I was always taught to do.

"I warned him again but he didn't stop and I shot at his left side toward his heart. He dropped and I started toward No. 9."

Penksa admitted when questioned by the coroner that none of his wife's family or friends had ever made an attack on him, but insisted that they had threatened to do so.

The defendant said he did not know Caligurie and "had never seen him before."

Other witnesses at the hearing said Penksa had been drinking during the afternoon.

New Hellman Play Barred By That Ol' Debbil Law

Kids in Cast Ban Premiere from Capital; Director Wyler Takes a Look at "Foxes;" Tallulah Bankhead Has Plans and a Dog

LILLIAN HELLMAN, author of "The Little Foxes," now in a return engagement at the National Theater—not to mention "The Children's Hour," a sensational hit of its season—is the latest victim of that aboriginal abomination unpopularly known as the District's Child Labor Law.

BELL

Miss Hellman has had the impudence to write a new play called "Watch on the Rhine"—said to be her best, which would be extravagantly good—in which juveniles are included in the cast. This innocent fact automatically bars it from presentation on a Washington stage, just as was the case with "Life With Father," one of the epochal comedy hits of this era, and has been the case with so many other plays of the first rank that the Capital should have had the right to see.

In a brief conversation Monday night, Miss Hellman expressed to this column a deep-seated regret that her new play, through the operation of an antique statute, could not open on E Street. That had been her ardent wish. But there it is. So "Watch on the Rhine" will open in Baltimore next Monday night and Miss Hellman hopes the local drama desks will find it possible to see it there. Some of us probably will.

But the real reason this distinguished playwright was in Washington on Monday night was that William Wyler, noted motion picture director, and Arthur Kober, equally celebrated scenarist, also were in town. Together, they are cooking up the screen treatment of the celluloid version of "The Little Foxes," which Mr. Wyler will direct for Sam Goldwyn and United Arists release. They were looking over the pluperfect performance of Tallulah Bankhead and her supporting cast in "Foxes" to facilitate the final touches to the shooting script. Bette Davis is to play the role of Regina Giddens—Miss Bankhead's on the stage—and Mr. Wyler expects to begin grinding the cameras in approximately three weeks, with the picture scheduled for fall release. Miss Hellman made her own adaptation of the play, with Mr. Kober standing by as an expert adviser of an expert.

Mr. Wyler and Bette Davis are no strangers either to each other or to us. He directed her in "Jezebel" and much more recently in "The Letter," usually referred to as Bette's "last picture." As a matter of fact, she has made two since, but neither, as yet, has been released. If further identification of Mr. Wyler were necessary, it might be brought about by mention of the fact that he also directed such minor items as "Dodsworth," "Dead End" and "Wuthering Heights." But his most immediate fame must rest upon "The Letter," in every way the superior of the earlier transcriptions of the Somerset Maugham study in Oriental deviltry from stage to screen. Mr. Wyler knows his way around the camera booms and sound tracks.

All of this, of course, seems to leave the admirable Miss Bankhead out of consideration in the filming of the play in which she has achieved one of the outstanding hits of her brilliant career as a star of both the American and British stages. Perhaps this is just as well, for the stage now is the Bankhead's major preoccupation. She already is reading a batch of new plays—a comedy preferred. Her particular enthusiasm, at the moment, is the tentative week of eight benefit performances of "The Little Foxes" in behalf of the countries that are being overrun and oppressed by the aggressor nations—Britain, Greece and China. She expresses an even greater enthusiasm over the immediate unanimity with which her company has embraced the idea of the gratuitous week for a noble cause. She thinks it is magnificent of them to have volunteered their services, even down to the invisible, backstage electrician who stepped up to say that she could count him in. It is.

And I shall eagerly duel at dawn—bung starters at 40 paces—anyone who dares to suggest that the reported rift between Miss Bankhead and her husband, John Emery, has any sort of sordid basis. During that two-hour gabfest with Tallulah in the Mayflower Sunday evening, I was permitted to rummage through her handbag—which differed from a small boy's pocket only in that it contained no fishhooks or dead frogs—and dig up the letters and telegrams that recently have passed between them. What was discovered, naturally, is off the record. It is not off the record, however, that my admiration and affection for them both has increased 1,000 per cent. And don't let any columnar keyhole-peeper tell you different.

There was another swell gal at the Mayflower Sunday afternoon, too. Her name is Anne. Anne is Tallulah's ingratiating Pekingese, with the squizzled face not quite ample enough to contain her tongue. When Anne's silken head is being stroked, her ears scratched or her tummy tickled, she contorts her tiny torso into most extraordinary contours and emits such sounds as never heard before by the ears of man. She sighs, snorts, snores, grunts, giggles and guffaws with amazing amiability. Up to now, Anne is one up on Maurice Evans' testy terrier, Tuppence. She hasn't growled at me yet. However, you never can tell about these women.

Personal-Aside-to-a-Newfound-Friend Note.
If you read this, Anne, I'm only kidding!

Hollywood, March 18.

When I talked with Betty Grable on the set of "Great American Broadcast," she showed me a letter from a fan, demanding to know her choice of a "Stag Line" for dancing partners. Right off the bat, she picked her dance director, Hermes Pan, who'll make his screen debut in "Miami." I finally pinned her down to a stag list, and here it is: Fred Astarie—Broken Rhythm; George Raft—Tango; Cesar Romero—Rumba; George Murphy—Fox Trot; Charles Boyer—Viennese Waltz; Paul Draper—Interpretive Dancing; and Mickey Rooney—Jive and Swing.

Jimmy Cagney's losing his stand-in, Hurley Breen, to the Army. Hurley had just enough remaining teeth from a pugilistic career to justify him for the draft. Here's the story behind the Breen-Cagney relationship. Ten years ago Breen was picked off the streets of Los Angeles and brought into nigl court highly exhilarated. After trying to get his name, a policeman nudged the judge and said, "Gosh, it's Jimmy Cagney."

And the fellow was whisked out of the courtroom before you could say scat. Cagney heard of the incident and sent for Breen. "Listen, when you were thrown in the can, did you give them my name?" A big Irish grin spread over Breen's face. "But you see, I wasn't myself, Jimmy." "That's O. K.," said Cagney. "If you'll sober up and sign the pledge, you've got a job." He's been with Jimmy ever since.

Guests included the Sam Goldwyns, Arthur Hornblows, Alfred Hitchcocks, Jean Arthur, Martha Scott and others—but when Mary tried to build a charcoal fire in the fireplace, you can guess what happened. The smoke poured out into the room—the guests poured out into the yard. And it looked for a while as though Mary would have to "Kiss the Guests Goodby" instead of the "Boys."

star and featured player in Universal's production of "Nice Girl," opening Friday on the screen at RKO-Keith's. Her ninth successive picture for Universal, "Nice Girl" is being heralded throughout the country as Deanna's ninth consecutive hit. The ominous law of averages seems to mean nothing whatever to this brilliant singing star.

The Drapers' Unique Revue Is Among New Week's Attractions

RUTH AND PAUL DRAPER, the international diseuse and her celebrated dancing nephew, will open a week's engagement at the National Theater Monday evening. Appearing together for the first time in New York during the Christmas holiday season, the artists were so successful in their unique revue of sketches and dances that they are continuing their association for a spring tour. Miss Draper's program follows. Monday and Tuesday evenings: "The Italian Lesson," "A Dalmatian Peasant in the Hall of a New York Hospital" and "In a Church in Italy." Wednesday and Thursday evenings: "Opening a Bazaar," Three Generations," "On a Porch in a Maine Coast Village" and "The Actress." Friday evening: "A French Dressmaker," "Doctors," "In County Kerry," Three Imaginary Folk Songs" and "In a Railway Station on the Western Plains." Saturday evening: "Three Breakfasts," "An English Lady Showing Her Garden" and "In a Church in Italy." Paul Draper will dance to music from Scarlatti, Handel, Bach, Thomas, Lecuona, Strauss and American folk songs.

"NICE GIRLS?" Deanna Durbin's latest film arrives at the Fifteenth Street theater which has presented all of her many hits, with Franchot Tone playing opposite. He acts a New Yorker who visits Deanna's home town and finds himself the only man attentive to her. Also in the cast of the ninth Durbin picture are Walter Brennan, Robert Stack, Robert Benchley, Helen Broderick, Ann Gillis and Anne Gywnne. Joe Pasternak is the producer and William Seiter directed. Opens Friday morning.

Capitol

"TOPPER RETURNS." Hal Roach's latest addition to the adventures of Thorne Smith's dizzy characters finds Joan Blondell, Roland Young, Billlie Burke, Patsy Kelly, Dennis O'Keefe, Carole Landis and Eddie (Rochester) Anderson playing the leading roles. On the stage, Benny Davis and his newest "Star Dust" revue begin a tour of the vaudeville houses after winter bookings in the Southern resorts. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"FOOTSTEPS IN THE DARK." Errol Flynn and Brenda Marshall cast off their Elizabethan furbelows of "The Sea Hawk" to tangle in a modern mystery yarn. The trouble starts when Flynn stumbles across a murder police had assumed to be a natural death. Ralph Bellamy, Alan Hale, Lee Patrick, Allen Jenkins, Lucille Watson, William Frawley, Roscoe Karns and Grant Mitchell are the feature players. "Latins Versus Manhattans" titles the stage revue for the new bill, featuring artists from the United States and Latin America. Opens Friday morning.

Palace

"THE GREAT DICTATOR." Charlie Chaplin's satiric comedy of the mustached warrior and the Hebrew barber enters its second week of Palace Theater engagement number two. Supporting the comedian in his dual role are Jack Oakie, Paulette Goddard, Reginald Gardiner and Henry Daniell.

Metropolitan

"HIGH SIERRA." Ida Lupino and Humphrey Bogart return in this ganster tale after an engagement at the Earle Theater. The story concerns an enemy of the law whose dreams were of quiet and simplicity. Alan Curtis, Arthur Kennedy, Joan Leslie, Henry Hull, Henry Travers and Minna Gombell are featured. Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"ANDY HARDY'S PRIVATE Secretary." Mickey Rooney returns to F Street in the latest of his adventures as the son of Carvel's Judge Hardy. This time he is in the high school graduating and employs a "secretary" to help him with his official duties. Lewis Stone, Kathryn Grayson, Ann Rutherford, Sara Haden and Fay Holden are among the players. Opens tomorrow morning.

"NIGHT TRAIN." Entering its sixth week, the "sleeper" melodrama of contemporary espionage thereby follows the pace set by another record breaker. Only "The Baker's Wife" has had a longer continuous Ninth Street stay than this British chiller: it ran for nine weeks. Margaret Lockwood, Rex Harrison and Paul von Hernreid are the principals.

"FAST AND LOOSE." China's Amy Fong returns Sunday afternoon for her third visit of the season to the local burlesque scene. Others with her in the new production are Comics Bob Ferguson and Max Coleman, Cicotoria, George Ross and Mildred Perise. Ann Corio, one of the art's most celebrated practitioners, is the current headliner through Saturday's midnight performance.

Children's Theater

"ROBIN HOOD." When the Children's Theater, of New York, played this English legend on the same stage five years ago, the performance set a record house for the younger generation's series at the National. On Saturday morning it will be the company's next to the last presentation of the season, seats for which are available at the Children's Theater office, 1734 F Street.

Maloney suggested 5 men for the job—George Kaufman, William Saroyan, Leonard Lyons, George Jean Nathan and Ernest Hemingway—and then proved all of us unqualified. I don't know about the others, but I have one good reference, for a municipal job. It reads: "I regard Lyons as the least wasteful of our columnists." Russell Maloney wrote that in the New Yorker, November 26, 1938. . . . Jack Dempsey: In your pistol-permit application, did you give your age as 46?

COL. FRANK KNOX: A young girl named Katharine Bard applied for an acting job recently at the Group Theater. Clifford Odets, who was inspecting the applicants, told them all that the job had been filled. He spoke to this young girl—because she seemed wan and saddened and, like all young, unknown actresses, a bit hungry . . . And so Odets invited her to have some food at a restaurant nearby. "Where are you from?" the playwright asked—as she ordered the food . . . "Chicago," she replied . . . "Have you any family." Odets asked solicitiously . . . "Yes," she answered, "My father's name is Ralph Boston Bard" . . . Odets suggested that the young girl order some more food—for a struggling actress never knows when she'll eat again. "What does your father do?" Odets continued . . . "He has a new job," Katharine Bard informed. "He's the new Assistant Secretary of the Navy."

Four Nat Rookie Pitchers Fail Under Fire

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

POVICH

Orlando, Fla., March 17.—Clark Griffith, whose hate for the New York Yankees is surpassed only by his hate for the National League, now detects a deep, dark plot. He is going to a special meeting of the two big leagues at Clearwater tomorrow and try to shout down the proposal that the minor leagues be given a vote in choosing the baseball commissioner at the next election.

The Nats' owner who fought the National League to a frazzle in the baseball war 40 years ago suspects a trick. "They won't get to first base," he was saying today. "They're not fooling anybody. Those National League people are trying to skinflint us. They want the minors to have a vote in electing a commissioner because then the National League will have two votes to the American League's one. "Branch Rickey is behind it all. He controls the minors, and if we give 'em a vote, we'll be crazy. The National League can use its own vote and the vote they hope to get for the minors, and outvote us. Those National League fellows like Rickey of St. Louis and McPhail of Brooklyn are all tied up with the minor league men. They vote anyway Rickey and McPhail tell 'em."

It seems that the National Association of Minor Leagues suggested rather politely at last winter's meeting that they have a voice in future elections of Judge Landis or his successor. Griffith is convinced that suggestion was inspired by McPhail and Rickey in the hope of overthrowing Landis.

"By sin, we've got enough votes in the American League to stop 'em, though," the 71-year-old owner of the Nats was saying. "The Yankees will probably string along with the National League because Mr. Weiss, their farm system manager, is all wrapped up with McPhail and Rickey, but there are still enough smart men in our league to lick 'em. The American League will vote 'No' on the question and that's all there'll be to it."

Aside from his refusal to trust the motives of the National League in the matter, Griffith does not trust the minor leagues in any matter of such importance as electing a Czar for the industry. "They're too unstable," he says. "They may be here today and gone tomorrow. They have too many fly-by-night clubs. It was the big leagues who held baseball together. All those minors threw up the sponge when the Federal League tried to break in baseball in 1914.

"There were 49 minor leagues operating 15 years ago, but they didn't know how to run their own business. A few years ago, they dropped off to 11. If it had not been for the big league clubs pouring money into 'em, they'd all have quit. We've got 'em back now to where they have almost 50 leagues running."

Griffith is very practical about the whole business. "Why should the minors have any voice in electing the baseball commissioner? They don't pay a dime of the $65,000 salary he gets. The big league clubs pay it all. Everybody was satisfied under that arrangement until Rickey and McPhail started giving the minors ideas. They don't want just a voice in electing a commissioner. They want to have the balance of power and use it as a threat over the American League."

The Nats' owner pointed out that Rickey and McPhail attempted during the winter of 1939 to upset the farm system restrictions of Landis, and that they were licked in the major league meeting. "Now they've got their heads together again and they've come up with this trick. Anybody could see through it. They make it look like a proposal by the minor leagues, but it's their own plot."

Griffith was asked what the situation would be if, when the agreement which binds the minors to respect the authority of Judge Landis, runs out in 1946, they threatened to go their own way. The Commissioner seemingly would have no more sway over minor league baseball. The Nats' owner snorted:

"They'll never pull away from us. They need us too much, and we control too many of their clubs. We've been giving them a better deal than they ever made for themselves. They'll probably bluff, but it won't scare us. They can't get along without the big leagues, and they know it."

Anyway, there's small chance that the minors will win any voice in the election of a commissioner even if Griffith can't marshal enough strength in his own league to defeat the proposal. "Judge Landis knows all about this National League trick," Griffith said. "Even if we agreed to this proposal they've made, the Judge would not stand for it."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

The Baseball Front, March 18.—Guess which team Buck Newsom and Hank Greenberg think will win the American League Pennant this season? Well . . . you'll never get it. The answer is Detroit. They came right out with that startling reply yesterday as they lolled around the locker room at Lakeland, Fla., sweating and predicting with equal enthusiasm.

CONSIDINE

Newsom, who had to be coaxed near three seconds to get him to issue a statement, says, "Sure we'll win again. I'll win twenty-five or so, even though I'll probably get my usual broken finger or leg. And if the other pitchers slough off any, we'll have that kid Floyd Giebel to throw in there. Remember the game he pitched against Feller, the day we win the pennant in Cleveland?"

Greenberg says, "Maybe we were a little lucky to win last year—all things considered—but what's to keep us from getting the same breaks this year? If we were good enough to win then, we're good enough now, for no team has strengthened itself to speak of. And if any club has strengthened, we've kept pace with them. Charley Gehringer's back is better than it has been for a couple of years and, as Buck says, we will have Giebel all season."

The reason we mention these two odd predictions is that they are about the only ones you'll read this spring to indicate that the champions of the American League have even a chance to repeat. We don't remember a more lowly regarded defending champion than is Detroit. Nobody is giving it a Luxemburger's chance to repeat, though, barring the menace of conscription, it is the same club that gallantly fought its way from the second division to the championship last year, over the supposedly incomparable Yanks and a Cleveland team that appeared to be a shoo-in after July 4. It was a fine achievement, looking back on it, and it packed more downright merit than luck. Don't forget, in addition, that the club was the World Champion, too, going into the seventh inning of the seventh game of the World Series against the Reds, even though it was getting a steady diet of Paul Derringer at his best.

Yet here it is now, intact and perhaps strengthened, and some authorities aren't even giving it a chance to finish in the first division. Was there ever a stranger situation. Did the authorities ever go off quite as halfcocked? We believe that the Tigers are the team to beat in the American League, and don't go betting your shirt against them, unless you've got as many as George Marshall. Stick with them as long as they have Greenberg, which may be only until July even if he does have flat feet. The Tigers can very well win that pennant again, if they, instead of Camp Dix, have Greenberg. We know that the Indians and Yankees, both mentioned as superior to the Tigers, wish they were as sound as Del Baker's 1941 bunch.

As an old student of that man Newsom, we are privileged to report that this Ring Lardnerish character grows magnificent with the years. Back in 1935 we thought, and kind of feared, that he would go along for a couple of years, winning 17 and losing 18, and that finally people would stop listening to his wonderful bragging and put him down as a fellow who would never come through. Then he came up with that incomparable 1940 season—21 wins against five defeats and one broken finger. His titanic performance in the last World Series, when he won two games and lost 2-1 to Derringer in the final game through no fault of his own (and despite the death a few days before of his father) will always be remembered.

This year he is so important that the Tiger trainers say "please" when they ask him to turn over on the rubbing table. He looks in fine shape after a winter of handing down heavy statements along the banquet circuit. He made more than $30,000 yast year (". . . knew all along I was making more dough than Feller, but didn't want to say anything") and he has come up with such manifestations of wealth as a long, low custom-built car that plays the first four notes of "Hold That Tiger" when you press the horn. It is a wonderful ending for a guy who has been kicked around like a football in an orphanage.

Incidentally, we saw Dick Bartell at Lakeland and asked him to state his side of that series incident in which he was called the goat. Seems that with the Tigers ahead 1-0 in the seventh inning of the final game, and with Frank McCormick on second, Jimmy Ripple hit a liner to right. Bruce Campbell nearly caught it (". . . I should have stuck it in my pocket," Bruce says). Campbell threw the ball in to Bartell, who seemed to have time to catch McCormick at the plate, but did not throw there. "I didn't throw to the plate," the scrappy little shortstop told us, "because in my estimation I couldn't have gotten McCormick. Whether I could have gotten him, nobody really knows, because the play was never made. If anything had gone wrong with my throw McCormick would have scored with the tying run and Ripple, who represented the winning run, would have gone on to third. As it was, I held him on second and made them work him home. I'd play it the same way tomorrow.

Bloodworth's Hitting Marks Squad Game

Manager Harris Is Disappointed With Youngster's Work; Ump Chases Baxter

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Orlando, Fla., March 18.—In what was a mass elimination game for four rookie pitchers, the Washington Regulars defeated the Yannigans, 11 to 7, at Tinker Field today. The six-inning affair cleared up a few uncertainties about some of his rookie pitching talent to the great dissatisfaction of Manager Bucky Harris.

It was the first intrasquad game in the Nats' camp, and Harris scheduled it in order to test under fire a quartet of second-flight rookie pitchers who had not yet been to the mound. He saw nothing in the performances of Bill Zinser, Dick Poydock, Carleton Twyble and Joe Cleary to cause their retention this season.

Zinser and Poydock pitched for the Regulars, working three innings each, and allowed only six hits. Both were wild. They showed tolerable fast balls, but nothing that would pass for a curve. Like Twyble and Cleary, who pitched for the Yannigans, Zinser and Poydock displayed their greenness when runners were on base.

A Future Prospect

Poydock's fast ball caused some satisfaction and the big left-hander from Greenville is tabbed as a future prospect. He is only 18, and has been pitching only one season. Zinser, too, is a fast-ball pitcher, whose chief need is experience. Twyble and Cleary are comparative midgets who are trying to get by on sneaky deliveries.

Jimmy Bloodworth hit the big blow of the game, a rousing triple into the left-field bushes. Cecil Travis also helped the Regulars' attack with a single and double. Johnny Welaj, with two hits that included a three-bagger, was the slugging star of the Yannigans.

Assistant Trainer Frankie Baxter, who was named manager of the Yannigans, was the victim of a frame-up. The first time he raised his voice from the bench in encouragement to his team, he was chased out of the game by American League Umpire Stewart, by prearrangement with Bucky Harris. Baxter took a seat in the stands, but Umpire Stewart held up play and forced him to leave the park.

Buddy Lewis was the defensive star of the proceedings. He grabbed two hot grounders at third base and started a pair of double plays for the Regulars. Lewis' play was highly encouraging to Manager Harris, who has been obviously worried about the third-base job. It was with no great enthusiasm that Lewis went back to third base from the outfield, but in every game thus far he is showing more liking for the position.

Archie Left Out

It may have been significant that the man who went to first base for the Regulars today was not George Archie, but Jack Sanford . . . To this point, the red-headed rookie from the Coast League seems to be in eclipse in the battle for the first base job . . . The umpire on bases today was Dutch Leonard, who is big enough and gruff enough to qualify for a regular umpirical job . . . The wind was playing tricks with balls hit to left field today . . . Both Sam West and Ben Chapman fluttered in for three-baggers that sailed over their heads . . . Johnny Welaj is making a serious attempt to hit balls to right field this season . . . Rookie Catcher Dick Hahn was a casualty in the game . . . He was hit on the left elbow by one of Poydock's wild fast balls and was forced to retire to the clubhouse for ice packs . . . Jack Sanford robbed the Yannigans of two hits with fancy stops and dug two wild throws out of the dirt . . . The most improved ball player in the Nats' camp seems to be Jimmy Pofahl . . . He is coming up with everything hit around shortstop, and throwing the ball better than at any date since he was bought by the Nats . . . Pofahl has also been hitting the ball on the nose, and the fact is that Harris would not be reluctant to put him back at shortstop if anything happens to his current infield plans . . . Joe Mellendeck has virtually dropped out of the fight for an outfield job on the club and is already ticketed for Charlotte . . . He is having trouble getting a hit . . . Roger Cramer made his first hit of the season today, but it was nothing to brag about . . .

Wyoming Coach Accepts New Post

Laramie, Wyo., March 18 (AP).—C. H. "Okie" Blanchard, athletic director and head football coach at the University of Wyoming, relinquished his athletic duties today to accept a newly created post of dean of students.

Blanchard was given a one-year coaching contract in March, 1940. He succeeded Joel Hunt.

U. S. Figure Skating Aces To Show Here

Eugene Turner, national amateur figure skating champion, and Miss Donna Atwood, women's junior titleholder, will give exhibitions at the third annual ice carnival staged by the Washington Figure Skating Club at Riverside Stadium Monday evening. Word that the champions would be able to come to Washington for the event was received yesterday by the arrangements committee.

Judges in the national championships at Boston proclaimed Turner the best school figure skater the United States has ever produced. Miss Atwood won her title in a closely contested field.

With the exception of these exhibitions, the carnival will be an all-Washington event, with members of the Washington Figure Skating Club, assisted by members of the Ice Club of Washington, making up the cast. Soloists will be Miss Mary Frances Rolow, Miss Suzanne Uksila, Miss Kathleen O'Reilly, Miss Grace Eddy and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Uksila, the club professionals, who will do their "Gay Nineties" comedy act specialty, which they performed for six months at the New York World's Fair.

Twenty-four co-eds from George Washington University will present a group number. Members of the Ice Club are scheduled for a tango dance and children of members of both clubs will have special acts.

Cooper, Mangrum Tie For North-South Lead

'Borrowed' Driver Helps Harry Shoot 4-Under-Par 68 in Frigid Weather; D. C. Pair Practically Out of Running

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Pinehurst, N. C., March 18.—Harry Cooper pinched a driver out of Horton Smith's locker, took a practice swing or two, then went out on Pinehurst's famous No. 2 course today and shot a 68 that was four strokes under par. It also was good enough to tie him with Lloyd Mangrum for the first round lead in the thirty-ninth annual North-South golf championship.

Between the shivers and the shakes, the country's golfing barnstormers did a right nice job of par-busting. Cooper, for instance, wore fleece-lined leather wristlets, sun glasses, a hat and his top coat, and Mangrum wore his rain pants over his regular trousers to keep out the chill north wind.

In spite of such odd costumes (Defending Champ Ben Hogan and Jug McSpaden put on silk pajamas in the place of underwear), there were 24 men in all who bettered or tied the championship course's par of 72.

Cooper and Mangrum did the best of all in spite of some horrific scrambling. Light Horse Harry, usually a mechanical marvel, would be wandering all over to get his par on one hole, then knocking in a chip shot for a birdie on the next. Mangrum, out of Oak Park, Ill., blistered the front nine with a 32.

Giants Seek Deal With Brooklyn

Sarasota, Fla., March 18 (U.P.).—Manager Bill Terry, of the New York Giants, announced today that he had offered to trade Catcher Harry Danning to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Outfielder Pete Reiser, Pitcher Hugh Casey and some minor players.

Terry also announced that he had shifted veteran Outfielder Mel Ott to third base. Ott, who has divided his time during the past four years between the outfield and third base, will open the season at that position, according to Terry.

Spiegel, Hurst Fight Here for Blood Bank

Tommy Spiegel, who numbers among his victories a triumph over an attack of infantile paralysis, and Harry Hurst, the fast-working little puncher from Canada, will headline a benefit fight card at Turner's Arena Monday night in separate 10-rounders.

Promoter Joe Turner, lining up one of the best fight cards of the indoor season, will turn over 10 per cent of the gross proceeds to the Children's Hospital Blood Bank, sponsored by The Washington Post and Radio Station WJSV.

Hurst will fight Philadelphia's colored featherweight, Tommy Cross, who has made impressive showings in several previous appearances in the Capital.

"Miracle Boy"

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez is seeking a tough opponent for Spiegel, the Uniontown, Pa., youngster who is known as the "Miracle Boy of Boxing."

Spiegel, who has never fought here before, is one of the Nation's outstanding lightweights. He claims the Pennsylvania championship and has defeated Bob Montgomery, the Philadelphia colored buzz-saw

U. Va. Blasted By C. C. N. Y. In Tourney

By the United Press

New York, N. Y., March 18.—City College of New York, one of two metropolitan entrants, and Ohio University fought their way into the semifinals of the National Invitation basketball tourney tonight. C. C. N. Y. walloped University of Virginia, 64-35, and Ohio trounced Duquesne, pre-tourney favorites, 55-40, before 15,751 fans in Madison Square Garden.

Despite a fairly close first half, Virginia never had a chance after the midway whistle. C. C. N. Y. leading by 23-19 when the final period began, poured a total of 41 through the hoops while holding the Southerners to 16 points.

At Winograd, speedy C. C. N. Y. forward, with 18 points, led both teams in scoring in the second game, which was divided into 10-minute quarters by agreement. Forward Dick Wiltshire paced the losers with 13 markers.

15th Victory

C. C. N. Y., only team in seven years of Garden competition to finish over the .500 mark, ran their record to 15 victories in 19 starts and 13 out of their last 14. The loss was Virginia's fourth in 19 games.

The slower but more bulky Southern quintet slowed up the faster local five early in the game and the score was tied three times during the first nine minutes. It was no contest after that with 14-out of the 16 C. C. N. Y. players that broke into the game, scoring points.

The Dukes started the second period as if they intended to control the game, but with only a 26-24 lead. For two minutes the Ohioans never got their hands on the ball and Duquesne added a free throw.

Then Ohio, led by Rosy Cheeked Frank Baumholtz and Carl Ott, started rolling. Before Duquesne scored again on a field goal by Ed Milkovich, Ohio boosted its total to 45 and 12 minutes and 20 seconds of play had passed. Duquesne staged a mild rally with Moe Becker and Paul Widowitz dropping in several long goals, but Baumholtz and

Dewey Paces 3d Period Point Spree

Thompson's First Goal Sparks Rally As Locals Take 12th Win in 15 Games

By Jack Munhall

Arthur Thompson's first official goal for the Washington Eagles last night transformed a listless team into a potent scoring machine and sparked the newly crowned Eastern Amateur Hockey League champions to a 5-2 victory over the Boston Olympics.

With the count deadlocked at 2-2 and an overtime match looming in view of the lackadaisical play of both teams, the slender former wingman, imported last month from Port Colbourne, poked in the decisive goal at 10:02 of the third period. Then apparently fired with the Eagles rapped across an additional pair of tallies for insurance of their twelfth victory in 15 starts. Both goals were made by Hal Dewey, the Fall River, Ontario, brakeman who seemingly can't be stopped these days.

On both shots Dewey was assisted by Courteau whose goal Sunday night beat the Baltimore Orioles, 2-1, and clinched the title for the Eagles.

Eagles Way Off Form

Until this late three-goal splurge, it would have been hard to explain to the 1,733 paying patrons just how the Eagles had ever managed to win the title. That's how bad they looked in the relapse that followed their crucial struggle with the Orioles.

The triumph practically clinched for Washington the Walker Cup series, for now the Eagles need only a tie in any of their remaining four matches to grab off another chunk of silverware.

Between the second and third periods Len Burrage, of Washington, and Ty Andersen, of Boston, veteran defensemen and two of the league's greatest players, were presented with testimonial scrolls bearing names of several hundred Washington fans. The presentations were made by Washington Coach Redvers MacKenzie, who developed Andersen years ago at Atlantic City, and who imported Burrage here from England in 1939 to captain the first Eagles club.

Goalie's Head Slashed

Only excitement during the first 15 minutes was an injury to Boston Goalie Polich who, struck in the temple by the stick of one of his mates, retired from the ice for 10 minutes to have the gash closed by two stitches.

Toward the close of the session, the pace became a little faster as each team scored once within less than a minute. Boston tallied first, at 16:06, when Johnnie Fitzgerald and Ed Barry caught the Washington defense up ice on a quick break.

Walter Haight Club Contest

If you are interested in winning a badge for the entire Bowie meeting or a ticket to the opening ball game or both, join the Walter Haight Club and become eligible for the contest which began yesterday.

Write a four-line verse, jingle or rhyme and get Haight (pronounced Hate) in it. If you are a club member, simply mail it to the Haight Club Contest, Washington Post.

The person who sends in what the judges believe is the most clever verse will receive a Bowie badge and a ticket to the opening game. The second winner will have his or her choice of a badge or a ticket. Third place wins the badge or ticket remaining.

If you are not a club member, mail in a dime and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your entry. The dime goes to the Children's Hospital Blood Bank Fund and your membership card will be mailed to you.

Judges for the contest, which closes at midnight March 28, are Arch McDonald, WJSV; Art Brown, WOL, and Ben Bane Dulaney, sports editor of The Post.

Two Red Stars Injured as Champions Whip Tigers, 9 to 8

Derringer, McCormick Hit by Ball

Cincinnati and Detroit Stage a Comedy of Errors; All Is Confusion

By the United Press

LAKELAND, Fla., March 18.—Paul Derringer and Frank McCormick, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher and first baseman, respectively, tonight were recovering from injuries sustained today when the Reds defeated the Detroit Tigers, 9 to 8, in a spring training game of the World Series.

Both Derringer and McCormick suffered groin injuries when struck by batted balls. Derringer was knocked out by a liner from Mike McCormick's bat during batting practice and Frank McCormick retired from the Detroit-Reds game after being struck by a grounder from Barney McCosky's bat in the fourth inning.

The game was a comedy of errors, the Tigers committing a total of four. Neither fielders nor pitchers seemed to know just where they were supposed to throw the ball, nor how to throw it. Net result: plenty of confusion for the players, high glee for the customers.

Chisox Bow, 9-3

San Bernardino, Calif., March 18 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox lost their first exhibition decision of the spring today, bowing to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 3.

Three rookie pitches virtually donated the game to the Bucs, issuing nine bases on balls with six hits. The Chicago regulars got only six hits off Russ Bauers and John Lanning in the six innings they played.

Macks Murder Ball

Anaheim, Calif., March 18 (AP).—Chicago Cub pitchers served up another round of home-run balls today, enabling the Philadelphia Athletics to win their fourth straight game from the National Leaguers, 11 to 9.

Clay Bryant, Schoolboy Herb Chmeil and Ken Raffensberger allowed 14 hits, including round-trip blows by Bob Johnson, Sam Chapman and Al Brancato. Bill Nicholson hit one for the Cubs.

The celebrated Lou Novikoff again was brilliant in the field but of little aid at the plate, getting a single in five times up. The A's piled up a 9-1 lead before the Cubs aroused themselves and shoved across eight runs in the last four frames.

'Krakky' Shelled

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 18 (AP).—Eight runs in the eighth inning today gave the Cleveland Indians a 10-to-4 victory over the Rochester Red Wings of the International League in an exhibition game. The minor leaguers made three of their runs on two homers off Joe Krakauskas in the sixth inning.

Dodger Rally Wins

Clearwater, Fla., March 18 (AP).—Steve Rachunok walked the first four men he faced and granted the St. Louis Cardinals two runs today, but the Dodgers came back behind airtight pitching of Hugh Casey and Wes Flowers to win, 7 to 3. The Cards collected only seven hits, while Brooklyn belted Lon Warneke, Clyde Shoun and Max Lanier for 11.

Yankees Win

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 18 (AP).—Frank Crosetti made his first exhibition game appearance in the New York Yankees' line-up today as the Yanks trounced their International League "farmhands" from Newark 7 to 1. Two former Newark pitchers, Steve Peek and Norman Branch, held the Bears to four hits, one a homer by Ed Levy.

Revised Giants Win

Sarasota, Fla., March 18 (AP).—Bill Terry shuffled his New York Giants' lineup again today and came up with a combination that beat the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4. Mel Ott, sent to third base in the shift, broke up the ball game in the eighth inning when he slammed a triple off Jack Wilson's delivery and scored the winning run on Babe Young's double.

That "Unusual" Picture

Pieces of Haight

Washington, D. C.

Dear Boss,

I matched myself odd-man last pay day to see if I would pay the gas, electricity or telephone. The telephone people won, and as a result I came mighty near not having a letter for you today. I haven't done anything all day but answer the phone about that picture of me and that horse named Walter Haight, that you put in the paper.

HAIGHT

The Post photographer and his darn Brownie camera education got me in a mess. From the time I met him to go out to Bowie he kept saying that he wanted an unusual picture. "How about you riding the colt? That would be a good shot—Haight on Haight," he suggested.

"Listen, guy," says I, "That sport sheet is carrying the load these days with all that Haight stuff. Besides I'm trying to be a little modest."

He came back with, "Then why not let me get a picture of the colt riding you?"

All of which reminds me of one of the funniest Kentucky Derby stories ever written. I think Westbrook Pegler did it. Anyway, the sportswriter picked Bob Tail to win the Derby and said horse finished a dead last. He explained it something like this:

The field turned into the stretch, there was a battle right down to the wire and I looked at the horses as they crossed the finish line. They were all there except my horse. I waited and waited for Bob Tail to reach the finish line. Finally it got dark and still Bob Tail hadn't shown up.

Then I decided to go out and look for him. So I got a lantern and started from the finish line and walked the wrong way of the track. I got to the eighth pole and there was no sign of Bob Tail, nor did I find him at the quarter pole. It was dark as pitch except for the lantern light. I was just giving up hope when I heard a faint rumbling sound in the distance. So I squinted into the darkness, cupped my hands and yelled, "Are you Bob Tail with Jockey H. Ellis up."

And a voice answered, "No. I'm Jockey H. Ellis with Bob Tail up."

Well, anyway, that Post photographer and his yen for unusual pictures resulted in my getting more advice than President Roosevelt. The phone started ringing in the middle of the sportswriters' night (8:30 a. m.).

Everybody and his brother had some suggestion for making me a better horse.

"You should tell your trainer to run you with an over draw and blinkers. You can't do your best squeezing down on those three chins and the blinkers would keep you from looking at the camera," said T. T. Mott.

Then Trainer Judy Johnson got on the phone and suggested: "From the looks of you, Walter, they should bed you down in peat moss instead of straw, to keep you from eating your bedding."

Owner Galt Davis called to say: "You'd better run next time in rundown badges. You're plenty heavy and if you don't be careful you're going to bow a tendon."

"What you need is more plates on your feet and less under your nose," remarked one anonymous caller.

Tell the truth, Boss, I thought I ran pretty well, considering I was a 42-year-old running against a 2-year-old.

That's the kind of stuff I had to listen to just because I tried to be nice and help that photographer get an unusual picture. Well, I

Former Navy Star Signed For Mat Card

The spirit of defense will be injected into the proceedings at tomorrow night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena when Sailor Ed Franer, erstwhile champion of the battleship Tennessee, now at the Naval Air Station, will return to local action after a nine-month absence.

Promoter Joe Turner announced that Fraher, who proved a popular figure last winter and summer on the arena mat, had been matched against Otto Brill, a newcomer from Des Moines, Iowa.

The Green Hornet, hooded wrestler, and Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, will be the featured performers, meeting for the first time. Milo Steinborn, the Memphis Strong Man, will take on Warren (Flash) Bockwinkle, of St. Louis, while in the two-man competition Len Macaluso, former Colgate All-American football ace, will team with Fred (Lega) Grobmier against Eddie Newman and Tiger Tasker.

Indications are that Sailor Franer will be in topline roles, if he can click as well as he did last year. The Sailor is a fast worker and knows all the holds, having been a pupil at one time of Ray Steele, the present National Wrestling Association champion.

Whole Grid Team At Morris Brown Joins Air Corps

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, March 18.—From headgears to helmets it is for ten members of the Morris Brown football team, claimants of the National Negro Collegiate Crown.

The husky Negro athletes, headed by their team captain, Gerald Brown, and John (Big Train) Moody, All-American fullback, enlisted en masse today in the Air Corps.

Col. C. A. Mitchell, Fourth Corps Area recruiting officer, said the candidates for "wings" will be assigned to the Ninety-ninth Pursuit Squadron being recruited at Maxwell Field, Alabama, and will be sent to Chanute Field at Rantoul, Ill., for training.

2 Records Set By Cristofoli In Pin Match

Records fell last night in the Library of Congress mixed meet at Brookland Recreation when Silvio Cristofoli, of the Cardinals, rolled new individual highs, bettering the game mark by 9 pins with his 187 and adding a splendid total of 58 maples to the set high with his 428. The Cardinals, inspired by Cristofoli's fine bowling, took the high team game with 575 and their 1,666 count for the set broke the old mark by 40 sticks. For the ladies, Marjorie Pruitt, Bees, and Jane Parks, Rams, divided honors with the former rolling a 120 game and the latter a 299 set.

Larry McClung was the leader in the Navy Department meet at Arcadia with top totals of 154-405, which helped his Bureau of Engineering team take high game with 617. Aldridge's 384, Price's 359 and Galleher's 366 made it possible for Hydrographic to take high set of 1,757 and the odd game from Ordnance to gain the top spot in the standing.

Laura George Stars

The two Lutheran Church Leagues at Arcadia found Laura George sparking the ladies' division with 121-325 and helping her Trinity No. 1 girls to team highs of 503 and 1,469. Bob Fellers, St. Paul No. 2, and Frank Pietila, Luther Place No. 1, divided honors in the men's loop with a 146 game and 385 set, respectively, with the former's count giving his team highs of 601 and 1,705 for the night.

The famed Del Rios are on the warpath once more and this time a picked quintet representing the Government Printing Office will be their adversaries. The singles, doubles and team matches are scheduled to take place Saturday night at 8 o'clock on the G. P. O. drives on North Capitol Street.

Watts Estabrook, Leon's Men's Shop, was the leader in the Bethesda Duckpin meet at Henry Hiser's Bethesda drives with top game of 173, although M. Segreti, Powell Auto Shop, was best for the set count with a 399 total. Simmons Barbers won all team highs after pinfalls of 618 and 1,772. Leon's Men's Shop tops the league.

Carroll Tops Scorers

Jimmie Carroll, Mitchell's Radio, was the big scorer in the Georgia Avenue League at Silver Spring with 162 for game and 423 for set, the latter count lacking but 5 pins of equaling the season record. Tastee Diner won high team game with 652, while Carroll's nice score made it possible for his Mitchell's quintet to take the big set with 1,787. National Electric Machine is six games in the lead.

The Industrial League at Oscar Hiser's Hyattsville Recreation brought out Ray Fleshman as the leader, his 153-376 scores being tops for the night, and helped his team take high set with a 1,636 total. The Fire Balls won team game after a pinfall of 800.

Ham Miller, Washington Gas Light, was the main reason why his team took highs in the Merchants League at Convention Hall, for his 155 top game helped the quintet roll a 599 game and 1,785 set. Danny Palmer, Southern Dairies, counted 404 to win high individual set honors.

Badminton Championships To Be Sunday

The tenth annual District of Columbia Badminton Championships will open Sunday at 11 a. m. on the Kensington Armory courts. Competition will be held in men's and women's singles and doubles and in mixed doubles.

New champions will be crowned in at least four of the five events. Kay Baker, holder of the women's singles and coholder of the women's and mixed double crowns, will not compete this year. Neither will Max Farrington, who teamed with Joe Baker in winning the men's doubles title for four straight years.

Baker, however, will be out to win his third successive singles title and will be competing with new partners in both men's mixed doubles, trying to duplicate his clean sweep of 1939 and 1940.

Bill Shreve, runner-up in all three men's events last year, will also be on the sidelines this year, having turned professional.

The tournament is open to all amateur players in the District of Columbia and its environs and entries will be accepted until noon Friday at the Tennis Shop, 1019 Fifteenth Street Northwest, or by phone at NAtional 5165.

Oxon Hill, Greenbelt High Share Foul-Shooting Tourney Honors

Marguerite Adams Wins for Host School; Leroy Clark Captures Boys' Title

The host school and Greenbelt High split honors yesterday as the second annual Invitation Foul-Shooting Tournament of Oxon Hill High School was staged at the school's gym yesterday.

Marguerite Adams, petite 15-year-old, saved the home school's cause when she turned in the best record in the girls' division, and Leroy Clark captured the boys' title for Greenbelt.

7 Schools Entered

Seven schools, including besides the two winners, Maryland Park, Hyattsville, Mount Rainier, Marlboro and Bowie, took part in the brief but exciting affair. In both cases the victor wasn't certain of winning until the last toss.

Though Clark had a somewhat better performance, little Miss Adams' effort stole the show. In the first round she had a little trouble, hitting the rim only five out of nine times. The second round, however, saw her miss only once in seven tosses. By way of clinching the matter, she sank three shots in five in the third round.

Mrs. Page Takes Lead In Midsouth

Southern Pines, N. C., March 17.—Estelle Lawson Page today carded a 77—6 under women's par—to pile up a two-day score of 158 and take a 14-stroke lead in the annual women's Midsouth golf tournament at Southern Pines Country Club.

Mrs. Page's total at the 36-hole mark was eight under par. Her nearest competitor, veteran Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, fired an 87 today to go with her 85 of yesterday for 172 and second place.

Third was pretty Marcia Bassett, of Buffalo, N. Y., 20-year-old brunette making her Midsouth debut. She held 87s for both days and was two strokes behind Miss Fordyce.

Deborah Verry, of Worcester, Mass., 1936 Midsouth titlist, turned in a 90 that gave her a two-day card of 177 and fourth position.

Chilly winds that raked the course for the second consecutive day did not seem to bother Mrs. Page, although the other 40 contestants had constant difficulty with their tee shots. Mrs. Page, 1937 national women's champion, is defending titleholder in the 54-hole tourney.

Comeback Ideas Buzzing Around Braddock's Belfry

By International News Service

New York, March 18.—Probably he is not very serious about the thing, but, nevertheless, former Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock today said the comeback bug was buzzing about his belfry.

Braddock, who is scheduled to begin a series of exhibitions with Clarence (Red) Burman March 24 at Charlotte, N. C., said:

"I'm going to see if I can get in shape again.

"After all, there seems to be nobody around who can give Joe Louis a fight, and I'd like to take another crack at him."

Too old? In answer to that one, the 35-year-old James asserted:

"There's Max Baer whom I won the title from still around punching."

Miss Hicks Wins Medal In Augusta

By the Associated Press

Augusta, Ga., March 18.—Playing in her eighth tournament of the winter season, long driving Elizabeth Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., turned in a par equaling 76 today to win medalist honors in the Forest Hills invitation tournament.

Miss Hicks carded rounds of 40-38 to beat out seasoned Jean Baer, Providence, R. I., and a former Augusta winner who posted an 80 two strokes better than the 82 turned in by Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, and Helen Dettweiler, Washington, D. C., pro, two other former Augusta titlists.

Defending Champion Helen Sigel, Philadelphia, qualified easily with an 87 as 93 was good enough to land in the championship flight of 16.

Meets Augustan

In tomorrow's match play openers, Miss Hicks will engage Eileen Stulb, Augusta, who survived a three way playoff for the last berth after tying with a 93.

Miss Sigel's first round opponent will be Mrs. Helen Hockenjos, Lake Hopatcong, N. J., who posted an 86. Miss Kirby will play Eloise Schluderberberg, Baltimore, Md., who carded a 90.

In another match Mrs. Myron Davy, Washington, D. C., who used up 93 strokes, will match shots with Mrs. Charles Harbough, Cleveland, Ohio, veteran, who qualified with a 90.

Socialite Shines

Socially prominent Mrs. J. B. Balding, from the nearby Aiken, S. C., winter colony, stroked out a 92 for the right to vie with Miss Bauer tomorrow. Jane Cothran, Greenville, S. C., was another veteran who had little trouble gaining the top flight as she got down in 85 and tomorrow will meet Bee Little, Owensboro, Ky., who survived with an 88.

In the other two championship matches Miss Dettweiler will play Mrs. Mildred Prunaret, Boston, while 17-year-old Louise Suggs, Georgia State champion from Lithia Springs, will play Dorothy Gardner, the Ohio State titlist from Steubenville. Miss Dettweiler qualified with an 82, Mrs. Prunaret with a 91. Miss Suggs was credited with an 84, Miss Gardner with an 89.

Giuliani Still Unsigned With Flock

Clearwater, Fla., March 18 (AP).—Angelo Giuliani, one of Brooklyn's pair of holdout catchers, came to camp today for a conference with President Larry MacPhail, but announced afterwards that he would return to his home at St. Paul, Minn.

"I said "hello." That was my first and last word," Giuliani said. "He started blasting away and told me to report to Montreal's camp. No minor league baseball for me."

Another arrival was Max Carey, former Dodger outfielder and manager, who was summoned to give the squad special instruction in base running.

Koch Is Released From Agreement to Coach G. W. Line

Ex-Mentor Goes Back To Baylor

All-American of '31 Leaves Colonials In Lurch as Spring Practice Looms

George Washington University was left without an official football line coach for spring practice yesterday when it was revealed that Barton (Botchy) Koch had been released from his recent agreement to fill the position. Koch begged off to take a similar job at Baylor, his alma mater, where he won All-America recognition in 1931.

The last-minute refusal of Koch leaves G. W. in an embarrassing situation what with spring drills scheduled to begin as soon as the weather permits, a spokesman declared, but added the school will suffer no paucity of coaches.

Assisting Reinhart will be Freshman Coaches Ray Hanken and "Zuzu" Stewart, and also Sunny Jones and Sam Babich, captains of the 1939 and 1940 Colonial elevens, respectively. Tuffy Leemans, the New York Giants' star back and also a G. W. alumnus, also will be around.

May Be Drafted

Though George Washington does not plan to hire a regular line coach until next fall, it would not be surprising if Hanken, one of the Buff's greatest ends, is offered the post. Biggest obstacle to Hanken's getting the job is his danger of being drafted before fall.

Hanken, single, is in his late twenties, and already has filled out his Selective Service questionnaire.

Koch, who served as George Washington line coach from 1936 until a year ago last month, when he accepted a similar capacity at Tulsa University, was offered the Baylor position last week, soon after he had applied and been accepted for the G. W. coaching spot.

Work With Kimbrough

Koch will work at Baylor under Frank Kimbrough, brother of Texas Christian's All-America fullback of the last two seasons.

The G. W. line coaching job was left vacant when Gene Shields, who succeeded Koch last spring, notified Reinhart that pressing business in Portland would prevent his being here for spring practice and probably for next season.

Bruins Win Last Game On Schedule

By the United Press

Boston, March 18.—The Boston Bruins, National Hockey League champions for the third straight season, closed out the regular schedule tonight with a 4-1 triumph over the third-place Detroit Red Wings before 9,500 fans at Boston Garden.

The Boston triumph came on first and third-period goals by Center Bill Cowley, who set a league record for assists and a modern mark for total points. Cowley's two tallies gave him a final total of 62 points with 17 goals and 47 assists.

Herb Cain and Mel Hill counted in the final minute to turn a listless game into a Bruin landslide. Carl Liscomb registered for Detroit at 12:32 of the third period.

The Boston barrage gave Goalie Walter Broda, of Toronto, who sat at ringside with his mates, undisputed possession of the Vezina Trophy in his stretch battle with Rookie Johnny Mowers, of Detroit.

Score by periods:

Boston	1	0	3—4
Detroit	0	0	1—1

Scoring summary:

First period—Boston, Cowley (Crawford) 0:54. Second period—No scoring. Third period—Boston, Cowley (Conacher, Wiseman), 5:02; Detroit, Liscombe (Howe), 12:32; Boston, Cain (A. Jackson, Hill), 9:05; Boston, Hill (A. Jackson), 9:52.

Hurry Bob Wins Virginia Field Trials

By the Associated Press

Orange, Va., March 18.—Hurry Bob, a pointer owned by I. H. Velotte, of Camp Hill, Pa., captured the all-age Derby of the Virginia Amateur Field Trial Association's spring meeting today with an A-1 performance in cold and windy weather.

The pointer, which won the Southeastern Field Trials at Sumter, S. C., in December, ran last without a bracemate and found two coveys.

Beau Essig Don, a setter belonging to Virgil Hawse, of Saunton, was runner-up in the all-age. The setter, which ran yesterday in difficult windy weather, looked like the winner until Hurry Bob ran.

Third Victory

Ernest Meade, association president, said the Pennsylvania entry mixed character and hard-running with stylish handling at the hands of his owner.

Hurry Boby's victory defeated the efforts of R. Z. Cates, of Spartanburg, S. C., to gain permanent possession of the trophy with a third victory. Dogs owned by Cates won the event in 1939 and 1940. It was the opinion of the field that Maplerock Jake showed best among his entries in the derby this week.

Cates won the puppy stake yesterday with Steincity Jim Boy, a liver and white pointer.

Course Outlined

The trials were run over three Piedmont Virginia plantations: Carl Nolting's Bracketts, Willie Craig's Westland and Henry Taslor's East End.

Meade said the association members probably would return here for the fall trials, at which time new officers of the organization will be chosen. The trials have been held at Camp Lee near Petersburg for years, but use of the camp as an Army cantonment forced selection of a new site.

Gonzaga Five Leaves Today For Newport Catholic Tourney

Carefree Winners of Metropolitan Title Play LaSalle High Tomorrow at 4 P. M.

The most carefree gang of schoolboy basketball players the city has seen for a long time goes off to the out-of-town basketball wars today when Gonzaga High five, Metropolitan champi, onleaves for Newport, R. I., and the Eastern States Catholic Prep Tournament starting tomorrow for a three-day stand.

At 1 p. m. the Eagles, the only team in Washington which made a practice this year of smiling no matter how far behind, leave Union Station in care of Father George Bahlman, S. J., Coach Irvine (Horse) Holbrook, and three managers—Charles and Verni Bier and Wally Barrett.

Players making the trip will be All-Metropolitan Bobby Mulvihill, Franny Counselman, Joe O'Lone, Hart Downs, Bernie Nolan, Al Lauck, Buddy Rowzee, Jack Walsh, Reds Murphy and Tom Whelan.

Defeated Roosevelt

First action for the Purple will be tomorrow at 4 p. m. against LaSalle High, of New York. All first round games will be played immediately afterward, the day's hostilities being wound up by the meeting of the defending champion DeLaSalle team, of Newport, with Chaminade High, of Mineola, Long Island.

How Gonzaga will stack up against the powerful Catholic fives it will meet, even Coach Holbrook doesn't know. With a few performances like that in which it stole Roosevelt's Metropolitan crown, it will go far. A few "off" quarters, however, will spell disaster.

No matter how it does, Coach Holbrook is confident he has one of the fastest, best-passing teams to ever represent Washington. A brilliant offensive club, it has run up one of the highest team totals in the city this year.

Justice Five Held to Two Points in Game

PWA held Department of Justice scoreless from the floor last night and whipped 'em, 41-2, in a D. C. Recreation Department Basketball League game at Macfarland.

Both of the losers' points were made by free throws, with Houck and Reed the scorers. Meantime, every one of the seven players used by the winners tallied at least one point, led by Ross, with 11, and Housel, with 10.

In other games Census defeated Jacobsen Florists, 36-29; Ballards beat Postoffic by the same count, Sons of Pericles doubled the score on Capital City, 42-21; United Typewriters conquered FBI by the convincing margin of 47-23; Washington Loan & Trust repelled Polish Club, 25-17.

Farmers Census decisioned Ramblers, 27-18; Malls and Files swamped F. B. I. C., 39-9; A & W humiliated Greek-Americans, 34-19; St. Martin's edged out Maritime, 31-22; Carr Radio romped over Briggs A. C., 45-23; Bliss Electrical School crushed Harvesters, 57-18; Finnish-Americans bumped Labor Department, 29-12; Arlington Macabees defeated Maryland Park, 42-25, and National Baptist subdued Silents, 26-17.

Brewers Ready For Title Series With Bruins

The Washington Brewers and Bruins will open a three-game series for the District professional basketball title tomorrow night at 8:45 at Riverside Stadium.

The Bruins, District colored champions, will be bolstered for the series by the acquisition of Wilmeth Sidat-Singh, former Syracuse University star athlete, and Brick Top Wright, formerly of Lincoln University and the Harlem Yankees.

Wright and Sidat-Singh are expected to add plenty of scoring punch to an outfit that already includes Tarzan Cooper, Soupy Campbell, Red Briscoe, Ace Clarke and others of high caliber.

The Brewers will continue to rely on their squad, including Pat Frankel, Moe Dubilier, Phil Rabin, Ben Kramer, Whitey Wilson, Ben Goldfadden, George Slott and Petey Berenson. Coach Mack Posnack also may see action as a guard.

The game will be played under collegiate rules. Tickets are on sale at Riverside Stadium and at Turner's Arena.

3,000 May See A.A.U. Fights Here Tonight

A sell-out crowd of 3,000 persons is expected to jam Turner's Arena tonight when the District Amateur Athletic Association's boxing tournament moves into its semifinal round with a series of 22 outstanding bouts, 12 senior and 10 novice.

Some of the finest talent in local amateur boxing history will be paired off and many neighborhood rivalries and old feuds revived as spirited competitors battle determinedly in an effort to qualify for the championship finals at Turner's Friday night.

Boxers who recently distinguished themselves in the Eastern Amateur Golden Gloves Championships in New York and others who won District Golden Gloves titles before record-breaking crowds here, will be spotlighted.

Petros Starred

Numbered among tonight's outstanding warriors will be the three fighting Petro brothers and the mauling Marcopolous brothers, Leo and George.

Joe Petro, 112-pound senior Golden Gloves champion, faces Dick Mullens, of National Training School, while Danny Petro, runner-up in the senior Golden Gloves batamweight features, boxes Joe Gannon, of the Apollo A. C. Jim Petro, who boxed as a novice heavyweight in the Golden Gloves, drops down to the light heavyweight division tonight to engage Bill Mansfield, of the Apollo A. C.

The three punching Petros all battled their way to the finals in the Golden Gloves Tournament recently, and all are hopeful of coming through with championships in the A. A. U. warfare.

George Marcopolus, a promising novice lightweight from Police Club No. 5, meets Ed Hoffman, of the Merrick Club, while brother Leo Marcopolus, also of Police No. 5, wars with Frankie McCaleb, of the St. Mary's Club of Alexandria, in the 135-pound senior feature.

Semifinal pairings for tonight:

NOVICE CLASS

112 pounds—George Cross (Police No. 5) vs. Herb Collins (Red Shield).

118 pounds—Fred Pettit (Red Shield) vs. Eugene Miller (National Training School).

160 pounds—Wallace Turner (National Training School) vs. Alex Chanks (Red Shield), Al Edick (St. Mary's) vs. Art Moriarty (St. Mary's).

175 pounds—Jim Petro (Apollo A. C.) vs. Bill Mansfield (Apollo A. C.).

SENIOR CLASS

112 pounds—Dick Mullens (National Training School) vs. Joe Petro (Apollo A. C.).

118 pounds—Danny Petro (unattached) vs. Joe Gannon (Apollo A. C.).

135 pounds—Leo Marcopolus (Police No. 5) vs. Frankie McCaleb (St. Mary's); Walter Thomas (Prince Georges Police Club) vs. Tony DeToto (Police No. 5).

147 pounds—Alan Shreve (Merrick Club) vs. Tom Hollon (Olympic Club); Bernie Cook (St. Mary's) vs. Bill Purdy (Apollo A. C.).

175 pounds—Jack Cranford (Huron A. C.) vs. Bill Smith (National Guard); Reno Workman (St. Mary's) vs. Charles Malmone (Police No. 5).

D. C. Boxing Body to Pay Two Referees for Galento-Baer Bout

By Al Hailey

The District Boxing Commission yesterday spun into another about face, so help us, and now it turns out that there will be two referees for the forthcoming Tony Galento-Buddy Baer scramble.

This happy solution to an embarrassing problem involves a "working" referee and a "non-working" referee—both of whom will be paid by the local fistic fathers.

New York's Arthur Donovan, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, will officiate in the main event. Washington's Charley Reynolds or Edmund LaFond will be the "non-working" official.

Thus the District Boxing Commission abandons its previously sworn policy to insist on local referees for local fights—an ironclad decision reached after Benny Leonard's reign over the Joey Archibald-Harry Jeffra "incident."

What's more the District Boxing Commission will plank down $100 in the needful, the chink, the folding, the rhino—which is to say salaries—for the working and nonworking referees.

It was not learned last night just what the status of nonworking referees will be in the future or how many referees the local commission will pay with funds the fight customers contribute, not to work a main bout.

In the past year the District Boxing Commission indirectly soaked the cash customers by hoisting the "take" on the gate at each fight from 5 to 10 per cent.

The "embarrassing problem" came up yesterday when Ancil Hoffman, manager of the two Baers, demanded that Donovan—or another "big time" referee—handle the main event at Uline April 8.

Mike Jacobs' staff officers told everyone not to worry about a thing, that Uncle Mike would foot the whole bill—referees and all.

Looking at the sordid side of such a situation, the local fistic body was reminded that this would enable Uncle Mike to "dictate" to the official.

They promptly agreed to pay Donovan $50 and Reynolds or LaFond—depending upon whose turn it happened to be to take the main event—a like amount.

While LaFond and Reynolds both appear to be perfectly capable of handling the Galento-Baer brawl, the boys who beat the publicity drums think otherwise.

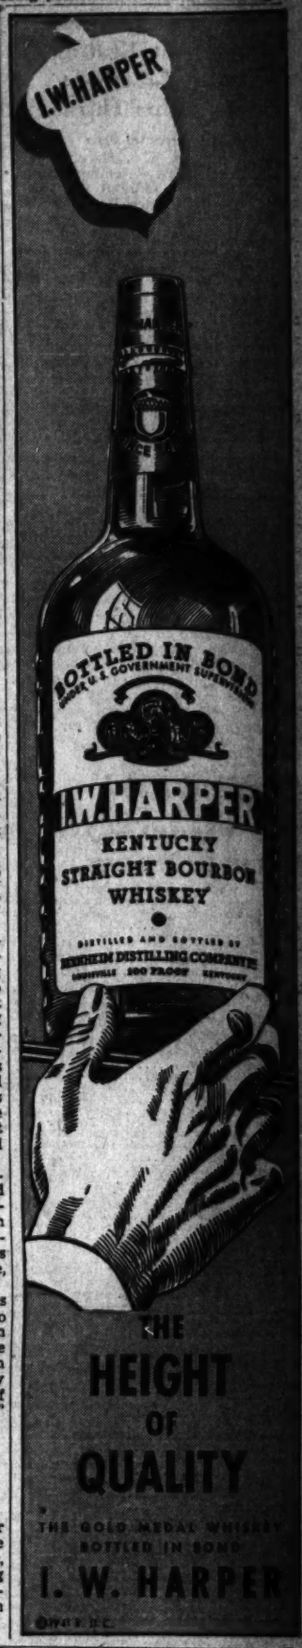
"It isn't that I question the integrity or competency of the Washington officials," Hoffman said in New York. "I feel that they're just too little to handle such a rough fight as this is bound to be. I'm not going to take any chances of having Buddy's career ruined by that big, wild-swinging oaf of a Galento who throws his punches indiscriminately and has no regard for the safety of his opponent. Galento would have ruined Lou Nova if they had not had a big man in there who could handle him."

The District boxing commissioners—who have a thankless job and don't get paid for their work—swallowed this argument that Two-Ton is too rough for the District officials. They wouldn't allow Jacobs to foot the bill for Donovan's fee, however.

"We knew that our local referees would lose out if we agreed to bring in an outside referee, so in order to be fair we decided to take care of our officials by paying them for the preliminaries and what they normally would have been paid if they had refereed the main event," Chairman Claude W. Owen said.

Pewee Baseball Team Is Seeking Sponsor

If you are in mood to sponsor something, get right on the phone and call the Alley Bumblebees, Georgia 5460. The Bees are seeking a backer for their coming campaign against baseball teams in the 12-to-14 age limit.



Schoolboy Notes . . .

Any day now, depending upon the signing of an armistice between Old Man Winter and whoever he's mad at, Coach Charles (Chief) Guyon will take his Eastern High baseball squad outside, give his annual speech about "beating Central," and the scholastic season will be officially under way. . . . So far almost every school has called out its pitchers and catchers for practice in the gym. . . . Eastern will be the favorite again, probably over even Central, which has swiped the interhigh title from the White Tide the last two years running. . . . Coaches are all pleased about the new system of deciding the public school diamond champ, to be used for the first time this year. . . . Instead of one, there'll be a series of three games between the East and West division champions with the crown at stake. . . . Considering its brilliant first basketball season, Coolidge probably would have as much chance in the baseball interhigh baseball series as several schools, but it will stick to outside battling anyway.

"CHIEF" GUYON

A third local youngster signed up to join Bob (Flash) Gordon and Art Faircloth, Washington's pair of gridiron greats from Anacostia High, at North Carolina State last week when Les (Babe) Ehrlick, All-Metropolitan center from Tech, was given a four-year scholarship to play with the Wolfpack. . . . Les, making the trip to the Duke-Durham Basketball Tournament, was interviewed first by Duke University officials, but liked the proposition offered him at the Raleigh school better. . . . Incidentally, Dan Hill, Duke's All-American center who now acts as assistant coach at his alma mater, thinks Gordon is the greatest "ellmax" runner he's seen in years. . . . Says one of his greatest disappointments is that Flash wasn't rounded up by Duke scouts. . . .

Looks like Tech's Coach Rusty Thompson, after several years of looking up to Central and Eastern in track, is about to get on top of the heap. . . . His boys mopped up during five indoor meets in this vicinity and now they're ready for the outdoor season to be capped by the interhigh track meet. . . . Capable observers say Tech, if it was cut to a one-man cinder team, could do pretty well with Eddie Barham, its high jumper and jack-of-all trades.

Mar Le Head Back; Victor Pays $25.70

Ryan Brings Home Long Shot, Beating Jockey McCreary; King's Blue Third

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 18.—One of those upsets which have been so frequent here marked the running of the Boca Raton Purse, the 6-furlong headline attraction here today. J. R. Neville's One Witch uncovered unexpected speed and led home ten speedy rivals to return $25.70 for $2. The filly's time of 1:10 2-5 missed the track record by only two-fifths of a second.

Paul Ryan, leading rider at the meeting, was astride the winner. Conn McCreary, the pacemaking pilot, rode the favored Mar Le, from the Lemar Stock Farm, and his mount finished a head behind One Witch in the photo duel. Kings Blue was third, five lengths back.

A threat of rain hung over the course, but it had held off when the feature was run, so that the racing strip was at its best.

Aerial Bomb, an exceptionally fast mare, had no trouble dashing into an early lead of several lengths, with Mar Le nearest in pursuit. Sum Implay and One Witch followed, while the fancied Exarch also was within range of the front horse. Aerial Bomb folded up in the first 3 furlongs. McCreary urged Mar Le into a narrow advantage. One Witch kept right along and the two drew away in the stretch, Ryan's mount having the more left in the final strides. Kings Blue outgamed Exarch for the show.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELECTRIC, $5.80, $3.70, $3.00; WARLEE, $18.40, $9.90; VIOLANTE, $4.00.

ELECTRIC broke fast, but was outrun in the first quarter mile, saved the most ground entering the stretch and, responding to strong pressure, held WARLEE safe. The latter, on the extreme outside from the start and losing ground, finished gamely, but could not get up. VIOLANTE displayed good speed, took a short lead in the early stages, but then faltered in the stretch drive.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:44. Off at 2:44½. Winner, R. Needham's br. g. (5), by Distraction—Al. Trained by J. Baumbach. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:12.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OZARK, $13.50, $5.60, $4.80; GENNARO, $5.20, $4.60; ALLMAR, $7.90.

OZARK circled the field with a rush rounding the turn, opened up a winning lead through the stretch and won in hand. GENNARO stole through on the inside in the final half mile, took a short lead, but was no match for the winner. ALLMAR, hard ridden, finished stoutly and disposed of the others.

Daily Double—ELECTRIC and OZARK Paid, $38.40.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:16½. Winner, C. L. Foster's b. g. (3), by Outbound—Thelma W. Trained by C. L. Foster. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:12⅘.

HARVENED	(Robart)	110	9	12	11ns	11ns	12	12	98.65

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VICTORY BOUND, $13.10, $7.50, $6.20; VALPONE, $26.30, $13.20; NANI-LEONAI, $11.00.

VICTORY BOUND, slipping through next to the rail leaving the backstretch, took command with a rush and, opening up a big lead, won in hand. VALPONE, on the outside, responded to punishment in the final drive and wore NANI-LEONAI down in the last stride. The latter, a forward factor throughout, faltered right at the end.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 3:46. Off at 3:47. Winner, Whitehall Plantation's br. g. (4), by Chicle—Robin's Egg. Trained by L. P. Harlan. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:11⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAKE ROBIN, $16.60, $6.80, $4.50; HIGH PLAID, $3.90, $2.90; PRINCIPAL, $3.80.

WAKE ROBIN, outrun in the early stages, circled the field entering the stretch and, closing gamely under a strong hand ride, won going away. HIGH PLAID followed the leaders closely under light restraint in the first half mile, made a game bid through the stretch, but could not keep stride with the winner. PRINCIPAL and DOUBLE B. set a fast pace from the start and the former outlasted his opponent in the final drive.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:19. Off at 4:20. Winner, J. R. Neville's b. f. (4), by Whichone—Chona. Trained by G. Gould. Value to winner, $850; second, $300; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:10⅘.

†W. F. Mannagh-T. Powell entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ONE WITCH, $25.70, $13.40, $8.10; MAR LE, $7.10, $4.90; KINGS BLUE, $6.30.

ONE WITCH, on the outside for the entire trip, gradually moved into contention after leaving the backstretch and outlasted MAR LE in the final drive. MAR LE, a keen contender all the way, took command through the stretch, but was unable to withstand the winner's bid. KINGS BLUE swung to the outside in the last 3 furlongs and outstayed EXARCH in the stretch run.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:49½. Winner, K. G. Marshall's br. c. (4), by Sweeping Light—Spinning Way. Trained by L. J. Keating. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:50⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DANCING LIGHT, $36.50, $10.80, $5.80; INTERLACE, $6.40, $3.60; BIG ROVER, $3.10.

DANCING LIGHT bettered his position steadily on the outside and, closing gamely under punishment, outlasted INTERLACE. The latter rushed to the front, set a fast pace, held on with determination when it came to a drive, but was unable to stave off the winner's challenge. BIG ROVER, a forward contender the entire trip, hung in the stretch drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:21. Off at 5:22½. Winner, Laman Stock Farm's ch. g. (6), by Mississippi—Strong. Trained by M. Shapoff. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:46⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MIGHTILY, $6.90, $4.10, $3.40; SOLDIERS CALL, $5.00, $4.00; DISSEMBLER (dead heat), $8.00; ENTRE NOUS (dead heat), $6.80.

MIGHTILY, showing good speed, raced FRIAR'S SCOUT into defeat in the first half mile, then, rated in front, had something in reserve when it came to a drive and outstayed SOLDIERS CALL. The latter, away slowly and forced to race wide, closed a big gap. DISSEMBLER and ENTRE NOUS responded gamely to punishment and finished in a dead heat for third place.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:54. Off at 5:55. Winner, S. Freeman's ch. m. (6), by Blue Pete—Rolling On. Trained by E. Mulkern. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:45⅘.

SEA CADET	(Rollins)	116	3	3	1ns	1ns	9½½	10ns	13	144.55

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUTBOARD, $18.30, $8.80, $5.60; COUNT MAURICE, $6.70, $5.30; YOUNG COUNTY, $5.30.

OUTBOARD was sent to the front rounding the turn, held on readily and never was threatened in the final drive. COUNT MAURICE was hustled into contention, made several strong bids and was next best. YOUNG COUNTY had plenty of speed, but weakened in the last quarter mile.

Selections at Tropical Park

Dear Al:

Conn McCreary, who is being dubbed "Superman, jr.," is leading the riders at Tropical just as he did at Hialeah. The New York writers tell me he couldn't sit on a horse last summer but he is doing a lot of hustling and pushing now and it doesn't look like he's going to stop soon. Paul Ryan is doing well in second position in the saddle race. Moody Jolley and Paul L. Kelley are tied for the training leadership with four winners each. Here's some news for you Bowie fans. Don't be surprised if the 2-year-old race, which has been the first event on Bowie programs for years, isn't moved to third position on the program. This has been suggested to the management and may be done at the coming meeting. This will be good news to daily double players who have been forced to take half the double on the uncertain new juveniles. It is planned to make the first race a six-furlong affair for older horses with the second race a distance affair when possible. It was the combination of these two races last fall that set a record for daily double play at a Maryland track. Strange as it seems, believe it or not or something, I had some winners yesterday. Getting back to Tropical, only 21 favorites won in the first 88 races. A Cumberland Benningite writes: "I pass. I'll see you at Cumberland where we know they are dogs before the races start." Alan Clarke is having a couple of wolf-teeth fixed by Friend (Dr.) Jimmy McGuirk. Jim Linnahan, former Boston College football player, has joined the official family at Narragansett Park. Thirteen days to Bowie. BILL.

First race—SALLYMAR may prove the best of these 2-year-old fillies. She has worked well and will have the popular Ryan in the saddle. LADY CLIPPER has speed and may go well from the inside post position. TOWER

Montgomery Ward Reports Dip in Profits

By the Associated Press

Montgomery Ward & Co. yesterday reported 1940 net profit of $23,028,017, equal to $4.14 a share of common stock. This compares with $27,010,845, or $4.91 a share in 1939.

Despite the fact that the company's net sales for the year were the largest in its history, totaling $515,010,915 and exceeding 1939 sales by 8.6 per cent, increase in tax rates caused a drop in net earnings. Total taxes rose to $3.46 a share on common stock, compared with $2.43 in 1939.

United Air Lines Transport Corp.

United Air Lines Transport Corporation yesterday reported 1940 net income of $775,463 after all charges, equal to 51.7 cents a share, compared with adjusted 1939 income of $776,834, or 51.8 cents a share. The 1940 total included nonrecurring income of $322,175 from sale of Union Air Terminal at Burbank, Calif.

Operating expenses in 1940 totaled $15,704,097, an increase of 34 per cent over 1939.

W. A. Patterson, president, said equipment on hand and to be delivered this year was expected to enable the company to expand operations by 25 or 30 per cent over the 1940 peak.

Aluminum Industries, Inc.

Aluminum Industries, Inc., and subsidiaries reported net profit of $166,965 or $1.68 per common share for 1940, against $159,969 or $1.61 a share for the preceding year.

Gen. Time Instruments Corp.

General Time Instruments Corp. and subsidiaries reported for the year ended December 28 net profit of $1,384,774 after setting aside $230,849 for the Federal Excess Profits Tax, equal to $3.46 a share on the common stock, against $1,001,785, or $2.31 a share, in 1939.

Budd Manufacturing Co.

The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Co. reported net income of $1,658,489 for 1940 compared with $218,037 for the previous year. At the same time the Budd Wheel Co. reported net income of $1,005,077 for 1940, compared with $662,934 for 1939.

Martin Aircraft Co.

The Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co. in a revised financial statement covering 1940 operations reported today that its per share earnings last year amounted to $4.94 instead of $3.92 as previously announced.

The revision, the company said, was occasioned by 1941 amendments to the excess profits tax. The $4.94 per share earnings in 1940 compared with $3.75 for 1939, $2.15 for 1938, and $1.32 for 1937.

Net sales totaled $30,663,337.10 in 1940 compared with $24,169,468.89 for 1939, $12,417,417.23 for 1938, and $7,839,356.48 for 1937.

Postal Telegraph, Inc.

The first annual report of Postal Telegraph, Inc., showed a 1940 net loss of $2,791,490 against a net loss of $1,298,020 in 1939. Starting business on January 31, 1940, after reorganization of the old Postal Telegraph & Cable Corporation, the company had a net loss of $2,564,000 for the 11 months ended December 31, 1940.

Edwin F. Chinlund, president, said the company has arranged through a reconstruction finance corporation loan to install a new type of telegraph equipment which "is expected to result not only in a very substantial saving in operating expenses but in materially greater speed and accuracy of service to the public."

Engineers Public Service

Engineers Public Service Co. reported for 1940 consolidated net income of $5,354,158, equal after preferred dividends paid to $1.61 a share on the common stock. This compared with $5,256,537 or $1.55 a share in 1939. The figures include undistributed earnings of subsidiaries.

Cotton Futures

New York, March 18 (AP).—Disclosure that $100,000,000 of lease-lend funds was earmarked for buying cotton to ship to Britain and continued agitation for higher farm income sent cotton futures ahead today after Monday's abrupt drop.

Final gains of 19 to 21 points all but erased yesterday's heavy losses.

After a lull the news of the amount of money to buy cotton for Britain signaled a new drive forward. Caution appeared in buying quarters for a time as dealers considered the possibility of a lull in textile demand and increased Brazilian hedging here if the Liverpool market closed.

Worth Street dealers reported the 80-square print cloth sold substantially at 6⅝ cents a yard for May and June delivery, an increase of ¼ cent. Total sales of print cloths were figured at around 10,000,000 yards and market sentiment remained optimistic.

Cottonseed Oil

New York, March 18 (AP).—Cottonseed oil futures shared with other fast-rising commodities today in a broad movement among edible oils. Final prices were up 11 to 26 points to the session's peaks.

Sales totaled 414 contracts: May, 7.52-7.54; July, 7.63-7.69; September, 7.33-7.34; October, 7.33.

Crude oil traded in light volume at 6¾ cents a pound in the Southeast and valley and 6⅞ cents in Texas. Bids at these levels failed to attract further offerings late in the day.

Cotton, Wheat Soar; Heavy Exports Seen

By the Associated Press

Commodity prices in spot cash and futures markets yesterday shot up to the highest of the season and longer in one of the most vigorous thrusts of the prespring buying drive.

In spot markets quotations, as measured by the Associated Press Index, rose to the highest since November, 1937. The index, based on 1926 as 100 and comprised of 35 wholesale staples, moved up to 79.67 from 79.38 Monday.

In futures trade cotton violently reversed Monday's decline with gains of 95 cents to $1.05 a bale. Buying followed the revelation $100,000,000 of lease-lend funds was earmarked for cotton purchases to send to Britain.

September wheat at Chicago scored a new record seasonal high at 85½ cents a bushel and the market generally advanced 1½ to 2 cents. Possibility of export trade with France and Ireland encouraged some of the buying.

At New York virtually all commodities which must come to the United States by sea responded to the possibility of ship shortages and spreading hostilities. Coffee jumped nearly ½ cent a pound, silk 3 to 4½ cents a pound, sugar as much as .02 of a cent a pound and cocoa .13 to .20 of a cent a pound.

Cottonseed oil, reflecting higher prices in cash markets for most edible oils, added .21 to .26 of a cent a pound. Hides rose nearly ¼ cent.

Rubber stuck against the main trend with losses of .20 to .60 of a cent a pound. Lead dipped narrowly. Copper and world sugar were mixed.

Food Trade Ready For Emergency, Asserts Chester

New York, March 18 (AP).—The food industry is well prepared to aid the national defense program in the United States, Colby M. Chester, chairman of General Foods Corp., said today in the annual report to stockholders.

"Most types of food are readily available," he said. "Farms, factories and warehouses are widely distributed. There has been a tremendous gain in efficiency in all phases of food production and distribution during the past generation.

As previously reported, net sales in 1940 totaled $152,924,209, compared with $145,615,242 in 1939. Net profit was $15,244,077, equal to $2.77 a common share, against $15,118,063 or $2.75 a share in 1939.

The 1940 tax bill of the company amounted to $7,111,924, equal to $1.35 a common share. In 1939 it was $5,550,676, or $1.05 a share, and in 1938 it totaled $4,693,294, or 89 cents a share.

Wool Mills Employ 23,000 More in Year

Boston, March 18 (AP).—The National Association of Wool Manufacturers reports that the number of persons employed in the wool textile industry in January was 23,000 more than in January, 1940, though 1,800 less than in December.

Wool textile mill production fell off 5 per cent in January, compared with December, but nevertheless it was one of the busiest Januarys on record, said the report, issued yesterday.

The association said the average weekly consumption of apparel class wool on the worsted system continued at the December rate, and that consumption of raw wool was 15 per cent lower.

W. R. & E. Paid $2,661,851 to Holding Firm

The North American Co. received approximately 12 per cent of its 1940 income from investments in the District of Columbia group of companies, according to the pamphlet report received here yesterday.

Through dividends of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. the giant utility holding company received $2,661,851 of its $20,316,500 income in 1940. W. R. & E. is the parent firm of Potomac Electric Power Co., Capital Transit Co., Braddock Light & Power Co. and other subsidiaries in 31 communities adjoining the district of Columbia.

Since the end of 1939 North American Co. has reduced its holdings in W. R. & E. to 87.04 per cent but has retained only 46.2 per cent voting power. The reduction in W. R. & E. investments was required under terms of the Public Utility Holding Company Act.

In a letter sent recently to stockholders, directors said: "Stockholders will be served best by proceeding more rapidly to reduce North American's holding in the Washington company to less than 10 per cent of the voting stock. The best way . . . towards divesting itself of control . . . is to pay dividends on North American common stock in form of quarterly distributions of Washington stock."

Advertising Dips in Week

Newspaper retail advertising volume totaled 19,977,839 lines in 82 major cities during the week ended March 8, according to Advertising Age. This was 3.2 per cent below the comparable week of 1940, when newspapers in the same cities carried 20,634,451 lines of retail display advertising.

For the 10-week period since the beginning of the year, however, Advertising Age reports that 1941 advertising volume is 1.6 per cent ahead of last year. The 1941 total to date is 178,601,376 lines, compared with 175,861,314 lines last year.

Month's Gas Sales Gain

The Washington Gas Light Co. reported yesterday that February gas sales totaled 1,770,417 m. c. f. (thousands of cubic feet), a gain of 58,273 m. c. f. as compared with February, 1940.

In the first two months, gas sales totaled 3,418,065 m. c. f., against 3,447,024 in the like 1940 period.

Wabash Alters Revamping Plan

St. Louis, March 18 (AP).—A modified plan of reorganization for the Wabash Railroad, containing five adjustments to meet objections of major interests, was on file today in the court of United States District Judge Charles B. Davis.

Prepared by the receivers, Norman B. Pitcairn and Frank C. Nicodemus, jr., the revised plan fixes the proposed capitalization of the new company at $192,647,795, against a total of $160,507,835 contemplated in the origional plan drafted in July, 1940. Present capitalization is $330,759,265.

Judge Davis set April 17 for the filing of objections to the modified plan and April 24 for a hearing.

Pivotal Issues Rally, Close With Minor Gains After Early Dip; Profit Reports are Pleasing

New York, March 18.—Further strength in major commodities today helped bolster the stock market after an early mild relapse attributed to a revival of war nervousness.

Leaders fell fractions to a point or so at the start when reports were heard that Nazi U-boats and battle cruisers were in the West Atlantic. The scare was short-lived, however, and, with the feeling growing that the market was away behind business and industry, recoveries soon began to creep into the list.

At the close many pivotal issues managed to show small fractional advances. There were a few wide upturns for scattered senior stocks traded in odd lots. Numerous shares were unchanged and an assortment of minor declines was seen at the final gong.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .1 of a point at 41.8. Transfers totaled 404,450 shares against 378,350 yesterday.

On the side of bullish forces was another batch of pleasing earnings figures, particularly those of railroads. Restraining potential buyers were spreading strikes in defense industries, persistent tax worries and fears of upsets in the European conflict. Clouding the scene also was the sale of a stock exchange seat for $26,000, off $2,000, and duplicating the recent 43-year low.

Among stocks, General Gas preferred jumped 7 points on a few trades. International Paper preferred was up better than a point. Both were at new highs for the year. Other senior issues in front included those of Budd Manufacturing, General Steel Castings and Market Street Railway.

Dow Chemical and Eastman Kodak were up 2 each. Moderate improvement was posted for United States Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Newport News Shipbuilding, New York Shipbuilding, Paramount, General Steel Casting, Kennecott, United States Rubber, Boeing, Du Pont, American Telephone and J. C. Penney.

Anaconda was ahead a shade after yesterday's private sale of a 140,000-share block of British holdings.

In arrears were Chrysler, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft and Phelps Dodge. Universal Pictures preferred was off 4 points on a small turnover.

In the Curb advances were registered for Sherwin Williams, American Light & Traction and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Under water were American Cyanamid "B," American Gas, Gulf Oil and International Petroleum. Volume here was around 73,000 shares versus 86,000 Monday.

RFC Resells State Bonds, Makes Profit

By the Associated Press

Jesse H. Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, announced yesterday the resale at a $350,000 profit of $63,000,000 worth of Arkansas highway refunding bonds bought by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation recently, after banking syndicates withdrew bids for the securities.

Altogether, the RFC bought $136,000,000 worth of Arkansas bonds, but the announcement pertained to a $90,000,000 portion of the Arkansas issue. Two types of bonds were involved in the original R. F. C. purchase.

Jones said $35,000,000 of the bonds had been sold to a syndicate headed by the Chase National Bank, New York; $15,000,000 to the investment banking firm of Halsey Stuart & Co.; $10,000,000 to the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, San Francisco; and $3,000,000 to Arkansas State Sinking Funds.

Bank of America paid a $100,000 premium on their bonds, and the combined premium paid by the Chase syndicate and Halsey Stuart was $750,000. The Arkansas State Sinking Funds were sold bonds at par.

At the time the RFC bought the bonds, Jones announced that certain, unnamed banking syndicates had been planning to buy the bonds, but withdrew because of fears that the RFC would underbid them. Jones added that he thought the bankers wanted to impose too high interest rates on the Arkansas bonds. On the basis of the RFC bids the bonds were issued at an average of slightly more than 3 per cent interest.

1 to 3.13 Per Cent Rate

New York, March 18 (AP).—Public offering was made today of $35,000,000 State of Arkansas bonds at prices to yield from 1 to 3.13 per cent, according to maturity and coupon rate.

Va. Shipbuilder In Year Earns $4.97 a Share

By the Associated Press

The Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. yesterday made public for the first time an annual report of operations which showed a 1940 profit of $4,383,176, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $4.97 a share on the common stock.

The company has been operating for more than 50 years but it was privately owned until August, 1940, when a syndicate of investment firms acquired control and distributed securities to the public.

Because of changes in the company's capital structure incident to the shift of ownership 1939 comparative operating figures were not available. A report released at the time of this transfer showed 1939 net income of $2,480,111.

Unbilled balance of shipbuilding contracts at Dec. 31, 1940, totaled $449,604,462 against $111,151,312 on Jan. 1, 1940. Uncompleted contracts at the end of the year included one battleship, eight aircraft carriers, four light cruisers, and five C-3 passenger cargo vessels for the U. S. Maritime Commission.

Gold Imports Gain; Bulk from Canada

By the Associated Press

Gold imports totaled $78,705,980 last week, of which $77,839,804 of it came from Canada.

Shipments in the week ended March 12 were about $13,000,000 larger than the preceding week.

Next largest shipment to the Canadian cargo was $190,717 from Venezuela.

Silver imports were slightly below average at $776,385 last week, including $600,178 from Mexico, $95,717 from Peru, and $24,544 from Canada.

Railway Express Plans $4,000,000 in New Cars

New York, March 18 (AP).—The Railway Express Agency will spend more than $4,000,000 for new automotive equipment in a broad program of replacement and additions to facilities made necessary in part by increased business for defense industries, L. O. Head, president, said today.

Orders have been placed for 2,667 trucks, tractors and trailers for delivery this year.

London Stocks

London, March 18 (AP).—The stock market showed a fairly good closing tone today despite some late profit taking in recently favored groups.

Dividend payers in the kaffirs group held moderate gains. Courtaulds was a feature of the industrial list, closing higher on the day though somewhat under the best. Coppers and oils stirred a moderate buying interest at better levels.

The gilt-edged department received comparatively little attention and in a few cases prices were a shade lower.

Sugar Futures

New York, March 18 (AP).—Large sales of spot raw sugar at the highest price since start of the war brought in fresh support for domestic sugar futures today. The market rose to the season's peaks and closed unchanged to 2 points higher on sales of 18,550 tons.

Trade quarters estimated around 60,000 tons of raw sold, mostly to refiners, and the spot price advanced 3 points to 3.35 cents a pound. This cleared the market of sugar at that level and 3.40 was asked thereafter.

Demand for refined continued active at 4.85 cents. Late in the day American Sugar Refining raised its basis 10 points to 4.95 cents.

World futures closed 1½ points higher to ½ lower on turnover of 7,600 tons. May, .32 bid; July, .26 bid.

Boston Wool

Boston, March 18 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Most of the trading in the Boston wool market today was in the finer grades of South American wool and in merino wools from Australia and South Africa. Only occasional sales of spot domestic wools were reported. These sales consisted mostly of small quantities urgently needed to complete orders on hand. Buyers whose needs were less urgent were buying domestic wool contracted from the new clip, to be delivered as soon as available.

Seat Price Sinks to $26,000, a 43-Year Low

New York, March 18 (AP).—Arrangements for the sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat for $26,000 were announced today. The price was down $2,000 from the last previous sale and equaled the 43-year low.

The Answer is YES!

We must confess to a certain satisfaction at the general reaction to our advertisements which have been appearing in this newspaper. Actual business received has justified our investment; but more important, your comments have vindicated our frequently reiterated contention that the average person needs only a sincere, confidence-inspiring offer of help to make him an eager and intelligent investor - that is, one who participates in American industry by purchasing securities through the established channels.

Of particular interest are several letters which said in effect - "Your advertised aims and policies and promises are fine if you really mean them." We take this opportunity to answer the challenge with a loud and unequivocal "YES, we really mean them!", and we hope other skeptics will give us a chance to answer any remaining doubts. As pretty good proof of our sincerity, we cite these two excerpts from recent correspondence to potential customers:

"We are of the opinion that the purchase of $100 worth of securities per month is not entirely practicable for your own best interests."

" ... frankly, we do not wish to assume the responsibility of advising you to place all your savings in stocks and bonds."

To investors - large or small - who are seeking experienced, helpful guidance, we repeat our original invitation: drop in to our office for a personal discussion of your investment problems. Such a visit will not obligate you in any way, and it may prove to be the best investment move you ever made.

Sincerely yours,

George A. Garrett
Resident Partner

'Tommy Gun' Maker Reports Production at 4,000 a Week

By the Associated Press

New York, March 18.—Thompson Automatic Arms Corp. turned out about 4,000 of the deadly "Tommy guns" weekly in the four weeks ended March 15, or about double the production rate of last October, stockholders learned at the annual meeting.

The company had on order on March 1 roughly $12,000,000 worth of the guns, famous for their performance in the hands of United States G-Men, the Army, Navy and Coast Guard.

The guns recently sold for between $175 to $200 each, plus about $50 each for a recoil compensator. This price has been shaded considerably because of current mass production methods.

Thompson Automatic earned $2,044,963 in the four months ended Feb. 28, after provision for Federal taxes at a rate of 45 per cent. From 1921 through 1938 the company's predecessor, to-Ordnance Corp., sold about 10,300 "Tommy guns at a total sales price of around $2,334,000. Thompson acquired Auto-Ordnance in July, 1939.

The company depends mainly on other concerns, such as Savage Arms Corp., for manufacture of the guns.

Russell Maguire, president, disclosed at the meeting that the company's cash position was in excess of current requirements but future business might call for a much larger cash working capital. Maguire said additional dividends would undoubtedly be deferred pending further clarification of future taxes, effects of the lease-lend bill and several other important factors.

Last fall directors of the company jolted financial quarters by voting a dividend of $3.50 a share of capital stock, the first in the history of the 25-year-old company.

Funds for the dividend, it was understood in informed quarters, were derived from sale to foreign governments of guns left over from World War No. 1.

Spider Star's Eligibility Is Being Probed

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., March 18.—The athletic eligibility of Andy Fronczek, the University of Richmond's All-Southern Conference tackle and cocaptain of the 1941 football team, is being investigated by the loop's executive council as the result of a contest in which he played at Drake University two years ago.

The University of Richmond asked the committee, headed by Dr. A. W. Hobbs, of the University of North Carolina, to look into the case and a decision is expected to be handed down next month.

Dr. Rolvix Harlan, chairman of the Richmond faculty committee on athletics, said that he was advised recently that Fronczek played on a Drake team composed of freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors against the Creighton University freshmen in 1939.

Dean Hobbs wrote Glenn F. Thistlethwaite, Richmond athletic director, that "it is clear that Mr. Fronczek might easily have thought the game he played was of such an informal nature that it would hardly be considered competition under Southern Conference rules."

Furthermore, Hobbs said, "I do not consider that any blame is to be placed upon the athletic authorities at the University of Richmond as it appears they did all that could be expected in an attempt to get the facts."

Expressing the hope that the committee would not end Fronczek's college athletic career, Dr. Harlan stated that "since the whole question hinges upon a technicality, I believe it would be a distinct injustice to declare the young man ineligible."

Fronczek entered Richmond from Harvey, Ill., in the fall of 1937 and played on the freshman team that fall and on the varsity in 1938. He transferred to Drake in the Missouri Valley Conference in 1939, but returned to Richmond last fall.

Virginia Blasted From Tournament

Ott matched their performance before giving way to subs.

Baumholtz, exhibiting a beautiful left-handed shot, lived up to his all-State reputation with nine field goals and four free throws for 22 points. Ott, also an all-State performer, was not far behind with 19. Widowitz and Becker paced the losers with 11 and 10, respectively.

Ohio broke two tournament records. Fifteen free throws topped Colorado's 13 made last year and nine out of ten by Ott surpassed the tournament record of seven established by Bill Lloyd of St. John's in 1939.

smiled it all off and I even cooled out about those fancy lines you put around the picture in the paper.

However, I hate to have it rubbed into me by the family. I didn't even know my boy had seen the darned picture. We were sitting around in the living room and he calls to his mother: "Mom, is dinner ready? Pop's sitting around looking like he wants to graze."

That's enough to make a man want to turn himself out in a field.

And Pegs, no fair trying to pay me off with hay and oats next week. I'll promise not to play horsey any more. In fact, I better not. My family is getting a trifle bored with my being a comic and if I keep it up I may have to go out to Bowie some night and tell the colt, Walter Height, to move over in the stall.

Wouldn't that be ducky, Boss, for me to wake up in the morning and find some guy trying to stick a sponge up my nose?

By the way, Boss, how much does a Post camera cost? I'm going to cram one down that photographer's throat the next time he asks me to help him get an unusual picture.

Always your ace,
POUNDS HAIGHT.

N. Y. U. to Reconsider Student Suspension

New York, March 18 (INS).—Suspension of seven students from New York University because they protested the school's refusal to permit George Hagens, a Negro, to participate in a track meet at Washington, D. C., last week will be reconsidered tomorrow by the university disciplinary committee.

then got in so many back-nine bunkers he was lucky to have a par 36 in spite of three birdies.

Quartet Has 69

Back of the leaders were four men at 69—P. G. A. Champ Byron Nelson and Open Champion Lawson Little, who played together and together took 1 over par 5s on the last hole; Al Brosch, of Farmingdale, N. Y., who was playing under the handicap of a bad case of sunburn poisoning, and Sammy Snead, who was inches wide of the cup on the eighteenth green with an 18-foot putt that, if it had dropped, would have given him a share in the lead.

Two Washington, D. C., entries—a third, Leo Walper, failed to put in an appearance—wound up the first round far out of the running. Lew Worsham, Burning Tree pro, had 42 on the first nine and improved only one stroke on the last nine for an 83. Ralph Bogart, amateur, shot even 43s for an 86.

and exchanged passes until Barry drove the puck through Colvin.

Exactly 59 seconds later Burns deadlocked the count for the Eagles with his sixtieth goal of the season, a high, easy shot which he lifted over Polich's stooping figure from 15 feet out on a double pass from MacBeth and Knipfel. No penalties marred the period, the players seeming content not to check when absolutely necessary.

Score Is Still Tied

Each team scored one goal that counted and one that didn't in the second period and going into the final stanza the score was still tied.

The Eagles took the lead for the first time when, at 13:45, Burrage counted, following up a shot of his own after Mailley, too, had tried to knock the puck in on the rebound.

The Olympics retaliated at 15:48 with a goal by Fitzgerald who stole the puck from Germann and Pranschke close to the Washington nets and let fly with a hard drive that was screened from Colvin by his own teammates.

Boston had a goal nullified by offsides, and Washington was deprived of a point because a man was in the crease when MacBeth deposited the puck in the cords.

First penalty of the game cropped up early in the period, Germann, of Washington, being thumbed to the box for two minutes for pushing a Boston player into the cage as the latter attempted to shoot. Barry was the Olmpic who landed in the nets feet first. To make the situation more ludicrous, Barry's foot became entangled in the cords and he was stranded there momentarily as the fans yelled, "No goal."

who fights Champion Lew Jenkins soon.

Tommy refused to consider himself a cripple when paralysis overtook him at the age of 15. He went to work to build himself up and turned to boxing in the process. Now he fights with a game leg and a peculiar stance, but in 86 fights he has never been knocked out or off his feet.

Hurst Terrific Puncher

Hurst is a lad who needs no introduction. The 20-year-old discovery of the old-timer, Al Foreman, received a great ovation at Griffith Stadium last summer in what was his eighth professional fight and has returned several times to put on a winning performance.

A terrific puncher for his size, Hurst claims the Canadian featherweight championship but also fights lightweights. He expects to go into the Canadian army in the next six months and is planning a hurry-up campaign in the United States in an effort to win the featherweight championship in this country.

Lou Ambers Going Strong for Laundry

Utica, N. Y., March 18 (AP).—Lou Ambers, the kid who rode the rods to the world's lightweight championship, is going into the laundry business in a big way.

The former titleholder who failed recently in his comeback attempt against Lew Jenkins, current king, announced today consolidation of his Herkimer laundry with a Utica laundry.

Terry Moore Sued For $3,000 Damages

St. Louis, March 18 (AP).—A $3,000 damage suit was filed against Terry Moore, captain of the St. Louis Cardinals' baseball team, in Circuit Court today by Miss Marie Baumer, 19, as the result of an automobile collision last January 3.

'Paper Bag' Bandit Suspect Is Indicted

Charles R. Vanderhuff, 26, who was seized the night of February 27 by two policemen guarding a store robbed twice in the previous few months, yesterday was indicted on eight charges of robbery and two of attempted robbery.

The police believed Vanderhuff was the "paper bag bandit" who committed a series of holdups, entering stores with his pistol wrapped in a paper bag on which was written "This is a holdup."

Patrolmen Herbert M. Jewell and Lawrence Halstead caught Vanderhuff in High's Ice Cream Store, 1213 Fourth Street Southwest. The police said that on March 1 the man was identified by several victims of robberies.

The Vanderhuff indictments were among 68 presented yesterday before Justice James W. Morris in the District Court.

Prettyman Gives Advice to Liberals

A "liberal who believes in peace, liberty, justice and economic sufficiency" should believe and act upon his convictions "not as unattainable theories, but as actual and practical attainments," E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel, said yesterday.

He addressed a luncheon meeting of the Washington alumni chapter of Sigma Nu Phi at the Lafayette Hotel.

G. M. Pulver, 52, Former Resident, Dies in Florida

George Marsh Pulver, 52, former Washington and former husband of Mrs. Grace Waggaman Pulver, of Washington, died yesterday at Miami Beach, Fla.

Mr. Pulver was spending the winter in Florida when he was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage, according to friends here. He had recently returned from Nassau, where he attended motorboat races.

A lieutenant commander in the Navy during the World War Mr. Pulver will be buried in Arlington Cemetery with military honors. Surviving is a young son, George, jr. now attending Fishburne Military Academy, in Virginia. Mrs. Pulver lives at 1320 Twenty-ninth Street Northwest.

Thieves, Robbers Have Busy Day; Loot Exceeds $127

Two colored men held up Maurice C. Goldsman, 50, last night in his grocery at 1925 Fourth Street Northwest, and robbed him of $60 and a quantity of cigarettes, wine, hams and groceries.

Last November two masked gunmen robbed Goldsman of $238 at the store.

Earlier last night Mrs. Virginia Jones, 26, a clerk, was held up in a confectionery store at 1848 Seventh Street Northwest and robbed of $20 by two colored men, one of whom wore a pair of goggles.

Dr. Percival Hall, president of Gallaudet College, school for the deaf at Eighth Street and Florida Avenue Northeast, reported that thieves had broken into the room of Richard Kennedy and had stolen $32 and a $15 watch from a strong box.

Rites Tomorrow For J. J. Umstead

Frederick, Md., March 18.—Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow for John J. Umstead, 69, prominent Montgomery County farmer of the Poolesville area.

Mr. Umstead, who died of a sudden heart attack yesterday, for many years conducted a large farm implement and grain elevator business at Buck Lodge, and in recent years had engaged in farming near Poolesville.

Surviving are his wife, Sarah E. Umstead; two daughters, Miss Ella Umstead, at home; Mrs. Mrs. Grace Horine, Buck Lodge; three sisters, Mrs. J. T. Beane and Miss Frances Umstead, Rockville; Mrs. Elizabeth Worthmiller, Washington, and one brother, Jacob Umstead, Washington. Burial will be in Monocacy Cemetery, Beallsville.

Funeral Today For L. F. Reed

Funeral services for Lemuel Franklin Reed, 63, lifelong resident of Herndon, Va., who died at his home Monday, will be today at 2 p. m. from T. Edgar Reed's funeral chapel at Herndon. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Franklin Winter, of the Herndon Congregational Church, with burial in Chestnut Grove Cemetery at Herndon.

Mr. Reed, a native of Herndon, was a retired contractor and builder. He was an active member of the Herndon Volunteer Fire Department and held the office of fire marshal for 15 years.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Patton, of Herndon, and a son, Charles T. Reed, of Dawsonville, Md.

Insurances To Do Part, Official Says

Life insurance companies will do their part in the emergency, Dr. Claude L. Benner, Wilmington, Del., a leader in that profession, last night told 250 members and guests of the local chapter, American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters' at the Carlton Hotel.

Principal speaker at the fifth annual dinner of the organization, Dr. Benner, vice president, Continental American Life Insurance Co., and formerly with Brookings Institution of Washington, addressed the assembly on "Adjusting Life Insurance to New Conditions."

Reminding that a huge amount of Government borrowing is going to be necessary, he said life insurance companies will stand ready to put their funds into Government bonds and that no law will be necessary to secure that action.

It was the opinion of the speaker that, however plausible may have been the arguments before the defense program of the necessity of levying taxes so as to cut down savings and not decrease purchasing power, certainly today such arguments are obviously ridiculous.

"I think we must all agree," Dr. Benner said, "that were it possible to devise an ideal control over taxes an income during the years immediately ahead, we would agree that it ought to be such that no one should be permitted to increase his income as to cause an increased demand for consumption of goods above those necessary for the maintenance of a satisfactory and healthy standard of living."

Consumption Curbs Hit

He criticized as "ridiculous were it not so tragic," the idea that any one should maintain at a time like this, when the Nation is bending every effort to arm itself as rapidly as possible, that a tax bill should be passed so that revenue from it comes mainly out of savings so as not to cut down consumption.

Emphasizing that consumption must be and is going to be reduced whether we like it or not, he said the only problem is to devise the most equitable method of doing so and not to impede the defense program. He expressed the thought that we must all agree that if this inevitable reduction in consumption for speedy armement is brought about by a wise financial policy of taxation, Federal spending, Government borrowing and wage control, it would be more equitable and do much less damage than pursuing unsound measures in these vital fields, net result of which would be reducing consumption through inflation and rising prices.

Inflation, he warned, will increase the cost of the defense program, slow it down and when it is over, make certain a severe depression.

Without any desire to give praise or place blame on anyone, he said: "I think we must all admit that we are in an emergency, not only because of the foreign situation but because of some of our domestic affairs. We have played rather fast and loose with our finances for the last several years. Now is no time for a further period of experimentation. If we are to avoid the pitfalls of inflation, rising prices, never-ending deficits and ultimate bankruptcy, a sound financial policy must be pursued in meeting these enormous expenditures."

Referring to a suggestion of liberalizing law governing investment of insurance funds so that purchase of common stocks would be legal in hope of making venture capital more available, he said he had no objection to this, but that such a change will not produce this result.

Business Risks Cited

"It ought to be obvious," Dr. Benner amplified," that if businessmen cannot be induced to borrow money, just because it is cheap, that lenders will not be willing to supply venture capital unless they think the returns they are going to get are going to amply compensate them for the risks entailed. And it must never be forgotten that there are a good many risks entailed when one invests funds in venture enterprises. Merely making common stocks legal investments for life insurance companies, I am afraid will not increase the supply of venture capital unless some other conditions are materially changed."

J. Hicks Baldwin, chapter president, presented the toastmaster, Senator John W. Danaher, of Connecticut, and Dr. Perrin Long, professor of preventive medicine, Johns Hopkins University Medical School, gave a short talk. Among those included in the guest list were:

Benjamin Aik, president, American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters; Gov. Albert G. Black, Farm Credit Administration; Commissioner Isador Lubin, Bureau of Labor Statistics; William Montgomery, president, Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co.; Jo. V. Morgan, member, District Board of Tax Appeals; Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, chairman, House District Committee; Chairman Emil Schram, Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Bids and Proposals

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE, UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE, Washington, D. C., March 24, 1941.—Sealed proposals (in triplicate) will be received at this office until 10 a. m., Saturday, April 5, 1941, and will be opened immediately thereafter, in the presence of such bidders as attend, for producing, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1942, by planographing, or other process, copies of drawings of the weekly issues of patents; and for the reproduction of exhausted copies of drawings and specifications, etc., by planographing. The prices named will be considered in connection with the ability of the bidder and his plant to do and deliver within a specific time, first-class work, under the conditions above, except that no specific number of pages can be estimated for producing or reproducing by the color process of photoengraving, copies of drawings of patents on plants. Under these same conditions, producing by halftone process, copies of drawings of patents on plants. Prior to the determination of an award, such preliminary investigation as to the qualification of bidders and efficiency of plant will be made as the Deprtment shall deem necessary. A low bid, unsupported by satisfactory evidence as to ability to perform the work in agreement with the terms of the proposals and contract to be awarded, will be rejeced. All bids accepted and contracts awarded subject to an appropriation by Congress to meet the expense. Lack of commercial standing on the part of the bidder or inadequate facilities or plant with which to perform the work specified will constitute good and sufficient grounds for the rejection of such a bid. BIDDERS WHOSE WORK HAS BEEN UNSATISFACTORY IN THE PAST MAY BE ELIMINATED FROM CONSIDERATION ON THAT GROUND. Specifications and specimens, with forms of proposal, will be furnished on application to the Chief Clerk of the Patent Office. All bidders are invited to be present at the opening. The right to reject any and all bids, in whole or in part, is hereby reserved. CONWAY P. COE, Commissioner.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. Mamie Humphreys, 710 E Street Northeast, Washington, D. C., plaintiff, vs. Oscar T. Humphreys, 3534 Canal Street, New Orleans, Louisiana, defendant. No. 61630, Equity. The object of this suit is to enlarge the decree of divorce from bed and board heretofore granted the plaintiff in the above entitled action from the defendant on the 16th day of December, 1936, on the ground of cruelty into a decree of absolute divorce from the bond of matrimony on the ground that the separation of the parties has continued for two years and more since the date of said decree. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 18th day of March, A. D. 1941, ordered that the defendant, Oscar T. Humphreys, 3534 Canal Street, New Orleans, Louisiana, cause his appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default, provided a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post before said day. T. ALAN GOLDSBOROUGH, Justice. Attest: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By ELEANOR E. JOSE, Assistant Clerk.

Listen! with Glynn

The meanings of Americanism being a deservedly popular subject these days, Edward G. Robinson is going in for some dramatic explanations of it in his "Big Town" programs which you hear over WJSV each Wednesday night.

Tonight the playlet, titled "Letter to the Editor," is being written by Gilbert Seldes, a gentleman who has studied and written about democracy in the United States a great deal these past few years. In 1939 his CBS radio series, called "Americans All, Immigrants All," won a citation from the Women's National Radio Committee. He's written any number of books and articles about the American scene, both passing and permanent. Way back in 1933—so you know his interest is not too young a thing—he wrote and produced the historical motion picture called "This Is America."

While he was a political correspondent in Washington in 1918 he wrote the book, "The United States and the War," and his later literary works have included "The Stammering Century," "Against Revolution," "The Years of the Locust," "Mainland," and "The Movies Come From America." He has been a frequent contributor to national magazines, yet found time to be director of television programs for C. B. S. since 1937.

Seldes' script will be the first to be submitted by a select group of American writers for Robinson's radio show—all of them on America's points and problems.

The Post Radio Highlights

9:15 a. m., WRC—With Tallulah Bankhead again ensconced in "The Little Foxes" at the National, Walter Sweeney joins Mary Mason for their weekly gander at the "legit" horizon.

7:15 p. m., WJSV—Good Neighbor Policy Hits Rival Networks: The winner of N. B. C.'s Metropolitan Opera auditions makes her first appearance since copping that gilt-edged contract on Lanny Ross' C. B. S. program.

8, WJSV—Gilbert Seldes, who hasn't been writing for radio much since winning an award for his 1939 series, "Americans All, Immigrants All," has written "Letter to the Editor," for Edward G. Robinson to play.

8, WMAL—Only one newcomer for tonight's Quiz Kids. She's 14-year-old Lois Piske. Back after a few weeks' absence is Claude Brenner joining Richard Williams, Jack Lucal and Inez Fox.

8:30, WINX—General Accounting Office and Interstate Commerce employees stage a "blitz" spelling bee on the stage of the Apex Theater. Frank Finnell, Frank Mackenzie and Don Martin are the lads from GAO, while Sylvia Soloff, Grace Floyd and Ethel Burstein represent the ICC.

8:45, WOL—Outside of the inimitable Mary Haworth and her invaluable advice one of the most constructive things to do about that gosh-I'm-ugly-and-what-am-I-gonna-do-about-it feelings are the hints tossed by Hal Willis and Pegeen Fitzgerald.

9, WRC—Eddie Cantor, father of five, plays host to the doctor of five, Allan Roy Dafoe.

10:30, WMAL—"First Line of Defense" is the Doctors at Work program dramatizing the job of keeping the fighting men of the United States fleet healthfully shipshape.

Contract Bridge

Today we present for discussion a hand submitted by contributors, which, although bid to the six and seven level somewhat uncertainly, nevertheless resulted in a fine score.

"The following hand was dealt me in a rubber game," writes O. W. H. "It caused much hilarity. I had not previously played with my partner and we had no firm understanding as to conventions except my casual remark that I liked Blackwood and her reply that she did not.

"I was sitting South and these were my cards:

♠ A Q J 3 6 4
◇ A
♣ None

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	2 NT	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	5 NT
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

"Weste was too convulsed with amusement to pass at the moment or, unfortunately for me, to double. It was apparently thought that I was tangled up in the Blackwood convention and out on a limb, to stand six in an unmentioned suit rather than bid seven hearts.

"As it turned out, my partner had truthfully shown no aces and three kings, being missing the king of hearts. She rose to the occasion, trumped the club ace which was opened, drew trumps and disclaimed the finesse in hearts; discarding five hearts on established diamonds and clubs for an overtrick.

"Then another recess was taken —we doing the laughing."

Contract Bridge

Today we present for discussion a hand submitted by contributors, which, although bid to the six and seven level somewhat uncertainly, nevertheless resulted in a fine score.

"The following hand was dealt me in a rubber game," writes O. W. H. "It caused much hilarity. I had not previously played with my partner and we had no firm understanding as to conventions except my casual remark that I liked Blackwood and her reply that she did not.

"I was sitting South and these were my cards:

♠ A Q J 3 6 4
◇ A
♣ None

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	2 NT	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	5 NT
Pass	6 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

"Weste was too convulsed with amusement to pass at the moment or, unfortunately for me, to double. It was apparently thought that I was tangled up in the Blackwood convention and out on a limb, to stand six in an unmentioned suit rather than bid seven hearts.

"As it turned out, my partner had truthfully shown no aces and three kings, being missing the king of hearts. She rose to the occasion, trumped the club ace which was opened, drew trumps and disclaimed the finesse in hearts; discarding five hearts on established diamonds and clubs for an overtrick.

"Then another recess was taken —we doing the laughing."

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — No Date—She'll Be Tied Up — BY MILTON CANIFF

BURMA! I GOT A BREAK! I SOCKED KIEL AND HIS GUARD! THEY'RE BOTH OUT AND TIED UP! I BROUGHT THE STOOGE'S COAT AND HAT! YOU TAKE YOUR MAID'S PARKA AND WE CAN GET PAST THE OUTSIDE SENTINELS!
BUT THEY'LL FIND THEM IN THE MORNING WHEN THE WAITER COMES WITH BREAKFAST!
SURE—BUT WE HAVE TIME! WE CAN GET A CAR AND BE OUT OF TOWN BEFORE THEY HIT ON OUR TRAIL! I TOOK THE FAKE PASSAGE PAPERS KIEL HAD MADE UP FOR ME!
BUT YOU FORGET—I HAVE NO PAPERS! I AM ONLY SAFE WITH KIEL!... AND BESIDES, I—— JUST CAN'T DO IT!... YOU'LL UNDERSTAND ...SOMEDAY!
YOU STUCK BY ME... SO I WON'T LEAVE YOU NOW! THE WHOLE THING'S OFF!
LISTEN TO ME—AND STOP BEING NOBLE! IF YOU STAY YOU'LL BE SHOT!...TAKE MY MAID'S PARKA AND GO!—SHE'S ALLOWED IN AND OUT!... KIEL SAYS A TRAIN MAY BE LEAVING FOR THE COAST ON THE NEW TRACKS TONIGHT!...YOUR PAPERS AND UNIFORM WILL GET YOU BY!...THE MAID AND ME—SO IT WILL NOT SEEM WE WERE IN ON IT!... IF YOU DON'T DO THIS I WILL YELL FOR THE OUTSIDE GUARD AND WE WILL BOTH BE PERFORATED! NOW GIT!—YOU SWEET CHILD!

I REMEMBER, TOMMY! AND IT WAS THAT SORT OF THING THAT STARTED YOU GOING WRONG!
I REALIZE THAT NOW, MICKEY—BUT I WAS ONLY A KID THEN AND I THOUGHT IT WAS SMART TO BE TOUGH.
BUT YOU'D HAVE TO BE ABLE TO DANCE PAINFUL GOOD TO GET ON THE STAGE!
I CAN, MICKEY! IT JUST COMES NATURAL! THEY HAD MOVIES AT THE REFORM SCHOOL—AND I'VE SEEN FRED ASTAIRE AND GEORGE MURPHY AND ELEANOR POWELL—AND I'VE GOT THEIR ROUTINES DOWN PERFECT! AND SOME SWELL ONES OF MY OWN!
—AND I THOUGHT YOU BEING A BRIGHT BELT DETECTIVE, YOU MIGHT KNOW SOMEBODY IN THE SHOW BUSINESS WHO'D GIVE ME A BREAK!
I DON'T KNOW OF ANYBODY OFFHAND, TOMMY—BUT I'LL SURE SEE WHAT I CAN DO!

AN INDIAN FINDS IT HARD TO LEARN TO PLAY, STEVE!
BUT YOU ENJOY THE PLEASURES OF THE WHITE MAN'S WORLD, DON'T YOU? EVEN IF YOUR FIANCE DOESN'T!
I'VE LIVED AMONG YOUR PEOPLE FOR MANY YEARS—YOUR WAYS ARE MY WAYS!
THE TRUTH IS—I FIND IT HARD SOMETIMES TO REALIZE I AM AN INDIAN!
SO DO I, MINNIE!
COME, STEVE! LET'S TAKE ONE MORE DIP AND GO HOME—WAHOO MUST BE LONESOME—!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — See "King of the Royal Mounted" as a movie serial, Fridays, at Ashton Theater, Clarendon, Va.

SORRY TO BOTHER YOU AT THIS LATE HOUR, MR. JENKS, BUT IF YOU'LL COME WITH ME, I BELIEVE YOU CAN IDENTIFY THE CANNERY FIREBUG!
WHY-ER—YES, SERGEANT; I'D BE—ER—GLAD TO!
AFTER WE CAUGHT HIM, HE CLAIMED THE PLANT WAS HIS!
THAT'S NONSENSE! AS THE BANK'S MANAGER, I KNOW THE TITLE IS CLEAR!
WHY, I ARRANGED THE GALE, MYSELF!—SIR! WHY ARE YOU—ER—TAKING ME TO THE HOSPITAL?
OUR INCENDIARY WAS BADLY HURT IN TONIGHT'S FIRE—
KING! GEE! NOW WE'LL NEVER KNOW WHO THE FIRE-BUG WAS OR WHY HE TRIED TO BURN THE CANNERY—HE JUST DIED!

331 Officers Recommended For Promotion

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Correspondent

Fort George G. Meade, Md., March 18.—Recommendations for promotion of 331 officers of the Twenty-ninth Division were made to division headquarters today by commanders of each regiment.

Appointment of 85 new officers from reserve components of the Army also was requested of the Second Army Corps by the division. Officers needed include 10 chaplains, 72 medical officers, 1 engineer officer and 2 signal officers.

Washington's 121st Engineers, if recommendations of Col. John W. Oehmann are approved, will gain 1 major, 4 captains and 13 first lieutenants by promotion. The District's 104th Ordnance Company will get two promotions and the 104th Quartermaster Regiment will receive one.

Other Promotions

Other promotions recommended would advance 176 Infantry officers, 74 Field Artillery, 5 Signal Corps, 8 chaplains, 3 Chemical Warfare, 1 judge advocate, 1 in the finance department and 3 in the adjutant general's department.

The 115th Infantry, which includes companies from Maryland counties near Washington, recommended promotions which would add 1 lieutenant colonel, 3 majors, 6 captains and 16 first lieutenants.

Several boards to pass on promotions have been recommended by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the division, and are expected to be appointed tomorrow by Second Corps. These boards would begin their study of recommendations immediately after appointment.

Col. D. John Markey, commanding the 115th Infantry, said today the regiment's recreation building, on which construction was delayed in order to hasten completion of barracks and mess halls, has been completed and occupied. A piano has been donated for the building by a Westminster, Md., woman and will be installed this week.

Col. Markey said his regiment had ordered a talking picture projector which would be installed in the recreation hall. He added that a loud-speaker system had been ordered which would be used to broadcast records of bugle calls in the near future.

Quarantine Lifted

Company D, 115th Infantry, of Bel Air, Md., was delighted today to end a four-week quarantine for mumps. Quarantined almost immediately after arrival here for three weeks, the company was held a full month instead when a second case of mumps appeared a week after quarantine started. The antitank company of Kensington, commanded by Lieut. George A. Gilbert, also was released today from a week's quarantine for measles.

Headquarters of the 104th Quartermaster Regiment announced that Lieut. Hugh A. Allen, of Company B, Washington, has been appointed regimental athletic officer. He will be assisted by First Sergt. Stanley Dennison, Service Company, of Washington.

The 104th Quartermaster Regiment received its first selectee when Richard Franklin Verrill, of Washington, joined the outfit and was assigned to Headquarters Company. Verrill, who lived at 1819 G Street Northwest, is 24, a native of Washington and a graduate of Western High School. He was employed by the National Savings & Trust Co. and has been put to work here with the gasoline-supply platoon.

Gas Drill to Be Held At Hyattsville Tonight

Lieut. Comdr. J. P. Wetherill 3d, Chemical Warfare officer at the Washington Navy Yard, will give a lecture and demonstration on gas attack defense and civilian protection at the Hyattsville (Md.) National Guard Armory at 8 tonight.

Sponsored by the Snyder-Farmer Legion Post, of Hyattsville, the lecture will be open to the public. The program is in line with the legion's policy of aiding in national defense preparations.

W. P. Gallaher Resigns National Park Post

Waynesboro, Va., March 18 (AP).—William B. Gallaher, civil engineer who was in charge of engineering work in Shenandoah National Park at Sherando Lake Forest Camp and at Douthat State Park near Clifton Forge, has resigned from the National Park Service and will return to his home here to resume his engineering business.

D. C. Radioman One of 6 Killed As 2 Navy Planes Collide

Six Navy fliers, including a Washingtonian, were killed when two planes collided and plunged into the Pacific Ocean Monday, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

All were attached to the aircraft carrier Yorktown, one of the main aviation units of the Pacific fleet. The Navy gave no details of the crash, except to say the planes were "maneuvering" when they collided.

The Washingtonian killed was Stephen Knyezso, 27, chief radioman, whose wife, Mrs. Helen Knyezso, lives at 3211 Tenth Place, Congress Heights. He came to Washington in 1940 to attend the Naval Radio School and on graduation last November was assigned to a dive bomber squadron aboard the Yorktown. His wife and a 2-year-old daughter, Dorothy, survive.

Others killed were Lieut. (J. G.) Frank Mason Robinson, of Springfield, Mass.; Ensign Kirby Leo Barry, Naval Reserve, of Norman, Okla.; James Stewart McLendon, radioman second class, of Raleigh, N. C.; Benjamin Daniel Christman, radioman second class, of Danville, Va., and Miller Ora DeJarnett, aviation machinist third class, of Drumwright, Okla.

The Navy Department said the bodies of Lieut. Robinson and Ensign Barry had been recovered.

Camp Lee Inspected By Gen. Magee

Petersburg, Va., March 18 (AP).—Maj. Gen. James C. Magee, surgeon general, U. S. Army, made an official inspection trip to Camp Lee today. In company with camp officials he inspected the post hospital and other places.

Gen. Magee planned to go from here to Fort Bragg, N. C.
